It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

INTRODUCTORY.

Canada affords an interesting example of a country with a definite immigration policy based on local needs and conditions, and an immigration law sufficiently broad and flexible to permit the effective carrying out of that policy. The Canadian policy is based on the purpose of the government to promote the immigration of settlers for the newly opened agricultural regions of the western Provinces and other parts of the Dominion and to discourage the coming to Canada of such classes of immigrants as tend to congregate in towns and cities.

The United States, the United Kingdom, and certain northern and western countries of continental Europe are regarded by Canada as the sources most likely to furnish the class of immigrants desired, and in them the Government carries on a systematic and usually successful propaganda to promote or direct immigration to the Dominion. No effort is made to promote immigration from southern and eastern European countries, and while immigrants from such countries are not specifically excluded by the Canadian immigration law, they are not sought by Canada nor are they desired unless it is clearly shown that they do not intend to become city dwellers.

In earlier years the Dominion shared somewhat in the movement of population from the United Kingdom and northern and western Europe to North America; but until recently the United States was the destination of by far the greater part of such immigration, a condition easily accounted for by the fact that the settlement of the agricultural regions of the West was made practicable at a much earlier date in the United States than in Canada. With the opening up of the great areas of agricultural lands in the western Provinces of the Dominion and the extension of the propaganda referred to, immigration increased until Canada is now one of the great immigrant-receiving countries of the world. During the period July 1, 1900, to March 31, 1909, a total of 1,244,597 immigrants were admitted to the Dominion, while during a closely corresponding period, July 1, 1900, to June 30, 1909, the total immigration to the United States was 7,753,816. Considering the population of the two countries, however, the movement to Canada was relatively much greater, the number of immigrants admitted during the period referred to being equal to 26.1 per cent of the Dominion's population in 1901, while the number entering the United States during the fiscal years 1900 to 1909 equaled 10.2 per cent of the population of the latter country in 1900.

The chief sources of Canadian immigration are the United States and the United Kingdom, the former having furnished 393,908, or 31.6 per cent, and the latter 502,264, or 40.4 per cent of the total number of immigrants admitted to the Dominion during the period referred to. During the same period Canada expended more money in promoting immigration from the United States than from the United Kingdom, the amounts being respectively $1,662,000 and $1,445,000. From 1901 to 1909, inclusive, 71.2 per cent of the total European immigration to Canada originated in those northern and western countries where the Canadian propaganda is carried on, while in the same years only 23.8 per cent of the European immigration to the United States came from the same countries. The large immigration from the British Isles to the Dominion is chiefly responsible for this result, but even where continental European immigration alone is considered, Canada receives relatively fewer immigrants from southern and eastern Europe than does the United States.

The movement of population from the United States to Canada and the counter movement from the Dominion to the States are treated in separate chapters. The latter movement is one of early origin, but immigration to Canada from the States is largely a development of recent years, having grown from 2,412 in 1897 to 59,926 in 1909 and 103,984 in the Canadian fiscal year ending March 31, 1910. In this report the movement from the States is discussed from the Canadian standpoint, but it is the purpose of the Commission to discuss the subject more fully in a subsequent report.

The Canadian immigration law is admirably adapted to carrying out the immigration policy of the Dominion. Under its terms no immigrants are specifically denied admission solely because of their race or origin, or because of the purpose for which they have come to Canada, but the discretion conferred upon officials charged with the administration of the law does make such discrimination entirely possible. With this discretionary authority Canadian officials are able to regulate the admission of immigrants according to the demand for immigrant labor in the Dominion at the time. Moreover, the Canadian immigration department is directed by officials who are largely responsible for the development of the Canadian system for promoting and regulating immigration, and who through ability and long experience have become experts in that field.

This report, which was prepared by Mr. W. W. Husband, one of the secretaries of the Commission, is intended primarily to cover the situation in Canada since 1900, during which time immigration and immigration control have become subjects of great importance in the Dominion. Wherever practicable, comparisons have been made between the immigration laws and systems of Canada and those of the United States, and their effect upon immigration to the two countries. According to the plans of the Commission this report will be followed by similar discussions of immigration conditions in Australia, New Zealand, and other immigrant receiving countries.

• In presenting this report the Immigration Commission desires to express its appreciation of the many courtesies extended to the Commission by the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Canadian minister of labor; Hon. F. C. F. O'Hara, deputy minister of trade and commerce and chief controller of Chinese immigration; Mr. W. D. Scott, Canadian superintendent of immigration; Mr. L. M. Fortier, deputy superintendent of immigration; Dr. Munro, Canadian medical inspector and immigration agent at Vancouver; Mr. John H. Clark, United States commissioner of immigration, and Mr. Everett J. Wallace, assistant United States commissioner of immigration, at Montreal; Dr. Percy L. Prentis, formerly United States immigrant inspector in charge at the port of Vancouver, and now inspector in charge at Chicago; and Mr. Ralph P. Harrison, United States immigrant inspector in charge at the port of Quebec.

THE IMMIGRATION SITUATION IN CANADA.

CHAPTER I.

CANADA'S IMMIGRATION POLICY.

The immigration question in Canada, always vital, has in recent years assumed a place of paramount importance among the problems of the Dominion. This is due largely to the development of western Canada and to the purpose of the government to populate that region with selected settlers. To further this end Canada has developed an immigration policy which is officially expressed as follows:^a

1. Money is expended and administration is exercised with the object of securing immigrants whose purpose in life is to occupy farm lands, either as owners, tenants, or laborers.

2. Money is voted and administration is exercised with the object of excluding those whose presence in Canada would tend to add to the congestion of towns and cities.

In pursuance of this policy, organized effort is made to secure immigrants from countries which furnish the classes or races most desired as settlers for the agricultural regions of the Dominion now under development, but no effort is made in those countries which are considered likely to furnish immigrants of the second class referred to.

The European countries favored by Canada in this regard are Great Britain and Ireland, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Denmark, Iceland, Finland, Norway, Sweden, and Switzerland, and in such of these countries as permit the promotion of emigration to a foreign country Canada conducts a systematic propaganda to induce or direct emigration of the desired classes to the Dominion. Canada's plan of action includes the maintenance of salaried agents in London, Liverpool, Birmingham, York, Glasgow, Aberdeen, Belfast, Exeter, Dublin, Paris, and Antwerp, and under the direction of these agents an extensive advertising campaign is carried on. Officially prepared circulars in several languages, attractively setting forth the inducements offered by Canada to agricultural immigrants, are distributed in large numbers; similar advertisements are carried in newspapers and other publications which circulate among the classes most desired; permanent exhibits of Canadian products are maintained in several cities, and traveling exhibits are sent to various sections of Great Britain and Ireland and to agricultural fairs and other exhibitions throughout the United Kingdom.

Another feature of the propaganda, and one which particularly indicates Canada's desire for immigrants, is the payment of a liberal bonus to several thousand so-called booking agents in the favored countries. These booking agents are for the most part local steamship ticket agents, and theoretically the bonus is allowed for the purpose of inducing such agents to favor Canada by directing thereto intended emigrants who otherwise might choose a different destination. The bonus paid is £1 ($4.86) on each person 18 years of age or over, and 10s. ($2.43) on persons between 1 and 18 years.^a In Great Britain it is paid upon tickets to Canada sold to British subjects who have for at least one year been engaged in the occupation of a farmer, farm laborer, gardener, stableman, carter, railway surfaceman, navy, or miner, and who signify their intention of following farming or railway construction work in Canada. Female domestic servants also are included.^b A like bonus is paid on similar classes of immigrants from France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Finland. During the fiscal years 1905 to 1909, inclusive, this bonus was paid on 16.5 per cent of all British immigrants, and on 11 per cent of all immigrants from continental Europe, admitted to Canada.

In England the Salvation Army is utilized as an agency to promote emigration to Canada, and grants of money are made to the army for that purpose. It is stated, however, that the Dominion government has no system of free or assisted passage to Canada, and that no immigrant is ever brought to Canada at the expense of the government.

For many years Canada has regarded the United States as a desirable field for immigration effort. The propaganda is conducted under the direction of an official designated as inspector of agencies and press agent, and general agents are stationed in sixteen cities. The efforts of these salaried representatives are supplemented by sub-agents, who are paid a commission of $3 per man, $2 per woman, and $1 per child on bona fide settlers induced by them to settle in western Canada. During the fiscal years 1905 to 1909, inclusive, this commission was paid on 5.6 per cent of all United States immigrants entering Canada. The subject of immigration to Canada from the United States is discussed at greater length elsewhere in this report.

The British press is relied upon as a factor in promoting emigration to Canada, through news articles relative to the progress and advantages of the Dominion, and also through the publication of letters from persons who have settled there. British newspaper writers and other publicity agents are encouraged to visit Canada, and it is stated that much desirable advertising has resulted.

Some years ago Canada inaugurated the plan of sending delegates to Great Britain in the interest of the immigration propaganda, and this practice has been continued. The origin and purpose of this movement is referred to as follows in the official report on immigration by the Deputy Minister of the Interior in 1903:^c

Those delegates, 55 in all, were selected as those having had most successful careers in agricultural pursuits in the West, and who could give their personal testimony regarding the different districts in which they reside. It was considered by the department that although strong efforts had been made to induce people from the British Isles to locate in Canada, the result had not been as satisfactory as might have been expected, and it was felt that a new method for reaching the class of people whom we are desirous of securing should be adopted. No scheme ever attempted by the department to encourage immigration has attracted greater attention or has proved as successful as the visit of these farmer delegates.

They left for England in the beginning of February last, and on an average were engaged for periods varying between six weeks and two months in visiting the various towns respectively assigned to them. The demand for information from the delegates was so great that many of them were compelled to remain for weeks at the government agencies. There is no doubt that the most effective work was done in this way, and that as a result no country in the world to-day is better known than Canada is in the old country. The delegates were brought in immediate contact with the people who contemplated removing to another country, and the information imparted by the delegates in these interviews has done more than any other means heretofore employed in removing the deep-rooted prejudices against settlement in Canada and in conveying a correct knowledge of the country. Their visits to the various towns created a most lively interest. They were appealed to by prospective settlers and their lectures and movements were reported by the papers throughout the country.

I certainly attribute very largely the increase in the immigration from the British Isles during the past year to the visit of these delegates, and the results thus obtained have more than compensated for the comparatively small expenditure of public money which it involved.

Concerning this feature of Canada's campaign to promote immigration, Mr. J. Obed Smith, assistant superintendent of emigration for Canada in London, says:^a

The continuance of the policy of sending successful farmer delegates to tell their personal story of success has been productive of excellent results throughout the British Isles, and I am of the opinion that the policy in question should be continued next season. Strive as the department does to prepare literature absolutely correct in every detail, there is, perhaps owing to competition from other colonies, a lingering opinion among intending immigrants that government literature requires to be fortified by the personal opinion of some actual settler or farmer from Canada, with whom they can converse.

IMMIGRATION EXPENDITURES.

During the fiscal years 1898 to 1908, inclusive, Canada's expenditures in promoting and regulating immigration aggregated $6,779,823. Of this amount, $2,500,432, or 36.9 per cent, was expended in Canada, and the remainder in the United States, the United Kingdom, and continental Europe. The geographical distribution of this expenditure by years is shown in the following table:

^a Report of Superintendent of Immigration, Canada, 1909, p. 64.

^b The Canadian fiscal year ended June 30 in the years 1898 to 1906 inclusive, and March 31 in 1907 and succeeding years.

Assuming that the amount of money expended in Canada represents the cost of regulating immigration, and the amount expended outside of Canada the cost of promoting immigration, it will be seen that the latter was 63.1 per cent of the total cost during the period considered.

The distribution by geographical divisions of expenditures outside of Canada is shown in the following table:

[Compiled from Immigration Facts and Figures, Canada, 1909.]

Country.	Expenditures outside of Canada.
	Total.	Per cent of total.
United States.....	$1, 936, 000	45. 2
United Kingdom.....	1, 643, 000	38. 4
Continental Europe.....	700, 400	16. 4
Total.....	4, 279, 400	100. 0

During the fiscal years 1901 to 1908, inclusive, a total of 1,097,689 immigrants were admitted to Canada. The total expenditures of the Dominion on account of immigration during the same period were $5,828,195.61, or $5.31 per immigrant admitted. Of this amount $2,151,795.61, or $1.96 per immigrant, was expended in Canada, or, as previously stated, in the regulation of immigration, while $3,676,400, or $3.35 per immigrant, was expended outside of Canada, or in the promotion of immigration.

The total immigration to Canada from the United States and the United Kingdom during the period above mentioned, compared with the expenditures by Canada in each country on account of immigration, is shown in the following table:

TABLE 3.—Immigration to Canada from the United States and the United Kingdom, and Canadian immigration expenditures in such countries, fiscal years 1901 to 1908.

[From Immigration Facts and Figures, Canada, 1909, and statistical table on page 16.]

Country.	Total immigration.	Total expenditure.	Amount per capita.
United States.....	333, 983	$1, 662, 000	$4. 98
United Kingdom.....	449, 363	1, 445, 000	3. 22

It will be noticed that during the period covered by the above table Canada expended a considerably greater sum in the United States in promoting immigration than was expended for the same purpose in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, combined, and also that the cost per immigrant was relatively much greater.

The expenditure per capita on immigrants to Canada from continental Europe during the eight years considered was approximately $1.99. The wide difference between per capita expenditures in the United States and the United Kingdom and such expenditures in continental Europe may be accounted for by the fact that Canada makes no so-called immigration effort in several European countries which nevertheless furnish annually a considerable number of immigrants to the Dominion. Moreover, the United States and Great Britain permit the open and unrestricted solicitation of immigration on the part of Canada, while, as previously stated, some European countries regarded by Canada as sources of desirable immigration do not tolerate a propaganda of that nature.

SOURCES OF CANADA'S IMMIGRATION.

It is apparent that at present Canada divides the emigrating races of the transoceanic world into three general groups, as follows: First, natives of the United Kingdom and of northern and western continental Europe; second, southern and eastern Europeans; third, the races of the Orient.

The government has a well-defined idea of the desirability of each group as settlers in Canada; and the Canadian immigration act, although excluding no one solely because of his race or nationality, seems to make possible an effective discrimination among them. As previously explained, every effort is made to induce persons of the first class to settle in Canada. Those of the second group, although admitted in rather large numbers, are not solicited, and, as will be shown later, more or less effective obstacles are placed in their way. Those of the third class are practically prohibited from coming by the Chinese immigration act, and by barriers erected under various provisions of the immigration law, which will later be discussed in detail.

How Canada has succeeded in attracting immigrants of the races or peoples desired is indicated by the following tables, which show in detail the racial or national composition of immigration to the Dominion during the past nine years, during which period the present system of control has been developed.

Canadian immigration statistics are generally recorded by race rather than country of birth, although, as will be seen, territorial rather than ethnological designations are employed to a considerable extent, and in some instances immigrants are designated by the religious sect with which they are affiliated. Therefore the following table, while not entirely comparable with United States immigration statistics, nevertheless gives a clear idea of the racial distribution of recent Canadian immigration.

NOTE.—During the fiscal year ending March 31, 1910, a total of 208,794 immigrants were admitted to Canada. Of these 103,984, or 49.8 per cent of the total, came from the United States; 70,151, or 33.6 per cent, from northern and western Europe; and 28,237, or 13.5 per cent, from southern and eastern Europe. (For discussion of immigration to Canada in the fiscal year 1910, see Appendix H.)

It appears from the above that during the nine years mentioned 78.4 per cent of the immigration to Canada consisted of races or peoples from the north and west of Europe and from the United States, 18.9 per cent of races or peoples from the south and east of Europe, and only 1.7 per cent was from Asiatic countries. What proportion of the immigration of favored classes was induced by Canada's efforts, and how many persons of the classes not favored were prevented from coming because of the indifferent attitude of Canada, or by the barriers erected against them, can not, of course, be determined.

As previously stated, during the fiscal years 1905 to 1909, inclusive, a bonus was paid on 16.5 per cent of the arrivals from the United Kingdom, on 11 per cent of those coming from continental Europe, and on 5.6 per cent of United States immigrants, but it is, of course, improbable that the bonus paid was the determining factor in each case involved.

Whether attributable to Canada's policy or to natural causes, it is noteworthy that so large a proportion of the European immigration to the Dominion during the period considered originated in countries where immigration effort is made. The result is even more striking when it is considered that the incentive to emigration, as measured by recent immigration to the United States, is much stronger in southern and eastern than in northern and western European countries. The following table, comparing recent European immigration to Canada and to the United States, clearly illustrates the point:

TABLE 10.—Total European immigration, including Syrian, to Canada and to the United States, fiscal years 1901 to 1909.

It will be seen that in the past nine years 71.2 per cent of European immigration to Canada was from the northern and western countries, while only 23.8 per cent of persons coming from Europe to the United States were from those sections. British immigration, however, was largely responsible for the preponderance of northern and western Europeans in the movement to Canada, for, as indicated by the above table, 74.6 per cent of the continental immigrants to the Dominion came from southern and eastern Europe and Syria. But even when continental Europe is considered separately it will be seen that there is a considerable racial difference in the composition of immigration to Canada and to the United States.

There is an even more striking difference in the composition of European immigration to Canada and to the United States for the year ending March 31, 1908, during which immigration to Canada reached its highest point, and the year ending June 30, 1907, when the greatest immigration to the United States was recorded, as will be seen from the following table:

TABLE 11.—Total European immigration, including Syrian, to Canada and to the United States in years specified.

[Compiled from statistical table furnished by Canadian immigration department and from reports of United States Commissioner-General of Immigration.]

United States (1907).....	227,851	971,608	19.0	81.0

While these results may be, and doubtless are, due in part to the difference in policy of the two nations whereby Canada encourages immigration from one section and in a measure discourages it from another, while the United States makes no distinction in that regard, it is altogether probable that the chief reason is of another nature. A large proportion of the immigrants from northern and western Europe are primarily seekers after land, and while the United States was able to present that attraction such immigrants came in large numbers. On the other hand, immigration from the south and east of Europe is essentially industrial, probably because of the fact that since immigration from that section began the demand in the United States has been for industrial workers. In Canada the situation is exactly reversed. The demand for industrial workers is not great, but the opportunities for agricultural settlers in the newly developed country to the west of Ontario are widely advertised, and northern Europeans have responded as they did when similar conditions existed in the United States.

OCCUPATIONS OF IMMIGRANTS.

In an official pamphlet intended for circulation in the United Kingdom, farmers, farm laborers, and female domestic servants are mentioned as the only persons the Canadian immigration department advises to emigrate to Canada. All others are advised to get definite assurances of employment in Canada before leaving home, and to have money enough to support them for a time in case of disappointment.^a The pamphlet referred to gives specific advice to persons of various occupations, and is quoted here to illustrate how the Canadian government attempts to promote immigration in accordance with the needs of the country, and also to show the means employed to acquaint intended British emigrants with conditions of employment in the Dominion.

Intending agriculturists, tenant farmers, farm laborers, market gardeners, gardeners, persons understanding the care of horses, cattle, and sheep, young men desiring agricultural experience, and female domestic servants, are advised to emigrate to Canada, and persons with capital are assured that unlimited openings are afforded.

On the other hand clerks, draftsmen, telegraph operators, shop assistants, governesses, nurses, etc.; are admonished not to emigrate unless proceeding to assured employment or to join friends.

No encouragement is held out to professional men, especially in cases where immediate employment is desired, and schoolmasters and teachers are warned not to emigrate on the chance of obtaining a situation. The pamphlet further states that there are few openings for civil engineers and architects at the present time, but that the demand for assistant surveyors in connection with new railway surveys is good and likely to so continue.

How successful the government has been in inducing the desired immigration, so far as the occupations of immigrants are concerned, is shown by the following table:

^a "Classes Wanted in Canada," issued by the authority of the Minister of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada, 1909, p. 31.

Of the total immigration to Canada during the years mentioned 38.6 per cent were classed as farmers or farm laborers, which classification, as noted, includes accompanying women and children. It will be seen that the United States was the chief source of agriculturists arriving in Canada during the period, 58.4 per cent of the total number being from that country, while only 29.6 per cent of the whole came from northern and western European countries.

As noted elsewhere, the present movement of population from the United States to Canada is largely composed of farmers and farm laborers and their families, 78.7 per cent of the total during the period covered by the above table being so classified. In the same three years only 23.7 per cent of the immigration from northern and western European countries was of the agricultural class. The widely different character of immigration from the two sources mentioned suggests that cities furnish the greater part of northern and western European immigration to Canada and a very small proportion of the immigration from the United States.

The occupations entered by immigrants after arrival in Canada would be a better index of the result of the government's efforts to secure permanent settlers for the land, but complete statistical data in this regard are not available. It is stated in a general way in reports of Canadian immigration officials that the great majority of immigrants engage in agricultural pursuits either as farmers or farm laborers, and without doubt this is the fact.

While it is impossible to state accurately how large a proportion of immigrants entering Canada engage in agricultural pursuits, some indication of this is furnished by the records of free land entries in western Canada.

HOMESTEAD ENTRIES.

From July 1, 1900, to March 31, 1909, 235,690 homesteads were entered for in the western provinces, and of this number 156,261, or more than 66 per cent, represent entries by immigrants, practically all of whom came from Europe and the United States. According to the record the average number of persons for each entry was 2.5, and therefore 390,654, or more than 31 per cent of the total immigration to Canada during the period specified, were involved. This does not take into account the large number of European immigrants who became farm laborers, or immigrants—particularly from the United States—who acquired railway and other land by purchase. The fact that nearly one-third of all immigrants become agriculturists through the medium of free lands alone supports the contention that Canada's efforts in this regard have resulted successfully.

The following table shows the distribution of the 156,261 homestead entries referred to among various immigrant groups:

There is a striking preponderance of homesteaders among immigrants from the United States as compared with those from other countries, nearly 45 per cent of the former being of that class. It will be noted that the English show the smallest percentage of homesteaders of any class of immigrants enumerated, while the percentage among immigrants from the British Isles, as a whole, is considerably smaller than among those designated under "Continental Europe" and "All others." The extent to which United States immigrants have contributed to the settlement of western Canada is shown by the fact that of all homestead entries made by immigrants during the period considered, nearly 45 per cent were made by settlers from the United States.

The relation of immigrant entries of the various classes to the total number of entries made during the time specified is shown by the following table:

IRISH IMMIGRATION.

In view of the large increase in the number of English and Scotch immigrants to Canada in recent years, it is noteworthy that Irish immigration to that country is comparatively small. In 1908 when the movement from Europe to Canada reached its greatest height, it included only 6,547 Irishmen to 91,412 English and Welsh and 22,223 Scotch, and in the nine years ending March 31, 1909, the total Irish immigration was only 30,184, or less than the Galician, Hebrew, or Russian immigration to Canada for the same period. It is evident that the Irish immigrant prefers the United States to Canada, for during the nine years ending June 30, 1908, 337,812 persons of that race landed in the United States. This tendency is peculiar to the Irish, for as far as English and Scotch immigration is concerned, Canada is a successful competitor of the United States, as will be seen from the following table:

TABLE 15.—Total immigration to Canada (nine years ending March 31, 1909) and to the United States (nine years ending June 30, 1908) from Great Britain and Ireland.

[Compiled from statistical table on p. 16 and reports of United States Commissioner-General of Immigration.]

Total	1,254,941	502,264	752,677	40.0	60.0

It will be noticed that the English and Welsh and the Scotch immigration to Canada has been somewhat larger than that to the United States during the past nine years, while more than eleven times as many Irish immigrants came to the United States as went to Canada during that time.

The relatively small Irish immigration to Canada as compared with the immigration of other Britons to that country can not be attributed to Canada's lack of effort, for the same systematic campaign to secure settlers for the Dominion is carried on alike in Ireland, Scotland, and England. Placards displayed in the Canadian Exhibit at the Dublin Exposition in 1907 indicate that Canada feels the successful competition of the United States in this regard, and attempts to turn the tide of immigration from that country to Canada.

Following are some of the placards referred to: ^a

One of the greatest surprises to United States farmers settling in Canada is the absence of cyclones and drought which they had to contend with in their own country.

If it is your intention to go to America, remember that United States farmers are going to Canada in great numbers. Canada offers to settlers better inducements than any other country in the world.

Canada will receive you with open arms instead of imposing on you an alien tax of $4 per head.

It may be asked: "Why do you use the great number of United States farmers going to western Canada as one of your principal advertisements?" Because it was this movement that woke up the people of the British Isles to the great possibilities of western Canada. Moreover, Canadians themselves only commenced through that great movement of United States farmers to appreciate the value of their own country.

T. P. O'Connor, esq., says in "P. T. O.", March 9, 1907: "No fewer than a quarter of a million of Americans are expected to reach Canada from these regions within the present year. And all the people who do go to western Canada are enthusiastic in their praises of the resources, the possibilities, the climate of the country. The old legend that you could find nothing there but arctic cold is exploded; you find, on the contrary, one of the most beautiful and temperate climates in the world, and people are growing rich almost overnight. Such is the demand for land; such is the immense migration."

A picture was displayed purporting to represent Nebraska farmers bound for Canada. In explanation of the illustration was the following legend:

This picture is reproduced from a photograph taken in Nebraska showing a large number of United States farmers moving to Canada.

BOY: I say, father, are we going to be Canadians when we get to Canada?

FATHER: Well, my boy, from what I have seen of that country, its rich lands, big crops, and where the people make their own laws and live up to them, to my mind it is a mighty good country to belong to.

Notwithstanding the efforts of Canada, however, the United States is still the choice of more than 90 per cent of the Irish immigrants landing in North America.

It is interesting to note in this connection that the foreign-born Irish element in the population of Canada has decreased steadily and rapidly in recent years. This is also true of the Irish-born population of the United States from 1890 to 1900, but the downward movement began later than in Canada, and the decrease has been relatively smaller. The following table illustrates the movement of Irish-born persons in Canada and the United States at recent census periods:

^a Commissioner William R. Wheeler's memoranda on investigation in Ireland.

TABLE 16.—Population of Irish birth in Canada and the United States in census years specified.

[Compiled from the Canada Year Book, 1908, and the United States census reports.]

It seems improbable that the marked decrease in the Irish-born population of Canada from 1871 to 1901 was entirely due to death, and, although no reliable data upon the subject are available, it may fairly be presumed that Irish emigration from Canada to the United States has been a factor in producing the result indicated. The table shows, however, that even in the United States there was a considerable downward movement in the foreign-born Irish population between 1890 and 1900.

JUVENILE IMMIGRATION.

The immigration of poor and homeless British children to Canada began many years ago, and is now encouraged and supervised, but not otherwise assisted, by the Dominion government. This juvenile immigration is chiefly recruited from the orphan or industrial homes of the British Isles. The children are sent to Canada by charitable and religious organizations, and are there distributed through various philanthropic homes and agencies. The majority of such children are placed in the families of farmers, and the demand for them far exceeds the supply. It is estimated that during the last fifty years nearly 60,000 juvenile immigrants have been transported to Canada from the British Isles.^a

The extent of this movement in recent years and also the extent of the demand for the immigrant children by Canadians are shown in the following table:

^a Report of Superintendent of Immigration, Canada, 1909, p. 89.

It is said that there formerly existed in Canada a deep-rooted prejudice against such juvenile immigration, but that this has almost entirely disappeared and there is now a great demand for these children. The foregoing table seems to fully substantiate the latter statement. According to official reports, the children are especially trained in the British industrial and philanthropic homes with a view to their final emigration to Canada. They are not, however, sent there against their will.

Upon landing in Canada the children are placed in receiving and distributing homes, located in different parts of the Dominion, and remain there until indentured to farmers or others. The guardianship of the home over the children is continued to a greater or less degree until a period of apprenticeship is passed, and the children are taught to rely on the homes for advice and assistance. Agents of the homes visit the indentured children periodically. In turn the Canadian government exercises supervision over the receiving and distributing homes and, in a manner, looks after the welfare of the children in their foster homes. This work is carried on under the direction of an official designated as chief inspector of British immigrant children and receiving homes.

ASSISTED IMMIGRATION.

In addition to the juvenile immigration elsewhere referred to, Canada annually receives a considerable number of British, and particularly English, immigrants, who, by private charity or state aid, have been sent from the mother country. Until last year the Canadian government had practically no part in the selection of such immigrants abroad, and as a result many were rejected at Canadian ports or deported after landing. In 1908 Mr. J. Bruce Walker, assistant superintendent of emigration for Canada in London, made a report upon the activities of the various philanthropic and charitable societies engaged in promoting emigration to Canada. Because of the general interest of the subject, this report is printed in full elsewhere.^a According to the report 12,336 persons were sent to Canada in the calendar year 1907 by London charitable societies alone. As immigration to Canada is recorded by fiscal rather than calendar years, it is impossible to exactly compare the number of assisted immigrants with the total immigration for any stated period; but it is interesting to note that the above number is equal to nearly 30 per cent of the total English immigration to Canada in the fiscal period of nine months ending March 31, 1907, or more than 13 per cent of such immigration in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1908. These figures do not include state-aided and rate-aided immigrants, which classes are described in Mr. Walker's report as follows:

These are the products of the distress committees and of the workhouses. The distress committees are bodies in large centers of population, permitted under the terms of the unemployed workmen's act to levy a small rate as a tax upon the public for the emigration and for provision by employment, or otherwise, of the unemployed in such communities. * * * The distress committees usually operate through some recognized booking agency, providing the fares for the transportation, and leaving such booking agency to provide the employment on the Canadian side. There is no supervision of an official character exercised over these emigrants.

^a Appendix F.

No data are available relative to the number of state-aided and rate-aided emigrants sent to Canada.

The general character of emigrants assisted to leave England by the various agencies above mentioned is stated in the report referred to.

Mr. Walker's report resulted in prompt action by the Canadian government, for on April 18, 1908, there became effective an order in council which prohibited the landing in Canada of any person whose passage had been paid wholly or in part by any charitable organization or out of public moneys unless the emigration to Canada of such person had been approved by the Canadian emigration authorities in London.^a This action on the part of the governor in council affords another illustration of the adaptability of the Canadian immigration act to meet emergencies.

CHAPTER II.

IMMIGRATION TO CANADA FROM THE UNITED STATES.

For many years Canada has made persistent and systematic effort to promote emigration from the United States to the Dominion. That the propaganda has resulted successfully is indicated by the fact that during the period from July 1, 1901, to March 31, 1909, the United States led all other countries in the number of immigrants furnished to Canada. England and Wales combined was the nearest competitor in this regard, as will be seen from the general statistical table on page 16.

RECENT IMMIGRATION.

The contribution of the countries mentioned to Canadian immigration during the period specified as compared with all other countries is shown by the following table:

TABLE 18.—Total immigration to Canada, 1901 to 1909, by race or country.

[Compiled from statistical table furnished by the Canadian immigration department.]

Race or country.	Total immigration.	Per cent of total.
English and Welsh.....	377,801	30.4
United States.....	393,908	31.6
All others.....	472,888	38.0
Total.....	1,244,597	100.0

The importance of the United States as a field for immigration effort by Canada is clearly understood when it is considered that in recent years nearly one-third of the total immigration into the Dominion came from the States. Moreover, the class of immigrants furnished by this country is, according to Canadian officials, just the class desired to accomplish the government's purpose of developing the agricultural and other resources of western Canada.

How the campaign to induce emigration from the United States is conducted is shown in the following extract from the annual report for 1908 of Mr. W. J. White, inspector of agencies and press agent, who directs the Canadian propaganda in this country:^a

There is not a State in the Union in which Canada is not advertised. The offices of the government are located in the best agricultural sections, with a view to being in easy touch with the surrounding country so as to make it possible for the agents to cover their respective districts with the least trouble. The offices are located as follows:

M. V. McInnes, Sixth Avenue Theater Block, Detroit, Mich.
 C. A. Laurier, Marquette, Mich.
 Jas. N. Grieve, Spokane, Wash.
 J. S. Crawford, 125 West Ninth street, Kansas City, Mo.
 T. O. Currie, 108 Third street, second floor, Milwaukee, Wis.
 J. M. McLachlan, box 626, Watertown, S. Dak.
 E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson street, St. Paul, Minn.
 W. V. Bennett, 215 Board of Trade Building, Omaha, Nebr.
 Chas. Pilling, Clifford Block, Grand Forks, N. Dak.
 H. M. Williams, 413 Gardner Building, Toledo, Ohio.
 C. J. Broughton, 412 Merchants' Loan and Trust, Chicago.
 Benj. Davies, room 6, Dunn Block, Great Falls, Mont.
 W. H. Rogers, 316 Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis.
 Thos. Hetherington, 73 Tremont street, Boston.
 Thos. Duncan, 30 Syracuse Bank Building, Syracuse, N. Y.
 Geo. A. Hall, 210 House Building, Pittsburg, Pa.

The work of these agents is very much the same in character. At almost all the offices there are one or two assistants, whose duty it is to look after the correspondence, issue the certificate which entitles the applicant to the reduced rates afforded by the Canadian railroads to the actual settler, and give to the caller all available information. At the end of the week the assistant keys the letters received according to post-offices and districts. The agent then selects the district that he should visit during the next or coming weeks and advises one or more of the correspondents that he will meet them and their friends at some given place on a set date, or if this is not possible, when necessary he visits the individual correspondent. He carries with him samples of the grains and grasses of central Canada, has with him a supply of literature, and quotes rates from their home to such a point in western Canada as they may desire to go to. He assists the intending settler by securing him the lowest freight rates for his stock and effects, advises him the best way in which to get cars, and afterwards follows the course of the car to its destination. Very often the male members of the family move in advance of those dependent. When this occurs it is the duty of the agent to assist the family in every way possible in order to get a start.

During the fall of the year exhibits of grain and grasses, roots, vegetables, etc., with which the agent has supplied himself, are taken from fair to fair and tastefully arranged, then the agent's time is pretty well occupied in this way for from two to three months. A chain-letter system is adopted, which is very effective in getting the names of those in a neighborhood who would likely be interested in Canada. To the names thus secured literature and circulars are sent, and it is surprising the amount of effective work that is done in this way. It is sometimes the case that the manner in which one State may be worked will differ from another State. In each case, however, the agents keep me advised as to what they feel is the best course to pursue, and I am always prepared to accept and act upon such suggestions as may be safely adopted. In some cases it is found that the management of a fair does not care to allow our exhibits to be placed, but these cases are so rare that it is scarcely necessary to refer to them. In most cases there is no difficulty whatever in securing space, and in others managements have requested that we exhibit, offering a space free of charge. Generally, however, we rent a space in some building, and sometimes, unable to do this, ground space is rented. On this ground a temporary structure is sometimes erected, and in other cases a tent is secured in which exhibits are placed. It is often necessary, in order to interest people in a certain district, to secure the assistance of one or two or more responsible men. Various ways are adopted in order to do this. One of the best methods is to secure transportation for these people and send them through to our western provinces to report to their friends. The agent fills up his report very carefully, and in this way gets in touch with a good class of people. Again, parties are accompanied as far as the boundary line, as there is a possibility that in passing through some of the Western States towns some of the people who may have been directed by the efforts of local agents to Canada may become interested in American lands.

I referred in my last report to the inducements held out by Texas land agents. The railroad rates from St. Paul, Chicago, Des Moines, Omaha, Kansas, Indianapolis, and other points to Texas lands were much lower than those to Canada. The Western Passenger Association, however, has adjusted this, so that the rates are now more even; therefore some of this difficulty has been overcome. There is still opposition, and considerable of it is owing to the fact that Texas lands are reasonably low in price and an army of agents are at work throughout the country setting forth the advantages in Texas from a settler's standpoint.

Besides the inducements held out by landowners in Texas, those offered by holders in Colorado, Montana, Wyoming, and South Dakota were sufficient to arouse a disturbing sentiment amongst possible movers and divert the attention of land seekers. These lands do not carry the advantages that Canadian lands do, but the desire to keep within one's own country is something that is hard to overcome. There is the wish to know what it has to offer before going outside. It is true that Canada has the "last best west," but there is sufficient of the American west (whatever the character of the land may be) to keep the department and its corps of agents busy in the presentation of the superior advantages and opportunities afforded by Canada.

In addition to the salaried agents mentioned above, the Canadian immigration department is represented in the United States by a large number of subagents in different parts of the country, who, as previously stated, are paid a bonus of $3 per man, $2 per woman, and $1 per child on bona fide settlers induced by them to settle in western Canada.^a Extensive newspaper advertising is one of the chief features of the Canadian campaign in the United States. Concerning this Mr. White says:^b

The country weekly and the farm journals are the principal mediums used. It is found that they reach the class of people mostly desirable as settlers. The city daily and magazine have not been used to any extent, not being found as valuable for reaching the farming public as the others just mentioned. Nearly 7,000 newspapers were contracted with.

In recent years the Canadian authorities have encouraged tours of inspection through western Canada by United States editorial associations and newspaper writers generally, and Canadian rail-ways have cooperated in making such tours practicable. As a result articles and editorials relating to Canada have appeared in many newspapers in different parts of the country. It is stated that the publicity gained by this method has materially aided Canadian agents in the campaign to induce emigration to Canada from the United States.

Concerning the methods employed, and the success of Canada's immigration propaganda in the United States, Mr. White says:^b

It has not been considered advisable to make any changes in the method of advertising. The plan adopted in the early stages of the work, which has brought the number of settlers up from less than 1,000 to nearly 60,000 in the space of nine years, has been considered good enough to adhere to. No other plan can be submitted that would be more effective.

Mr. White's reference to the growth of immigration to Canada from the United States is practically substantiated by statistics, as appears from the following statement showing such immigration since January 1, 1897:^c

Few data are available showing the racial composition of the emigration movement from the United States to Canada. Canadian official reports indicate that a considerable proportion of the emigrants from the middle western States are Germans, Scandinavians, Finns, and others of non-English speaking races who had previously come to the United States as immigrants. Canada has made special effort to induce former Canadians, and particularly French-Canadians, to repatriate themselves, with some measure of success. It is, nevertheless, probable that the majority of those composing the movement to Canada are native-born American farmers, who, through the Canadian propaganda, are attracted to the Dominion by the opportunity to secure free or cheap lands. Many of the emigrants dispose of their land or other property in the United States before emigrating, and Canadian officials estimate that in the fiscal year 1909 the United States immigrants brought to Canada, in stock, cash, and effects, upwards of $60,000,000.^a

As already stated, the middle western States are the chief source of the emigration to Canada. Data covering any considerable period of time are not available, but the following table will show which States were the largest contributors to the movement in the fiscal years 1907 to 1909:

Probably no other considerable movement of population from one country to another at the present time is so largely composed of agricultural people as is the emigration from the United States to Canada. As shown by the table on page 21, 120,450, or more than 78 per cent of the total number going to Canada in 1907, 1908, and 1909, were classed as farmers or farm laborers, which includes, also, accompanying members of families, while less than 23 per cent of all other immigrants to Canada during the same period were of those classes. Of the races coming to the United States as immigrants during the fiscal years 1899 to 1908, inclusive, the percentage of farmers and farm laborers was highest among the Roumanians, it being 55.8 per cent of the total immigration of that race, while among all immigrants to the United States in that period the percentage of farmers and farm laborers was 16.^a United States statistics relative to occupations of immigrants, however, do not include accompanying women and children. It is probably true that the great majority of immigrants to the United States change occupation in coming here, the opportunity to do so being the main incentive to their immigration. The movement from the United States to Canada differs in this regard, however, for, like earlier migrations westward in the States, it is largely a movement from farm to farm, which in this instance means removal to a foreign country. While the Canadian immigration propaganda in the United States is by no means confined to the agricultural classes, practically the only inducement offered to all classes is free or cheap land, and probably the majority of the general laborers, mechanics, etc., who emigrate to Canada enter agricultural pursuits.

HOMESTEAD ENTRIES.

Nearly 45 per cent of the immigrants from the United States to Canada from 1900 to 1909 were homesteaders, and they made 70,182 free homestead entries, or 29.8 per cent of the total number of such entries made in the western Provinces during that period.^b

In the year ending December 31, 1909, a total of 11,976 free homestead entries were made in Canada by persons coming from the United States. The distribution of these entries according to the State or Territory from which the homesteaders emigrated is shown by the following table:

It will be seen from the foregoing table that every State and Territory in the Union, except Delaware and Mississippi, was represented, but that more than one-half of the total number of entries were made by emigrants from North Dakota and Minnesota. During the month of January, 1910, 978 homestead entries were made in Canada by immigrants from the United States, as compared with 342 entries by such immigrants in January, 1909.

It is unnecessary to comment on the importance of immigrants from the United States as factors in developing the agricultural resources of Canada. Numerically they already form a considerable part of the population of the western Provinces, and, according to Canadian officials, their experience and training in agricultural pursuits, gained in the United States, are of great value to the Dominion.

EARLIER IMMIGRATION.

Reliable data relative to the emigration movement from the United States to Canada prior to 1901 are not available. The Canadian census returns, however, shed some light upon the question as far as natives of the United States are concerned, by revealing the number of such persons in Canada in the census years 1871, 1881, 1891, and 1901, as shown by the following table:

a Census not taken in 1871.

b Decrease.

c Includes territory now included in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

d Census not taken in 1871-1891.

It will be noted that the Province of Ontario has led all others in the number of persons born in the United States, but that the number was approximately the same at each census year. The same is essentially true of all the eastern Provinces except Quebec. In that Province the increase was insignificant until during the decade 1891-1901. The increase in that period was, in all probability, largely due to the emigration from New England of American-born children of French Canadian parentage. The table indicates that the emigration of natives of the United States to western Canada developed to a considerable extent during the ten years prior to 1901. The numbers, however, are small compared with emigration from the United States to Canada in recent years, and the Canadian census of 1911 may be expected to show a large increase in the native United States element in Canada's population.

THE RETURN MOVEMENT.

It is impossible to state what proportion of the immigration to Canada from the United States is permanent. In practically all larger immigration movements of the present time, however, there is a relatively large return movement, and it is probable that a considerable per cent of the United States immigrants settling in Canada eventually resume a residence in the United States. This statement is substantiated by the following extract from the latest annual report of John H. Clark, United States Commissioner of Immigration in Canada. Mr. Clark says: ^a

* * * there is an element in the travel from Canada to the United States, in which I feel our bureau will be especially interested, reference being had to citizens of our own country who, having settled in Canada, return to again take up their residence in the United States. Commencing with January 1 of the current year, a record has been compiled, showing that 6,869 of such citizens were interviewed by our officers during the past six months, and as containing important information, it has been directed that a similar record be obtained in the future. As the foregoing record covered that period of the year when the movement would naturally be north-bound, I feel it perfectly safe to say that not less than 15,000 American citizens returned from Canada within the year to resume residence in the United States.

CANADIAN EXPENDITURES IN THE UNITED STATES.

As shown elsewhere^b the Canadian immigration department expended $1,936,000 in the United States during the fiscal years 1898 to 1908, inclusive. This amount was $293,000 more than was expended by the department in promoting immigration from the United Kingdom during the same period, and only $564,432 less than the total expenditures of the department in Canada.

The amount expended by the Canadian immigration department in the United States in the fiscal years 1901 to 1908, inclusive, compared with the immigration into Canada from the United States during the same period, is shown by the following table:

^a Annual Report United States Commissioner-General of Immigration, 1909, p. 137.

As previously stated, the Canadian government employs in the United States a large number of subagents who are paid a small commission or bonus on bona fide settlers induced by them to settle in western Canada,^a but the commission paid for this service is somewhat smaller than the bonus allowed to booking agents in the United Kingdom and other European countries. As a rule, subagents in the United States are not continuously employed in the work of inducing emigration to Canada, their service in this connection being incidental to other occupations.

The number and per cent of immigrants from the United States, the United Kingdom, and continental Europe, on whom a bonus was paid from 1905 to 1909, inclusive, is shown by the following table:

It will be noticed that the percentage of immigrants from the United States on whom a bonus is paid is much smaller than in the case of the British and other Europeans, and that in every instance the percentage of immigrants on whom a bonus was paid was considerably smaller in 1909 than in 1905, the decrease being especially marked in the case of continental Europeans.

CHAPTER III.

IMMIGRATION TO THE UNITED STATES FROM CANADA.

No reliable data are available to show the extent of immigration to Canada from the United States for any considerable period prior to 1901. That such immigration, or at least permanent immigration, was, however, relatively small is indicated by the fact that in 1901 there were only 127,899 persons of United States birth in the Dominion.^a

On the other hand, Canada has for a long time contributed largely to the population of the United States. As early as 1850 there were, according to the census of that year, 147,711 natives of Canada in this country. Each succeeding census showed a large increase in this number until in 1900 there were nearly one-fourth as many native-born Canadians in the United States as in Canada.

The total number of natives of Canada in that country and in the United States in corresponding census years was as follows:

Native-born Canadians in Canada:^b

1871.....	2,892,763
1881.....	3,715,492

1880.....	717,157

While the figures relative to Canadians in the United States do not of course represent the actual movement of population from the Dominion, they do show that Canada was an important source of immigration to the United States during the period considered.

The growth and geographical distribution of the Canadian-born element in the population of the United States in census years since 1870 are shown in the following table:

In the United States censuses of 1890 and 1900 Canadian-born persons were divided into two classes, French and English, the latter classification being based on language rather than race, and including of course persons of Scotch and Irish as well as of English descent. The number and geographical distribution of these elements in the population are shown in the following table:

The above tables, however, indicate nothing concerning the many transoceanic immigrants to Canada who eventually settled in the United States. Although no statistical data exist to prove the assertion, it is a well-known fact that in the past a great many European immigrants to Canada have later emigrated from the Dominion to the States. This is particularly true of the English, Irish, and Scotch, but in more recent years the newer immigrant races have to a greater or less extent joined in the movement.

During the past few years the United States Bureau of Immigration has collected statistics relative to aliens entering the United States from Canada for the purpose of taking up a permanent residence here, and the results show that the movement continues in spite of the fact that Canada is now one of the chief immigrant receiving countries of the world.

The following table shows the extent of the emigration movement from Canada to the United States in 1908 and 1909.

a Less than 0.05 of 1 per cent.

The above table includes native-born Canadians as well as former immigrants to Canada, and although the proportion of each is known, it is not possible with the data at hand to distinguish between them as regards "race, people, or descent."

The records of the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization for 1908 show that, of the 43,805 immigrants from Canada admitted to the United States in that year, 13,052 were native Canadians and 30,753 were foreign-born residents of Canada. Of the 53,448 immigrants admitted from Canada in 1909, 24,118 were native Canadians and 29,330 were foreign-born.

It should be clearly understood that those persons classified as foreign-born were former immigrants to Canada who had acquired a residence in the Dominion, and that the classification does not include persons in transit through Canada to the United States.

While it is not possible with the data at hand to classify according to their nativity the elements enumerated under "race, people, or descent" in the above table, it is safe to assume that the natives of Canada previously referred to were for the most part persons of English, French, Irish, and Scotch stock.

In comparing the immigration of the two years considered, a large increase in the Canadian French element in 1909 is noted. This is no doubt accounted for by an increased demand for industrial workers in New England during that year.

A noteworthy feature of the immigration to the United States from Canada in 1909 is the great relative decrease in the number of Asiatics admitted. It will be noted that in 1908 the Japanese and East Indians or Hindus formed 7.7 per cent of the total immigration from Canada, while in 1909 they formed only 0.6 per cent of such immigration. While this fact is interesting as indicating a falling off in Asiatic immigration, it is chiefly significant when it is considered that the decrease followed the practical exclusion of such immigrants from Canada,^a thus illustrating the effect upon the United States of Canada's control of immigration.

The occupations of Canadian immigrants to the United States in the two years under consideration are shown in the following table.

TABLE 27.—Occupations of Canadian immigrants to the United States in fiscal years 1908 and 1909.

^a Including women and children.

The above table is chiefly interesting as showing the relatively small proportion of farmers and farm laborers entering the United States from Canada when compared with the large percentage of that class among persons emigrating from the United States to Canada. As stated elsewhere, more than 78 per cent of the latter movement is composed of farmers and farm laborers and their families, while only 9.4 per cent of those entering the United States from Canada, excluding persons of no occupation, are so classed. The large proportion of skilled laborers among the Canadian immigrants to the United States is also noteworthy.

In many respects the immigration from Canada is similar to that originating in Europe. There is the same preponderance of males, and, like immigration from all sources, the great majority of the immigrants are from 14 to 45 years of age. There is a large percentage of illiterates among the immigrants from Canada, but this is chiefly accounted for by the presence of south and east Europeans. These facts are shown in detail in the following table:

^a Chapter V.

Concerning the cause of the emigration movement from Canada to the United States, Commissioner Clark in his annual report for 1909, elsewhere quoted, says^a:

Should those interested in statistics inquire for a cause for the above exodus of Canadians to the United States, it may be stated, as a result of careful questioning for manifest purposes, that, in many instances, the claim is made that native workmen are being replaced by those brought into Canada under the Government's immigration policy, and to accept this explanation is not difficult when we recall conditions existing in the United States, where in many of the great manufacturing centers, particularly in the New England States, native help has been entirely superseded by the foreign article.

CHAPTER IV.

THE CANADIAN IMMIGRATION LAW.

Notwithstanding the fact that Canada makes persistent efforts to promote immigration its law relative to the exclusion of undesirable immigrants is hardly less rigid than that of the United States. In fact the classes excluded under the laws of both countries are nearly identical, as will be seen from the following comparison of such sections of the Canadian law as relate to exclusion with Section 2 of the United States law. Both the Canadian and United States laws are printed in full elsewhere.^{a b}

CANADIAN LAW, SECS. 26-30.

26. No immigrant shall be permitted to land in Canada, who is feeble-minded, an idiot, or an epileptic, or who is insane, or who has had an attack of insanity within five years; nor shall any immigrant be so landed who is deaf and dumb, or dumb, blind, or infirm unless he belongs to a family accompanying him or already in Canada, and which gives security, satisfactory to the Minister, and in conformity with the regulations in that behalf, if any, for his permanent support if admitted into Canada.

27. No immigrant shall be permitted to land in Canada who is afflicted with a loathsome disease or with a disease which is contagious or infectious and which may become dangerous to the public health or widely disseminated, whether such immigrant intends to settle in Canada or only to pass through Canada to settle in some other country: Provided, That if such disease is one which is curable within a reasonably short time, the immigrant suffering therefrom may, subject to the regulations in that behalf, if any, be permitted to remain on board where hospital facilities do not exist on shore, or to leave the vessel for medical treatment, under such regulations as may be made by the Minister.

28. No person shall be permitted to land in Canada who is a pauper, or destitute, a professional beggar, or vagrant, or who is likely to become a public charge. * * *

UNITED STATES LAW, SEC. 2.

2. That the following classes of aliens shall be excluded from admission into the United States: All idiots, imbeciles, feeble-minded persons, epileptics, insane persons and persons who have been insane within five years previous; persons who have had two or more attacks of insanity at any time previously; paupers; persons likely to become a public charge; professional beggars; persons afflicted with tuberculosis or with a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease; persons not comprehended within any of the foregoing excluded classes who are found to be and are certified by the examining surgeon as being mentally or physically defective, such mental or physical defect being of a nature which may affect the ability of such alien to earn a living; persons who have been convicted of or admit having committed a felony or other crime or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude; polygamists, or persons who admit their belief in the practice of polygamy; anarchists, or persons who believe in or advocate the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States, or of all government, or of all forms of law, or the assassination of public officials; prostitutes, or women or girls coming into the United States for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose; persons who procure or attempt to bring in prostitutes or women or girls for the purpose of prostitution or for any other immoral purpose; persons herein-

29. No immigrant shall be permitted to land in Canada who has been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude, or who is a prostitute, or who procures or brings or attempts to bring into Canada, prostitutes or women for purposes of prostitution.

30. The Governor in Council may, by proclamation or order, whenever he considers it necessary or expedient, prohibit the landing in Canada of any specified class of immigrants or of any immigrants who have come to Canada otherwise than by continuous journey from the country of which they are natives or citizens and upon through tickets purchased in that country.

after called contract laborers, who have been induced or solicited to migrate to this country by offers or promises of employment or in consequence of agreements, oral, written or printed, express or implied, to perform labor in this country of any kind, skilled or unskilled; those who have been, within one year from the date of application for admission to the United States, deported as having been induced or solicited to migrate as above described; any person whose ticket or passage is paid for with the money of another, or who is assisted by others to come, unless it is affirmatively and satisfactorily shown that such person does not belong to one of the foregoing excluded classes, and that said ticket or passage was not paid for by any corporation, association, society, municipality, or foreign government, either directly or indirectly; all children under sixteen years of age, unaccompanied by one or both of their parents, at the discretion of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor or under such regulations as he may from time to time prescribe: Provided, That nothing in this Act shall exclude, if otherwise admissible, persons convicted of an offense purely political, not involving moral turpitude: Provided, further, That the provisions of this section relating to the payments for tickets or passage by any corporation, association, society, municipality, or foreign government shall not apply to tickets or passage of aliens in immediate and continuous transit through the United States to foreign contiguous territory: And provided further, That skilled labor may be imported if labor of like kind unemployed can not be found in this country: And provided further, That the provisions of this law applicable to contract labor shall not be held to exclude professional actors, artists, lecturers, singers, ministers of any religious denomination, professors for colleges or seminaries, persons belonging to any recognized learned profession, or persons employed strictly as personal or domestic servants.

Although the phraseology employed differs somewhat in the exclusion provisions of the two laws above quoted, it is apparent that both are designed to exclude practically the same classes of physical, mental, and moral defectives and delinquents.

The Canadian law, however, contains no provision regarding polygamists, anarchists, or contract laborers, while such persons are specifically excluded by the United States law. Assisted immigrants also are debarred by the United States and not by the Canadian law, but, as stated elsewhere, persons of this class have been added to the list of immigrants recognized by Canada as undesirable, through an order of the governor-general in council.^a There is a radical difference, noted elsewhere, between the attitude of Canada and the provisions of the United States law with regard to the admission of so-called contract laborers.^a

There is now before the Canadian Parliament a bill proposing several more or less important amendments to the present immigration act. This was introduced by the Hon. Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior, on January 19, 1910, and being a government bill it presumably represents the ideas of the immigration authorities. Because of this fact the text of the bill is published in full in this report.^b No very radical changes in the law, however, are proposed by the bill. By its terms the exclusion provisions of the present law are extended to cover imbeciles and epileptics, which classes are now excluded under the United States law; pimps, or persons living on the avails of prostitution; immigrants to whom money has been given or loaned for the purpose of enabling them to qualify for landing in Canada; immigrants whose passage to Canada has been paid wholly or in part by any charitable organization, or out of public moneys, unless it is shown that the authority in writing of the superintendent of immigration, or in case of persons coming from Europe, the authority in writing of the assistant superintendent of emigration for Canada, in London, has been obtained for the landing in Canada of such persons, and that such authority has been acted upon within a period of sixty days thereafter.

The provision relative to assisted immigration just quoted merely proposes to enact into law the already effective order in council to which reference has been made.^c

The present Canadian immigration law provides that boards of inquiry may be convened to decide upon the case of any immigrant seeking admission to Canada,^d but no such board has ever been appointed.^e The immigration bill now before the Canadian Parliament provides for the appointment of a permanent board of inquiry "for the summary determination of all cases of immigrants or passengers seeking to enter Canada or detained for any cause * * *." At the present time the admission or rejection of immigrants to Canada at Canadian ports is determined by the immigration officials, and, as stated elsewhere, medical officers of the service exercise great authority in this regard.^f Although alike in most particulars, there is one important difference between the proposed Canadian law and the United States law,^g relative to procedure before boards of inquiry. Under the former it is proposed that immigrants shall have the right to be represented by counsel whenever any evidence or testimony is received by the board,^h while no such right is granted by the United States law. In the matter of appeals from decisions of boards of inquiry, the proposed Canadian law and the United States law are nearly identical.ⁱ

REJECTIONS AT PORTS OF ENTRY.

Observations at Canadian ports indicate that, generally speaking, the inspection of immigrants, both medical and otherwise, under the Canadian law is less rigid than under the United States law, which statement is substantiated, in part at least, by the record of rejections in 1908 under the respective laws, as shown by the following table:

TABLE 29.—Total immigrants admitted and rejected under Canadian and United States laws, fiscal year 1908.

[Compiled from reports of Superintendent of Immigration, Canada, and reports of United States Commissioner-General of Immigration.]

Country.	Admitted.	Rejected.	Proportion rejected.
Canada.....	262,469	1,002	1 to 262
United States.....	782,820	10,907	1 to 72

An exact comparison in this regard is impossible, because the laws of the two countries differ somewhat as to excluded classes. The principal difference to be considered in this connection is the United States contract labor provision, under which 1,932 aliens were excluded in the year 1908. This does not seriously affect the comparison, however, for disregarding the number of contract laborers excluded, the proportion of other classes excluded to those admitted to the United States in the year mentioned was 1 to 87. Therefore it is fair to assume that under the United States laws the proportion of comparable exclusions in the year mentioned was three times as great as under the Canadian act.

A study of exclusions by classes of immigrants under the Canadian and United States laws strikingly illustrates the effect of Canada's policy of discrimination between immigrants from different sections of Europe as compared with the result of the nondiscriminating policy of the United States in this regard, as will be seen by the following table:

TABLE 30.—European immigrants, including Syrian, admitted and rejected under the Canadian and the United States laws in 1908, by race or people.

[Compiled from reports of Superintendent of Immigration, Canada, and reports of United States Commissioner-General of Immigration.]

Race or people.	Canada.			United States.
	Admitted.	Rejected.	Proportion rejected.	Admitted.	Rejected.	Proportion rejected.
North and west European, including Icelandic.....	133,136	152	1 to 876	239,981	2,263	1 to 106
Other European, including Syrian....	54,600	395	1 to 138	506,136	6,282	1 to 81

While not nearly so pronounced as in the case of Canada, there is apparently a discrimination on the part of the United States against immigrants from southern and eastern Europe, but this is doubtless entirely due to the fact that a preponderance of certain excludable classes, such as contract laborers and persons afflicted with loathsome or dangerous contagious diseases, comes from that section, and not to a discriminatory policy with regard to races or peoples, as such.

On the other hand, it must be assumed that the large proportion of rejections among south and east European immigrants to Canada, compared with the number of north and west Europeans debarred, is due almost entirely to the fact that Canada discriminates in favor of the latter. The same causes which obtain in the United States, as above stated, may account in a small degree for the result in Canada, and it is possible that the more or less definite system of selection exercised by Canadian officials abroad may have some effect in this regard, but in the main the difference is undoubtedly due to Canada's official attitude toward the classes mentioned.

A medical officer of the Canadian immigration service is now stationed at New York for the purpose of examining arriving immigrants destined to Canada. In the fiscal year ending March 31, 1909, this officer rejected 131 such immigrants, or 1 in every 65 arriving, a considerably larger proportion than was rejected under the United States law for the corresponding year.^a DISCRETIONARY AUTHORITY GRANTED OFFICIALS.

The most striking feature of the Canadian immigration law, and the one in which it differs most widely from the United States law, is its flexibility, or adaptability to emergencies or changed conditions. The Canadian law confers almost unlimited power on the governor in council in matters respecting immigration. In fact, it would seem from the terms of the law that the administration could, if deemed desirable, not only prohibit any particular class of immigration, but practically prohibit all immigration to Canada.

The Canadian law and policy already developed under the law in this regard are clearly illustrated by reference to sections 10, 20, and 30 of the immigration act^b and to instances of procedure under such sections.

Section 10 above referred to is as follows:

The Governor in Council may, on the recommendation of the Minister, make such orders and regulations, not inconsistent with this Act, as are considered necessary or expedient for the carrying out of this Act, according to its true intent and meaning, and for the better attainment of its object.

In practice this section has evidently assumed an importance beyond what is suggested by a casual reference to its terms, as will be seen by an order of the governor in council dated May 27, 1908, which is here presented in full because it so clearly illustrates the case in point.^c

Whereas a considerable number of European immigrants arrive in Canada by way of United States Atlantic and Pacific seaports, coming in by rail from port of landing in the United States, many of whom are of the classes prohibited by the Immigration Act from landing in Canada, and are for this reason or for causes arising within a period of two years of their arrival in Canada deportable under the Act;

And whereas upon the Superintendent of Immigration seeking to deport such persons, the railroad companies responsible for carrying them across the border have pleaded inability to take them back on the Superintendent's order, for the reason that the persons sought to be deported were not legally admissible into the United States, and would not be admitted into that country, except for transit to port of landing and immediate delivery into the custody of the steamship company responsible for taking them back to the port or place from which they were brought; -

^a Report of Superintendent of Immigration, Canada, 1909, p. 103.

^b Appendix A.

^c Appendix G, No. IV.

And whereas the steamship companies have been communicated with in this matter and each company has been asked to enter into an agreement according to the draft attached hereto;

And whereas the steamship companies have had this agreement and the request of the Department of the Interior with respect thereto before them since about the 23d of February, 1908, but the only company that has thus far executed the agreement is the Allan Line Steamship Company (Limited) of Glasgow, running ships to Boston, Mass., and Portland, Me.;

And whereas on account of the neglect of the other companies to attend to this matter the Department of the Interior is, at the present time, in the position of having some 55 deportable immigrants on its hands and being unable to deport them;

Therefore His Excellency the Governor-General in Council in these circumstances, and seeing that undesirable immigrants are constantly coming into Canada, as above described, and that the Superintendent of Immigration is unable to put the law in force with respect to such immigrants, is pleased to order, as a necessary measure of protection for Canada, under the authority of section 10 of the Immigration Act, Chapter 93, Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, that all such immigrants as seek to come into Canada by rail, who have come from any country on any ship landing at a United States port belonging to any steamship company or owner who has not entered into the agreement hereto annexed, shall be and they are hereby prohibited from landing in or coming into Canada.

The importance of this traffic to steamship companies bringing to United States ports passengers bound to Canada, is indicated by the fact that 29,308 out of 204,157, or 14.4 per cent, of the trans-oceanic immigrant arrivals in Canada during the year ending March 31, 1908, came via the United States. These were distributed by ports as follows:^a

New York.....	22, 379
Portland, Me.....	3, 650
Boston.....	1, 987
Philadelphia.....	898
Baltimore.....	394
Total.....	29, 308

Perhaps it is needless to add that the agreement suggested by the Canadian authorities was entered into without great delay on the part of the steamship companies.

Of far greater significance than the last quoted section, however, is section 20 of the Canadian law, which provides that:^b

The regulations to be made by the Governor in Council may provide as a condition to permission to enter Canada that immigrants shall possess money to a prescribed minimum amount, which amount may vary according to the class and destination of such immigrants and otherwise according to the circumstances.

Several orders in council of more or less moment have been promulgated under authority of this section. Under it has been established the policy of requiring that all immigrants 18 years of age or over, arriving at Canadian ports during certain winter months, be possessed of $50 in addition to a ticket to destination, which amount is reduced to $25 at other seasons.^c It is worthy of note that relaxation of the money qualification is made possible in the case of persons going to friends resident in Canada or in the case of those going to assured employment. Still more worthy of note is the fact that the special relaxation provision above referred to applies only to persons coming from countries where immigration effort is made, viz, northern and western European countries and the United States, and when the persons are suited for farm work and intend to engage in it. Thus it appears that the Canadian law permits the erection of more or less effective barriers against all immigrants at times when such action seems wise, but that the barrier may be lowered to permit the easy entrance of the particular classes officially desired by the Dominion.

^a Report of Superintendent of Immigration, Canada, 1908, p. 3.

^b Appendix A.

^c Appendix G, Nos. II and VII.

Because of its peculiar significance in this regard, and also because it illustrates in a striking way the possibilities of immigration control under section 20 generally, the following order of the governor-general in council, dated June 3, 1908, is presented in full:^a

Whereas by the Order in Council of the 18th of January, 1908, it is provided that in accordance with section 20 of the Immigration Act, the Immigration Agent at any port shall require every immigrant, male or female, 18 years of age or over, to have in his or her possession money to a minimum amount of $25, in addition to a ticket to his or her destination in Canada, unless satisfactory evidence is furnished that the immigrant is going to some definite employment or to relatives or friends already settled in Canada, who will take care of such immigrant, and by a further Order in Council of the 27th of March, 1908, this arrangement is continued in force;

And whereas Canada is looking primarily for immigrants of an agricultural class to occupy vacant lands, and as immigrants from Asia belong, as a rule, to laboring classes, and their language and mode of life render them unsuited for settlement in Canada where there are no colonies of their own people to insure their maintenance in case of their inability to secure employment, it is necessary that provision be made so that such immigrants may be possessed of sufficient money to make them temporarily independent of unfavorable industrial conditions when coming into Canada;

Therefore His Excellency the Governor-General in Council is pleased to order that the amount of money required to be in possession of each immigrant as a condition to his being permitted to enter Canada shall be and the same is hereby increased to $200 in the case of all Asiatic immigrants other than those with whose countries the government of Canada has special arrangements or those concerning whose countries special statutory regulations exist on the part of Canada; the conditions as to tickets to destination to remain as at present.

The special significance of this order lies in the fact that it erects a formidable barrier against the immigration to Canada of East Indian or Hindu laborers, as will be mentioned later; but in a broader sense it illustrates the fact that section 20 confers upon the government the power to practically prohibit immigration to Canada, in part or as a whole, if deemed expedient.

Canada's evident determination to make possible the absolute administrative control of immigration to the Dominion is still more clearly suggested by section 30 of the immigration act, which provides that:^b

The Governor in Council may, by proclamation or order, whenever he considers it necessary or expedient, prohibit the landing in Canada of any specified class of immigrants or of any immigrants who have come to Canada otherwise than by continuous journey from the country of which they are natives or citizens and upon through tickets purchased in that country.

This section was presumably framed with a view to permitting absolute control over oriental immigration, but it would seem that its possibilities extend far beyond that. Under its provision the governor in council, on May 27, 1908, issued an order which provides that after the date mentioned—

The landing in Canada shall be, and the same is hereby, prohibited of any immigrants who have come to Canada otherwise than by continuous journey from the country of which they are natives or citizens and upon through tickets purchased in that country.^c

^a Appendix G, No. V.

^b Appendix A.

^c Appendix G, No. III.

It is not difficult to see in this order another barrier against Hindu immigration into Canada, but if carried to a logical and entirely possible conclusion it might as readily be employed to prohibit the coming of immigrants from any country not having direct transportation connections with Canadian ports.

The order above quoted is clearly in conformity with the provisions of section 30; but the other provision of the same section, under which the governor in council may prohibit the landing in Canada of any specified class of immigrants, has not been put into practical operation.

The proposed amendments to the Canadian law, as represented in the government bill elsewhere referred to, adhere to and perhaps even extend the discretionary power conferred upon the administration by the present law. One feature of the above-mentioned bill, taken from the Australian immigration act, proposes to confer on the minister of the interior the right to issue a written permit to any person to enter Canada without being subject to the provisions of the immigration act.^a On the other hand, it is proposed to invest the government with the power to order undesirable immigrants to leave Canada.^b Other sections of the proposed law aim to give the governor in council authority to^c—

(a) Prohibit the landing in Canada or at any specified port of entry in Canada of any immigrant who has come to Canada otherwise than by continuous journey from the country of which he is a native or naturalized citizen, and upon a through ticket purchased in that country.

(b) Prohibit the landing in Canada of passengers brought to Canada by any transportation company which refuses or neglects to comply with the provisions of this Act.

(c) Prohibit for a stated period or permanently the landing in Canada, or the landing at any specified port of entry in Canada, of immigrants belonging to any race deemed unsuited to the climate or requirements of Canada, or of immigrants of any specified class, occupation, or character.

In short, it would appear from the proposed law that it is intended to confer upon the government the right to admit, exclude, or deport immigrants whenever the circumstances warrant.

DEPORTATION AFTER LANDING.

Although the number of immigrants rejected under the Canadian act is proportionately much smaller than under the United States law, Canada has an additional safeguard, or second line of defense, in a provision of the immigration act which makes possible a general deportation of aliens who become public charges within two years after their landing in the Dominion.

This is accomplished under section 28 of the immigration act, which section provides as follows:^d

No person shall be permitted to land in Canada who is a pauper or destitute, a professional beggar or vagrant, or who is likely to become a public charge; and any person landed in Canada who, within two years thereafter, has become a charge upon the public funds, whether municipal, provincial, or federal, or an inmate of or a charge upon any charitable institution, may be deported and returned to the port or place whence he came or sailed for Canada.

^a Appendix B, sec. .

^b Appendix B, sec. 42.

^c Appendix B, sec. 38.

^d Appendix A.

The method of procedure under this section as provided in section 33 of the immigration act is as follows:^a

Whenever in Canada an immigrant has, within two years of his landing in Canada, become a public charge, or an inmate of a penitentiary, gaol, prison, or hospital or other charitable institution, it shall be the duty of the clerk or secretary of the municipality to forthwith notify the Minister, giving full particulars.

2. On receipt of such information the Minister may, in his discretion, after investigating the facts, order the deportation of such immigrant at the cost and charges of such immigrant if he is able to pay, and if not, then at the cost of the municipality wherein he has last been regularly resident, if so ordered by the Minister, and if he is a vagrant or tramp or there is no such municipality, then at the cost of the Department of the Interior.

3. When the immigrant is an inmate of a penitentiary, gaol, or prison, the Minister of Justice may, upon the request of the Minister of the Interior, issue an order to the warden or governor of such penitentiary, gaol, or prison, commanding him to deliver the said immigrant to the person named in the warrant issued by the Superintendent of Immigration as hereinafter provided, with a view to the deportation of such immigrant; and the Superintendent of Immigration shall issue his warrant to such person as he may authorize to receive such immigrant from the warden or governor of the penitentiary, gaol, or prison, as the case may be, and such order and warrant may be in the form given in schedule 2 of this Act.

4. Such order of the Minister of Justice shall be sufficient authority to the warden or governor of the penitentiary, gaol, or prison, as the case may be, to deliver such immigrant to the person named in the warrant of the Superintendent of Immigration as aforesaid, and such warden or governor shall obey such order; and such warrant of the Superintendent of Immigration shall be sufficient authority to the person named therein to detain such immigrant in his custody in any part of Canada until such immigrant is delivered to the authorized agent of the transportation company or companies which brought him into Canada with a view to his deportation as herein provided.

5. Every immigrant deported under this section shall be carried by the same transportation company or companies which brought him into Canada to the port from which he came to Canada without receiving the usual payment for such carriage.

6. In case he was brought into Canada by a railway company, such company shall similarly convey him or secure his conveyance from the municipality or locality whence he is to be deported to the country whence he was brought.

7. Any immigrant deported under this section as having become an inmate of a penitentiary, gaol, or prison, who returns to Canada after such deportation may be brought before any justice of the peace in Canada; and such justice of the peace shall thereupon make out his warrant under his hand and seal for the recommitment of such immigrant to the penitentiary, gaol, or prison from which he was deported, or to any other penitentiary, gaol, or prison in Canada; and such immigrant shall be so recommitted accordingly and shall undergo a term of imprisonment equal to the residue of his sentence which remained unexpired at the time of his deportation.

By this provision Canada has practically established a probationary period of two years during which admitted immigrants may be effectively tested physically, mentally, morally, and industrially, and deported to the country whence they came if found unworthy. The deportation provision in the present Canadian immigration law became effective July 13, 1906. Deportations were possible, however, previous to that time, and the record shows that between January 1, 1903, and March 31, 1909, 3,149 aliens were deported. This number distributed by fiscal years is as follows:^b

1904.....	85

^a Appendix A. ^b Report of Superintendent of Immigration, Canada, 1909, p. 59, 35365—S. Doc. 469, 61-2—4

It will be noted that of the 3,149 deportations from Canada during the past seven years, 2,573, or 81.7 per cent of the whole, have occurred during the fiscal years 1908 and 1909.

The racial distribution of those deported was as follows: ^a

Assuming for the purposes of this article that all immigrants admitted to Canada since 1901 have under the law been subject to deportation, it is interesting to note the effect on the various immigrant classes as shown by the following tables, which compare, by class of immigrants, the deportations of aliens from Canada since January 1, 1903, with the number of immigrants admitted since 1901:

As previously shown, comparatively few immigrants from the north and west of Europe are denied admission to Canada on arrival, the proportion rejected to those admitted in 1908 being 1 to 876, while among those from European countries where no immigration effort is made the proportion was 1 to 138. This apparent discrimination suggests that Canada generally accepts immigrants from the favored countries on probation, and that other Europeans are more carefully selected at the time of their landing. Whatever the fact in this regard may be, it is evident that no discrimination is made in favor of any race or class in the deportation of undesirables after landing. As the above tables indicate, the proportion of deported immigrants from European countries where immigration effort is made is more than twice as great as the proportion of those from other European countries. A more conclusive proof of the nondiscriminatory policy of Canada in this regard is shown in the fact that the proportion of English and Welsh deported, 1 to 187, is greater than that of any other races except the Dutch, Greek, Roumanian, and Turkish, and among the last named the numbers involved are too small to be particularly significant. In striking contrast with the large proportion of English and Welsh deported is the small proportion of Italians, only 1 of this race being deported to 1,559 admitted.

The Japanese, who are now practically excluded from admission to Canada, show the smallest proportion of deportations, 1 to 3,105, and immigrants from the United States are second in this regard, the proportion of deported being 1 to 2,644.

In his annual report for 1908, P. H. Bryce, chief medical officer of the Canadian department of immigration, accounts for the preponderance of English among those deported after admission as follows: ^a

Not only does the large number of people from English cities come to our large cities, but it is especially true of that class, "ne'er-do-wells," social and moral derelicts, and ineffectives in general. They are not only physically unequal to the task of farm life, but they are further usually incapable of enduring the quiet of rural life. Hence if sent to the country they too frequently drift back to town, and when winter comes and work fails they seek aid in those institutions set apart for the city poor and helpless.

In striking contrast with this is the following comment by the same official: ^b

The notable absence of mental defectives amongst the peoples from southern countries is a matter of much interest and, contrary to a too popular opinion, it appears that if compulsory education can be generally enforced we have in such races not only an industrial asset of great value, but also the assurance of a population remarkably free from the degenerative effects seen in those classes which have been for several generations factory operatives and dwellers in the congested centres of large industrial populations. Recognizing the constant and increasing need of a population not only capable of but willing to do the rougher work of opening up new areas by building railways and canals, we may consider it a fortunate matter if such can be obtained of clean blood and much native energy, only requiring the influence of social and educational environments to transform them into good citizens and absorb them into the masses of our law-abiding and progressive communities.

The wide range of causes for deportation under the Canadian law is shown by the following table:

It will be noted that, with the exception of the Bulgarians, all of whom were deported as public charges, the various causes of deportation were well distributed among the races. Particularly suggestive is the fact that the English contributed largely to each class of what Mr. Bryce terms "ineffectives in general."

The Canadian law relating to the deportation of admitted aliens is radically different from the United States law upon the same subject. Under the latter but one class of aliens can be deported for acts committed or because of circumstances due to causes which arise subsequent to their admission to the United States. The exception noted occurs in section 3 of the immigration law of February 20, 1907,^a which provides that—any alien woman or girl who shall be found an inmate of a house of prostitution or practicing prostitution at any time within three years after she shall have entered the United States shall be deemed to be unlawfully within the United States and shall be deported * * *.

The United States law, however, also provides:^b

That any alien who shall enter the United States in violation of law, and such as become public charges from causes existing prior to landing, shall, upon the warrant of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, be taken into custody and deported to the country whence he came at any time within three years after the date of his entry into the United States.

^a Appendix C.

^b Section 20, United States immigration act of February 20, 1907. Appendix C.

A comparison of the last-mentioned provision of the United States law with section 28 of the Canadian act, previously quoted (p. 48), clearly indicates the radically different policy of the two countries in this regard. Under the Canadian law deportation is not restricted to those cases where the alien becomes a public charge from causes existing prior to landing, but he may be deported from Canada for causes arising at any time within two years after landing. Because of this difference in the law and policy of the two governments it is impossible to make comparison other than to merely indicate the result obtained under each. This is presented in the following table, which shows the number of immigrants admitted to each country during the last three fiscal years, and the number deported from each country after admission during the same period:

TABLE 38.—Immigrants admitted and aliens deported after admission, Canada and the United States, fiscal years 1907 to 1909.

Canada.....	534,044	2,774	1 to 193
United States.....	2,820,005	5,188	1 to 544

As previously stated, no restriction is placed upon the deportation of delinquent, defective, and otherwise undesirable aliens from Canada, except that such deportation must be for causes arising within two years after arrival. Under the United States law the process of deportation, except in the case of prostitutes as noted, is accompanied by the necessity of proving illegal entry into the country or, in the case of public charges, that they became such from causes existing prior to landing. Moreover, under the Canadian law municipal authorities are required to cooperate with government officials in making the deportation provision effective, an arrangement which does not and can not exist in the United States. On the other hand, the United States law permits deportation within three instead of two years. All things considered, the possibility of deporting undesirable aliens is much less restricted in Canada than in the United States, but the above table indicates that, in spite of severe legal restrictions and the absence of compulsory assistance from state or municipal authorities, the comparative results obtained in the United States were decidedly favorable.

The possible effect of the adoption in the United States of the deportation provisions in the Canadian law must of necessity be a matter of speculation. A suggestion in this regard, however, based on the census of alien inmates of penal, reformatory, insane, and charitable institutions in the United States made by the Bureau of Immigration in 1908, is interesting if not conclusive. The census referred to included all penal, reformatory, and charitable institutions, public and private, including county jails and poorhouses, institutions for feeble-minded, hospitals, asylums, and penal institutions of all classes in the United States and in Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico. In the case of all aliens detained in institutions covered by this census an attempt was made to learn the length of time they had been in the United States.

This information could not be secured from all aliens, and the percentages which appear hereafter are based upon answers of aliens from whom this information could be obtained.^a The data, moreover, are not entirely reliable for the purpose at hand, as the census included some aliens classed as criminals who, while detained in penal institutions at the time, had not actually been convicted of crime. The census also included persons detained for minor offenses as well as serious crimes, and it is probable that even under the sweeping provisions of the Canadian law not all of this class would have been considered deportable.

The results of the census show that 60,501 aliens or unnaturalized foreign-born persons were detained in all penal, reformatory, and charitable institutions, and the approximate number who had been in the United States two years or less was 7,769.

The following table shows this result in detail:

TABLE 39.—Aliens detained in penal, reformatory, and charitable institutions, United States, 1908, by class and length of time in country.

[Compiled from report of United States Commissioner-General of Immigration, 1908.]

		Number.	Per cent.

Insane.....	25,906	845	3.3
Paupers.....	19,572	3,875	19.8
Total.....	60,501	7,769

The total number of inmates of all institutions enumerated was 610,477, including 60,501 aliens, 73,593 naturalized citizens, and 476,383 native born, and theoretically, under the Canadian law, 7,769, or 1 to every 79 of the whole number detained, were deportable.

The bill previously referred to, proposing amendments to the present Canadian immigration law, contemplates important changes in the matter of the deportation of aliens after admission to Canada. In this bill the period during which cause for deportation may arise is fixed at three years instead of two as in the present law. The bill also proposes to invest boards of inquiry with authority to deport undesirable aliens of certain classes who have already been admitted to Canada. The classes particularly referred to in this regard are anarchists and persons who "shall by common repute belong to or be suspected of belonging to any secret society or organization which extorts money from, or in any way attempts to control, any resident of Canada by force or threat of bodily harm, or by blackmail; * * *."^b

MEDICAL OFFICERS AND THEIR DUTIES.

The Canadian immigration laws and regulations confer great administrative authority upon medical officers, especially with reference to the admission, exclusion, and deportation of immigrants. The chief medical officer is directly responsible to the immigration department for the proper enforcement of regulations necessary to prevent the landing of undesirable immigrants. Local medical officers at ports of landing exercise like authority in a more restricted field. The following regulation issued under the Canadian law, and applied alike to the chief and to local medical officers, illustrates the peculiar powers vested in these officials:^a

^a Report of United States Commissioner-General of Immigration, 1908, p. 96.

^b Appendix B, secs. 40, 41, 42.

All agents and officials of the department must obey all directions given by the medical officer regarding the deportation or the retention of any immigrants with respect to whose health there has been, or is, any question.

In striking contrast with this is the position of medical officers under the United States immigration law, section 17 of which provides:^b

That the physical and mental examination of all arriving aliens shall be made by medical officers of the United States Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service, * * * who shall certify for the information of the immigration officers and the boards of special inquiry * * * any and all physical and mental defects or diseases observed by said medical officers in any such alien * * *.

To complete the contrast, attention is directed to the following regulation of the United States Bureau of Immigration relative to medical officers detailed from the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service to the immigration service:^c

Every officer of such service (United States Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service) detailed for this duty shall, subject to the instructions of the Surgeon-General of the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service, be under the direction of the immigration officer in charge of the port to which he may be detailed.

It will be observed that the authority of the United States medical officer does not extend beyond the mere certification of the physical and mental condition of immigrants, their admission or exclusion being entirely in the hands of the immigration officers, boards of special inquiry, and the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, except in cases where rejection is mandatory under the law.

On the other hand, the Canadian medical officer exercises absolute authority with regard to the admission or rejection of immigrants when the matter of health is in question and his functions as an administrative officer of the government extend even beyond this. In short, the duties of the Canadian medical officer are administrative as well as professional, while the United States medical officer serves merely in an advisory capacity.

CONTRACT LABOR.

Canada's contract labor policy is exceedingly interesting in comparison with the United States policy in that regard.

An immigrant coming to Canada without having first assured himself that some definite employment awaits him is quite likely to be debarred on that account from entering;^d while an immigrant who comes to the United States with such assurance, and admits it, is necessarily excluded as a contract laborer.^a

The difference in the policy of the two countries as far as individual cases of so-called contract labor are concerned is strikingly illustrated at Canadian ports where immigrants destined both to Canada and the United States are examined. A single instance observed by a member of the Commission will illustrate the point. At Quebec recently a young Englishman destined to a middle western State was held for the United States board of special inquiry because he innocently admitted to an inspector that his brother, already in the United States, had assured him that he could have work on a railroad if he would come. Acting upon that assurance he left England to join the brother. When examined before the Board, he stated that he did not know the name of the railroad or the nature of the work, but simply had been assured that such a place awaited him. A rigid though sympathetic cross-examination failed to change the young man's story, and he was excluded by the Board, a decision which could hardly have been otherwise under the provision of the United States law which excludes—^a persons * * * called contract laborers, who have been induced or solicited to migrate to this country by offers or promises of employment or in consequence of agreements, oral, written, or printed, expressed or implied, to perform labor in this country of any kind, skilled or unskilled.

While the above-mentioned case was being considered before the United States board, Canadian officials were conducting an examination of Canadian-bound immigrants from the same ship in which assured employment was insisted upon as one of the chief requisites to admission.

Canada's policy in this regard is clearly illustrated by the following from an advertising pamphlet issued by the authority of the Minister of the Interior:^b Important.—Farmers, farm laborers, and female domestic servants are the only people the Canadian immigration department advises to emigrate to Canada. All others should get definite assurance of employment in Canada before leaving home and have money enough to support them for a time in case of disappointment.

PROTECTION OF IMMIGRANTS.

Under the Canadian system the official interest of the government in the immigrant continues until he has secured employment or reached his final destination in Canada. At many points in the districts to which immigrants go the immigration department maintains agencies which assist the newcomers, and so-called immigration halls for the free accommodation of newly arrived immigrants have been established at various places. The Dominion government also maintains free information or employment bureaus in the principal centers for the benefit of employers of labor as well as persons seeking employment. Through these bureaus the immigration department and its agents abroad are kept informed as to the demand for labor in various parts of the country, and so are enabled to, in part, direct immigrants to points where assured employment awaits them. In many cases the agents abroad advise the employment bureaus of the coming of immigrants in order that arrangements for their employment may be completed by the time they reach Canada. The Canadian department seeks to protect newly arrived immigrants from all kinds of imposition and exploitation. Hotels and boarding houses patronized by immigrants are regulated by law,^a and generally the newcomers are treated as wards of the government until they are finally established.

^a Section 2, United States immigration act of February 20, 1907. Appendix C.

^b "Classes Wanted in Canada." Issued by the authority of the Minister of the Interior, Ottawa, 1909.

An instance of Canada's care of the immigrant appears in the cooperation of the department with the various churches. The Canadian steamship manifest contains among other inquiries a question relative to the religion of the immigrant. The immigration authorities state that officials of the department are instructed not to insist upon an answer to this question if any objection to answering it is raised by the immigrant. The information, it is stated, is gathered not because the government lays any stress upon religious belief or makes it in any sense a test of the admissibility of the immigrant, but largely in order to assist the churches in work among those newly arrived. A list of arriving immigrants, classified by their religious belief, and their destinations, is furnished to the head of any religious denomination requesting the same. Such church officials are enabled in this way to notify church authorities in different localities of the arrival of such immigrants, and it is said that much good results, not merely in putting the new immigrants into better social surroundings, but also in the way of helping them to secure work.

CHAPTER V.

ORIENTAL IMMIGRATION.

Canada, in common with other colonial possessions of Great Britain and with the United States, has an oriental immigration problem, and like other countries has adopted a policy which practically excludes Asiatic laborers. As in the United States, oriental immigration was for a considerable period confined almost exclusively to the Chinese. Later came the Japanese, and finally the Hindus, or East Indians. These immigrants, for the most part, settled on the Pacific coast, and the Province of British Columbia led the movement for their exclusion.

In 1900 the legislative assembly of this Province adopted what was known as the "British Columbia Immigration Act."^a This act was framed to exclude Asiatics primarily, but by its terms all illiterates might also be denied admission to the Province. The provision under which it was sought to accomplish this end was as follows:

The immigration into British Columbia of any person who, when asked to do so by the officer appointed under this Act, shall fail himself to write out and sign in the characters of some language of Europe, an application to the provincial secretary of the Province of British Columbia, to the effect of the form set out in Schedule B to this Act annexed, shall be unlawful.

Schedule B, referred to, was as follows:

SCHEDULE B.

Province of British Columbia.

SIR: I claim to be exempt from the operation of the "British Columbia Immigration Act, 1900." My full name is _____. My place of abode for the past twelve months has been _____. My business or calling is _____. I was born at _____, in the year _____.

Yours, etc., _____.

The act further provided that—

An immigrant making his way into or being found in British Columbia in contravention of the provisions of this Act shall not be entitled to a license to carry on any trade or calling that is subject to the legislative authority of British Columbia, nor shall he be entitled to acquire and hold land, or to any of the rights or privileges of a free miner, or to a free miner's certificate, or to exercise the franchise, and any license or franchise right which may have been acquired in contravention of this Act shall be void.

The "British Columbia Immigration Act" was disallowed by Earl Minto, Governor-General of Canada, in 1901.^b

^a Chapter 11, Revised Statutes, British Columbia, 1900.

^b The British Columbia Gazette, Oct. 10, 1901, p. 1677.

Similar acts were passed by the legislative assembly of British Columbia in 1902,^a 1903,^b 1904,^c and 1905,^d but all were disallowed. In each of these acts the immigrant's admission to British Columbia was conditioned upon his ability to "write in the characters of some language of Europe." The acts of 1902 and 1903 proposed a reading test also, and the acts of 1904 and 1905 required that the immigrant write at dictation "in the characters of some language of Europe," and sign "a passage of 50 words in length in an European language."

Although British Columbia was unable to legislate effectively against Asiatic immigration the agitation for restriction continued until the Canadian government adopted measures which resulted in practically excluding Asiatic immigrants from the Dominion.

CHINESE IMMIGRATION.

Canada, like the United States, dealt with the Chinese situation through special legislation, but sought to prevent their coming by means of a prohibitive head tax rather than by absolute restriction. At first the tax was fixed at $50, but evidently this did not have the desired effect, for the amount was increased from time to time until at present every Chinaman, except those belonging to a limited exempt class, is required to pay $500 for the privilege of entering Canada. The Canadian law in this regard is as follows:^e

Every person of Chinese origin, irrespective of allegiance, shall pay into the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada, on entering Canada, at the port or place of entry, a tax of five hundred dollars, except the following persons who shall be exempt from such payment, that is to say:

(a) The members of the diplomatic corps, or other government representatives, their suites and their servants, and consuls and consular agents.

(b) The children born in Canada of parents of Chinese origin and who have left Canada for educational or other purposes, on substantiating their identity to the satisfaction of the controller at the port or place where they seek to enter on their return.

(c) Merchants, their wives and minor children; the wives and minor children of clergymen; tourists; men of science; (subject to such regulations as may from time to time be made by the Governor in Council) duly certified teachers; who shall substantiate their status to the satisfaction of the controller, subject to the approval of the Minister, or who are bearers of certificates of identity, or other similar documents issued by the Government or by a recognized official or representative of the Government whose subjects they are, specifying their occupation and their object in coming into Canada.

2. Every such certificate or other document shall be in the English or French language, and shall be examined and endorsed (visé) by a British consul or chargé d'affaires or other accredited representative of His Majesty, at the place where it is granted, or at the port or place of departure.

3. A student of Chinese origin who upon first entering Canada has substantiated his status as such to the satisfaction of the controller, subject to the approval of the Minister, and who is the bearer of a certificate of identity, or other similar document issued by the Government or a recognized official or representative of the Government whose subject he is, and who at that time satisfies the controller that he is entering Canada for the purpose of securing a higher education in one of the recognized universities, or in some other educational institution approved by the Governor in Council for the purposes of this section, and who afterwards furnishes satisfactory proof that he has been a bona fide student in such university or educational institution for a period of one year shall be entitled to a refund of the tax paid by him upon his entry into Canada.

^e Canadian Chinese Immigration Act, sec. 7, as amended July 20, 1908.

In 1907 Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King, now Minister of Labor, but then Deputy Minister, was appointed a commissioner to inquire into the methods by which oriental laborers had been induced to come to Canada, and from his report upon the subject is quoted the following statement relative to Chinese immigration to Canada, past and present:^a

It was in the days of gold discovery in the mines of Cassiar and Caribou in the early sixties, and of the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the early eighties, that immigration from China to Canada took place on a considerable scale, there being no restrictions of any kind imposed. The numbers became such, however, that in 1884 the government of the day found it necessary to appoint a royal commission to make inquiry concerning this immigration, and in * * * 1886 a tax of $50 per head was imposed on every Chinese immigrant. The number of Chinese who had come into Canada at that time was estimated as between 9,000 and 10,000. The Dominion census for the year 1891 gave the total of Chinese in Canada as 9,129, of which number 8,910 were in British Columbia. From these figures it would appear that the large influx of Chinese into British Columbia during the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway was well absorbed, nearly all apparently remaining in this country or others coming in to take their place. During the following decade the numbers so increased that in 1900 the Dominion government increased the capitation tax from $50 to $100, the increase to take effect on January 1, 1901. It was contended by the people of British Columbia that this was inadequate and ineffective in preventing Chinese immigration to Canada, and the government in the same year appointed a second commission to investigate concerning Chinese and Japanese immigration into the province. The census in 1901 gave the total number of Chinese in Canada as 16,792, of which by far the greater portion were in the Province of British Columbia. The commission appointed in 1900 found that, as represented, the $100 head tax upon Chinese was ineffective and inadequate, and recommended that the amount of the tax be increased to $500. Adopting this recommendation, Parliament, in July, 1903, enacted a law placing a tax of $500 on all Chinese entering the country, but its provisions did not come into force till January 1, 1904. The returns show that between June, 1900, and January 1, 1904, over 16,000 Chinese paid the tax of $100, as follows:

Fiscal year—

June, 1900–1901.....	2, 518
June, 1901–2	3, 525
June, 1902–3	5, 245
June, 1903, to January 1, 1904.....	4, 719

Total 16, 007

In other words, the total Chinese population in Canada nearly doubled during the years 1900 to 1903, inclusive. Assuming that the bulk of the Chinese who came into the country remained here, it would appear that at the time the $500 tax was imposed there were over 30,000 Chinese in Canada, most of whom were in the Province of British Columbia. What effect the new legislation had will be apparent from the following figures, which show the number of Chinese who have paid the tax in the years since the $500 limit was imposed:

From January 1, 1904, to June 30, 1904.....	0
From June 30, 1904, to June 30, 1905.....	8
From June 30, 1905, to June 30, 1906.....	22
From June 30, 1906, to June 30, 1907.....	91
From June 30, 1907, to March 31, 1908.....	1, 482

Paradoxical as it may be, the all but complete cessation of Chinese immigration which followed the increase of the capitation tax to $500, which cessation continued up until the beginning of 1907, and the sharp upward movement which has taken place since, are each, in large measure, the result of the increase in the amount of the tax. The explanation is simple. Prior to the imposition of any tax, Chinese came to this country in such numbers that they not only entered into serious competition with white labor, but being in such numbers, there was more or less competition among themselves. Unfamiliar with the conditions in Canada, having come from a land where unskilled labor earns from 5 to 10 cents per day, and skilled about double, and at most treble, that amount, a wage of $20 to $40 a month to a laborer and a wage of $10 to $30 to a servant, appeared to afford the opportunity of saving, within the course of a few years, that fortune which the Chinese immigrant came to this country to seek. Labor agencies and contractors found it a profitable business to bring Chinese in large numbers to the country. Yip Sang, a prominent Chinese merchant of Vancouver, stated that there were no tax at the present time, at least 8,000 would come out each year, and that he himself would bring out Chinese in large numbers. Chinese brought to this country by labor agencies and contractors, or who had come of their own volition, by informing relatives and friends in China of opportunities here, set up what may be described as a natural flow in the tide of Chinese emigration; this tide the tax of $50 or $100 was too small to check.

The imposition of a $500 tax administered a death blow to the work of the labor agencies and contractors. For a while it raised an almost effective barrier against the natural tide. An advance of $50 or even $100 to emigrants coming under the guarantee of service was a risk which agencies or contractors, considering first the security of their profits, hesitated to incur; when this amount was raised to $500, such an advance could no longer be considered as a business proposition. Likewise, the Chinaman who was desirous of having his relatives or friends share his opportunity, discovered that through the imposition of the tax the economic inducement to immigration had been suddenly swept away. At the rate of wages then current for Chinese labor, he could extend to his friends no hope of being able to recover, even after many years of industrious toil, an outlay for admission so considerable. The Chinese at home looked on the new tax as constituting an all but impossible barrier. The Chinamen in the new land had not yet seen how this barrier was to be surmounted. Then the economic effect of the tax gradually became apparent. The Chinaman who had landed in this country prior to January, 1904, discovered that the state, unwittingly perhaps, had, by restricting further competition from without, created of his labor a huge monopoly; without organization, without expense, without even agitation, every Chinaman became a unit in a labor group more favored than the most exclusive and highly protected trade union. Then monopoly began to do its work. The Chinaman, discovering his protected position, sought the advance in wages which comes from an increasing demand and a diminishing supply. Within a couple of years the wages doubled, and in some instances, more particularly in the case of servants of a better class, trebled, and even went beyond this point. Yip Sang testified that before the $500 tax was imposed, he paid Chinamen for packing fish from $25 to $40 a month with food, that now he was obliged to pay for the same services $60 to $70; that in other classes of employment Chinese were obtaining at the present time $2.50, where before the tax had been imposed only $1 was received. Thus, it has come about that as a result of the rise of wages consequent upon the monopoly created by the tax, Chinamen have found, speaking generally, that once in the country it is possible to accumulate within half the time the sum desired, and that thereafter the fortune from year to year is apt to be nearly or more than double what it originally was.

It took about three years for the economic changes to work out and for the Chinaman to become fully aware of the new situation; once cognizant of it, he began to advise his relatives and friends in China.

With the betterment of their economic conditions, the number of Chinamen returning for a visit to their own country began to increase. This number has grown so steadily since the tax was imposed that during the closing months of the past year the steamship companies found it next to impossible to afford the accommodation demanded by Chinamen desirous of returning for a short sojourn to their own land. Many Chinamen who have gone on a visit to their own country have brought back with them relatives or friends. Others who have remained in Canada have sent home money to assist in the bringing of others out. Some have simply furnished the information and have left it to the intending emigrant to procure in such way as he might the amount that was necessary to pay his passage and the tax imposed.

The difference in the remuneration of labor in Canada and China, and the fact that the savings of a few years here constitute a life fortune in China, have constituted the main incentives to emigration. The tax and its economic effects account for the numbers being what they are; the assistance given to their relatives and friends by Chinese, either here or in China, sometimes from humanitarian, sometimes from commercial motives, explain the means by which they have come. In addition to this a number of those who are coming at the present time are Chinese who have resided in the United States at one time, or have friends residing here at present. They know conditions on this side of the water, and not being permitted to enter the United States, are coming to this country.

CHINESE IN TRANSIT.

The persistence of the Chinese in coming to the New World, despite the inhospitable attitude of Canada and the United States, is in part shown by the number annually passing in transit through Canada, bound for the West Indies and elsewhere.

The following table shows this movement through the port of Vancouver for the past three years:

TABLE 40.—Chinese in transit through Canada, via Vancouver, by destination, fiscal years 1907 to 1909.

[Compiled from statistical table furnished by Department of Trade and Commerce, Canada.]

During the same years 88 Chinese destined to the United States were, according to the same authority, admitted at the port of Victoria. During the fiscal year 1908, 2,800 Chinese passed through the United States in transit to other countries. Of these, 1,962 reached the United States overland, and of course many of them are recorded in the Canadian statistics quoted. Of this class of immigrants the United States Commissioner-General of Immigration says: ^a

There is no doubt that with these transits, as with the same class in the past, many enter Mexico and other near-by countries with the purpose, often accomplished, of eventually taking up a residence in the United States despite the provisions of law, * * *.

JAPANESE IMMIGRATION.

Until recent years no record was kept of Japanese immigrants arriving in Canada, and consequently the development of the movement can not be accurately traced. The Canadian census of 1901^b shows that 4,674 persons born in Japan were in the Dominion at that time, 4,515 of whom were in the Province of British Columbia. According to the same census,^c 27 persons born in Japan were present in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. A census taken in 1906^c in these three Provinces shows an increase of only 77 in the Japanese population. In the meantime a considerable number of Japanese had come to Canada, but, as in the United States, they appear to have settled near the Pacific coast. Statistics are available relative to Japanese immigration to Canada beginning with the fiscal year 1905, and the movement since that time has been as follows: ^d ^d Statistical tables furnished by Canadian immigration department.

It was estimated that at the beginning of the year 1907 the Japanese population of British Columbia was about 7,500, although W. L. Mackenzie King^a thinks the number was considerably less. During the year 1907 Japanese immigration exceeded the total estimated Japanese population of the Province at the beginning of the year. This increased the already existing and determined opposition in western Canada to oriental immigration. In this connection Mr. Mackenzie King, in the report referred to, says:

Assuming, however, that 7,500 was the total Japanese population at the beginning of the year, it is not a matter of surprise that with the arrival at their shores of 8,125 Japanese in the ten months following, the people of British Columbia, and more especially the residents of Vancouver, should have experienced some concern, and that as vessel after vessel landed an ever-increasing number, until in fewer months than it had taken years to bring the Japanese population of British Columbia to what it was, this total was exceeded by new arrivals, that consternation should have been felt in many quarters. If anything more were needed to occasion unrest, it was to be found in the simultaneous arrival from the Orient of Hindus by the hundreds and Chinese in larger numbers than those of immediately preceding years. It was an alarm at numbers, and the cry of a white Canada was raised.

Of the 8,125 Japanese immigrants above referred to, 77 were refused admission and 3,619 held passports for the United States, so that the actual number admitted to Canada was 4,429.^b According to the same authority, 2,779 of these immigrants came from Hawaii, 9 from Mexico, and 1,641 direct from Japan. Of the immigrants direct from Japan, says Mr. Mackenzie King, 900 in round numbers were sent out by the Tokio Emigration Company at Yokohama at the instance of the Canadian Nippon Supply Company at Vancouver, in accordance with an arrangement effected between these two companies. The business of the latter company was to furnish Japanese laborers to contractors and other large employers and to furnish supplies to such laborers.

It appears that the influx of Japanese from Hawaii into Canada was largely due to the restriction placed upon such immigration into the United States and because of this Mr. Mackenzie King's report upon the movement is of particular interest. He says in part:^c

The Japanese emigrant who reaches the Hawaiian Islands passes beyond the jurisdiction of his native country and comes beneath the flag of the United States. If employed in the sugar or rice fields, where most of his fellow-countrymen work, he will find himself the servant of an association of capitalists who control the political and financial destinies of the island. The Planters' Association of Honolulu is an organization of employers formed for the protection of their mutual interests. Its influence is limited only by the wealth it represents, while the indirect effects of that influence are of vaster sweep than its possessors know. It is reported that the wishes of this association were not forgotten when the United States Government enacted in January of last year, "that whenever the President shall be satisfied that passports issued by any foreign government to its citizens to go to any country other than the United States or to any insular possessions of the United States or the Canal Zone, are being used for the purpose of enabling the holders to come to the continental territory of the United States from such other country, or from the Canal Zone, or from such insular possessions * * *."

It is believed, at least by the Japanese who reside in the islands, that the members of the Asiatic Exclusion League in San Francisco were not without contributions from the association's incidental expense fund, to assist them in an agitation which by excluding Japanese from the mainland would confine that class of labor to the islands, to the greater economic advantage of the members of the association. It was suggested by one of the Japanese witnesses who gave testimony before the Commission, that the influence of the Planters' Association was not altogether inoperative in British Columbia to-day. Inoperative it certainly has not been, if we recognize the fact that it was in the efforts of the Planters' Association to lower the wages of the Japanese resident in Hawaii, that we find the beginnings of that unrest which has led to Japanese coming in such large numbers from the Hawaiian Islands to British Columbia during the past year. A ship that landed over 1,000 Portuguese at Honolulu, brought by the Planters' Association from Madeira to help weaken the competition of the emigrant arrivals from Japan, carried away from that port within a fortnight later, Japanese in equal numbers, who, failing to find admission to the American continent via San Francisco, as before, came at the instance of those who engineered the expedition to Canada instead; nor was this the only expedition of the kind. There was, however, a curious irony in the whole situation; more especially, as it happened that United States citizens practicing law in Honolulu, acted as the legal representatives of the Japanese boarding-house keepers, the parties primarily responsible for the exodus of their fellow-countrymen from the islands, and that in their efforts to go one better, planters and boarding-house keepers alike were losers in the ventures they had planned.

As has been seen, the total Japanese immigration to Canada from the Hawaiian Islands during the ten months ending October 31, 1907, was 2,779. This immigration had its beginning in arrivals in small numbers brought by Australian lines to the port of Victoria during the early months of the year. It was in the summer months, with the arrival at the port of Vancouver of the Admiral Jaureguiberry, and especially the arrivals subsequently of the Kumeric and Indiana that the citizens of Vancouver saw landing at their wharves a foreign multitude for which accommodations within the city's precincts could not be found. It was then that many of the indifferent were alarmed and that the people at large became aroused to what the possibilities of an unlimited immigration of persons from the Orient might mean. * * * The expeditions of the Admiral Jaureguiberry and the Kumeric were each in the nature of two-sided speculations. Their promoters were desirous of changing the attitude of the Planters' Association toward the Japanese residents in the islands; they were hopeful also of reaping a considerable profit from the transportation supplied to the Japanese who might be persuaded or desirous of leaving for Canada. The trips of the Indiana were not dissimilar in this respect.

The ground had been well prepared, unintentionally doubtless, but most effectively, by the action of the Planters' Association. When the Japanese came to the Hawaiian Islands they worked for very small wages. It is estimated that they came to the number of 50,000 or 60,000, this being in part, through the efforts of the planters to replace native labor on the plantation by Japanese coolies, a movement which started some twelve years ago. Of recent years, however, and especially since the Japanese war, the emigration of Japanese to Hawaii has been considerably restricted, and the resident Japanese have sought hard to secure an increase in their wages and improved conditions of employment. This the planters refused to grant; instead they began to arrange for the importation of Portuguese labor. The unrest thus created by the action of the planters, the boarding-house keepers sought to intensify through the agency of a local subsidized Japanese press, by means of which advantages of British Columbia as a place where labor was in demand, wages high and opportunity great, were brought before the minds of the workers in the plantations. Many were the articles appearing, some as press dispatches from Vancouver, others simply descriptive. They were met by articles of a different sort inspired from another source; but the fact that wages for common laborers on the plantations were anywhere from $18 to $35 per month, whereas on the railways of British Columbia they were from $1.35 to $1.50 per day, gave the best of the argument to those who were seeking to bring about an exodus sufficiently great to make the planters aware of the limited supply of available labor, and secure for it remuneration at an increased rate. A brief account of the several expeditions will serve to illustrate the methods employed.

The Japanese boarding-house keepers of Honolulu, having learned that with the consent of the Government at Washington, some 3,000 Portuguese were to be brought under contract from the Canary Islands to work on the sugar plantations, that they were being brought by the Savaric and the Kumeric of the Andrew Weir Line, entered into negotiations with the Theodore Davis Company, of Honolulu, for the chartering of vessels to take Japanese to Canada. They succeeded in chartering the Admiral Jaureguiberry, and when the Kumeric arrived at Cote in Chile on her way from Madeira to Honolulu, the agents of the Theodore Davis Company succeeded in chartering her for the boarding-house keepers, to be in commission for them as soon as the Portuguese were landed. The Admiral Jaureguiberry got away without much difficulty; she carried only a small number of Japanese emigrants, 241 in all. When she landed at Vancouver, however, Doctor Munro, the medical inspector and immigration agent, acting under the regulation of his department that "no person shall be permitted to land who is a pauper or destitute or likely to become a public charge," assuming that the several emigrants had no employment awaiting them, demanded that before landing each should produce at least $25 to insure that he would not become a public charge, and not being supplied with this amount he was about to reject 150 of the new arrivals. Members of the Japanese Boarding-House Keepers' Union at Vancouver, on learning that a number of Japanese had arrived at the port and were about to be turned away for lack of funds, knowing that there would be little difficulty in securing for them immediate employment, and seeing the opportunity for a slight revenue in the way of commission for their services, and possibly also out of subsequent business dealings, came to the rescue of the party about to be rejected and advanced in cash the sum of over $3,000 as a guarantee bond that the Japanese would not become public charges. This was accepted by Mr. Munro on the condition that he should be given later a statement showing that employment had been secured by these men and where they were at work. The immigrants were then allowed to land. The passports belonging to these men were retained by the Japanese consul pending their detention. They were later given to the Boarding-House Keepers' Union, which, it is alleged, collected $5 apiece from each Japanese before returning his passport.

While the Admiral Jaureguiberry was meeting with difficulties at Vancouver, the Kumeric was having her own troubles at Honolulu. Having landed 1,400 Portuguese, she began to take on board the Japanese who had purchased their transportation for Canada. The planters, greatly incensed, threatened actions against the captain and used every means to prevent the ship putting out to sea, but she got away eventually and arrived at Vancouver on the 23d of the month.

When the Japanese boarding-house keepers of Honolulu decided on the chartering of the Kumeric, they retained Mr. Charles F. Chillingworth, a United States attorney, resident in Honolulu, as their solicitor and legal representative. Mr. Chillingworth had in his employ a Japanese interpreter, Mr. Kirochiro Maruyama. He, it appears, assisted materially in completing arrangements, and accompanied the emigrants on their voyage to Vancouver. * * *

The charterers had learned from the experience of the emigrants on board the Admiral Jaureguiberry that it would be necessary for each of the passengers on the Kumeric to have in his possession $25, in order that he might be able to comply with the regulation of the immigration department as interpreted by its officer at Vancouver. They made arrangements, therefore, to deposit a sum of money with the Theodore Davis Company sufficient to meet the amount which would be required for all the passengers, which amount was sent by draft to the charterers' agent at Vancouver, cashed by him, and distributed among the passengers before they presented themselves for examination to Doctor Munro. The following letter was given by Theodore Davis to Captain Baird of the Kumeric, and shown by him to Doctor Munro on her arrival:

"In order to comply with the immigration law of Canada, we have collected $25 from each of the passengers going to Vancouver on the Kumeric. We have done this for the sole reason that if left in their possession they might gamble it away, and on arrival there, they would not have the requisite amount of money; and, therefore, we considered it would not be safe, after collecting this money, to leave it in their hands, but that it would be better to hand the money over to you as master of the vessel, on account of the danger of carrying a large amount of ready cash. We have, therefore, sent this money to the ship's agents in Vancouver in the form of a draft, which they will cash and distribute the money among the passengers."

Doctor Munro, having seen this letter of Theodore Davis, was under the impression at the time he passed the immigrants that the whole transaction was genuine and bona fide. It appeared subsequently that the money belonging in reality to the charterers, had been put up in this way as "show" money pure and simple, and that Mr. Maruyama, who accompanied the party, had come along to see to the getting of it back after all had been landed.

When the Kumeric's 1,189 passengers had arrived, the boarding-house keepers in Vancouver were greatly concerned. They had not accommodation for more than 300, and the Japanese consul, Mr. Morikawa, was appealed to. After calling upon his worship the mayor, and conferring with Doctor Munro, Mr. Morikawa decided that it would be best to keep the party on board till he would be able to make provision for their shelter. He arranged with the street-car company to provide such cars as it could place at his disposal, and arranged that such numbers as could be handled in this way should be taken to Steveston, where temporary quarters were secured; others were to be taken around by boat to the same point on the Fraser. This was an expense incurred in the interest of the Japanese themselves, and Mr. Morikawa thought it proper that it should be met by them. Having been shown the letter which Captain Baird had in his possession, he secured the consent of the immigrants to hold this money in trust till all were properly provided for, and arranged to have a member of the consulate collect the money from each immigrant as he came off the ship. The consul, moreover, appears to have thought that the money had been put up by parties in Honolulu interested in having these emigrants sent to Canada, and he openly stated that it might help to prevent like occurrences in the future if the money did not find its way back there again.

The sight of a number of immigrant arrivals dropping $25 apiece into a sack held by an officer of the Japanese consul was too much for some of the citizens of Vancouver. The local member of the Dominion Parliament and the city solicitor each interested himself in having what seemed an extraordinary proceeding immediately stopped. Doctor Munro was sent for and gave orders that no further collections should be made, and that the money already collected should be returned. Each immigrant, therefore, landed with his $25. Had the money all been collected and returned in the manner which Mr. Morikawa thought expedient, it is probable that none of it would ever have gone back to Honolulu. As it was, many of the Japanese with this amount in their possession spurned the proffers of assistance made them by the Vancouver boarding-house keepers and sought of their own account the furtherance of the good fortune they had commenced to share the moment they put foot on Canadian soil. Mr. Maruyama had a difficult task. He was able by allowing a small commission to the boarding-house keepers to get back with their assistance some of the money which the Japanese had been allowed to retain; but Mr. Chillingworth, who happened along on the 26th of August to look after the interests of his clients, frankly admitted in an interview that the whole scheme had been a most pronounced failure, and that those for whom he was acting had been heavy losers by the venture.

But Mr. Chillingworth was not the only lawyer who interested himself in promoting this novel kind of speculation. Mr. A. V. Geer, another American attorney resident at Honolulu, and a Japanese interpreter, Kinsaburo Makino, started a similar though separate venture. The vessel chartered in this case was the Indiana, which arrived at Vancouver during August and September, carrying in the former month 306 Japanese laborers and in the latter 257.

* * * Mr. Geer and his partner, Mr. Makino, had hoped to secure 800 passengers on each trip. They were able to secure only 306 on the first trip and 257 on the second. It is believed that the venture was with them a personal speculation. * * * In any event, both expeditions were failures financially to those responsible for them, though they increased the Japanese population in this country to the extent of over half a thousand.

That the numbers from the Hawaiian Islands fell off in the manner they did was doubtless due in part to the increased success which attended the efforts of the Planters' Association, but it appears to have been due also to the efforts of the Canadian Nippon Supply Company and of the Japanese consuls at Vancouver and Honolulu.

The Canadian Nippon Supply Company, as has been shown, profited by the influx from Honolulu to the extent of obtaining only 139 laborers of the numbers who came in. These, Mr. Gotoh said, proved such poor laborers that he was obliged to sacrifice the contract under which he had put them to work. But the interests of the Canadian Nippon Supply Company, as already shown, lay with the emigration companies of Japan, not with the uncertain numbers coming from parts unknown. The supply company recognized in the agitation which these increases might provoke that the foundations of their own business were threatened, and their promoters endeavored in many ways to have the tide of Hawaiian emigration stemmed.

The Hawaiian Shimpō of July 29 contains in Japanese the following cable dispatch, which Mr. Yoshio admits having sent:

"Special cable to our office.—We received a cable message from Mr. Yoshio, director of the Canadian Nippon Supply Company, of Vancouver, 9.40 p. m., of the 27th instant: 'All emigrants completed their landing on the 26th instant. Have not any houses to stay in; can not get any work; were sent out of the city about 12 miles; white men excited about it; $25 collected for support and other expenses; the emigrants had to do this.'"

In the letters and cables sent to Japan by Mr. Gotoh and Mr. Yoshio there are frequent references to the trouble which this immigration from Hawaii was giving them, and the hope was expressed that the Government in Japan might be able to do something to put a stop to it. The following, for example, is a copy of a lengthy cable sent by Mr. Gotoh to the Yokohama-branch of the Canadian Nippon Supply Company. It is dated Vancouver, June 4, nearly two months before the above dispatch from Mr. Yoshy to the Hawaiian Shinpo and before either the Admiral Jaurequiberry or the Kumeric had sailed:

"CANADIAN NIPPON SUPPLY COMPANY,
"Yokohama:

"VANCOUVER, June 4, 1907.

"Information received by cable from Honolulu says certain steamers have been chartered for the purpose of importing another load of immigrants. If they are coming in this manner, we do not think we can provide all these emigrants coming out from Japan with work. They are taking such chances to carry emigrants out from Honolulu, because the Japanese Government has no way to interfere with these affairs. It is most undesirable to bring such a big load of emigrants to this country. Unless by some means these shipments from Honolulu are stopped I can not say whether we can take care of all emigrants coming from Japan, so try and see officers at the Foreign Office and see if there are no means to take some decided steps to stop them.

"THE CANADIAN NIPPON SUPPLY COMPANY."

The Canadian Nippon Supply Company knew only too well that any sudden influx of Japanese in large numbers was the beginning of the end with them, and they put forth what efforts they could to save their own undoing.

More effective, perhaps, in their influence in lessening the numbers of emigrants from Hawaii were the repeated cables sent by Mr. Morikawa, the Japanese consul at Vancouver, to the Japanese consul at Hawaii, and the exertions of the latter. In the same number of the Hawaiian Shinpo as that in which Mr. Yoshy's dispatch appeared, was the following article containing a cable sent by Mr. Morikawa to the consul at Honolulu. It is headed "Pitiable condition of the emigrants on Kumeric," and reads:

"Concerning the condition of the emigrants who left on the Kumeric, the local Japanese consul-general has not received any information. He sent a cable to the consul at Vancouver; received the cable this evening, as follows: Half-past 6 p. m., 27th day, by Consul Morikawa, of Vancouver, Kumeric arrived at the quarantine station on the 25th of this month. Received strict examination by immigration inspector, and yesterday afternoon they all landed. As sent in prior cable, all immigrants have not had any houses to stay; about 800 sent to Fraser River. I understand they will not be able to secure employment, and they may suffer for want of support. White labor is excited about it, and they made active demonstration. The majority of the emigrants did not know the exact condition in here, and I hope you will try every possible way to stop any more immigrants from there."

Mr. Shintaro Anno, a Vancouver Japanese contractor, who gave evidence before the Commission, testified that he was in Honolulu at the time, and that he had read in the Japanese papers there three or four cables from Mr. Morikawa to the Japanese consul at Hawaii "trying in every possible way to prevent any more immigrants coming here." Doctor Munro, the Dominion medical inspector and immigration agent, when asked if he thought any of the employment agencies in Vancouver had had anything to do with the bringing of these men from Honolulu, replied: "No, I don't think so; but I don't know anything about it. I know the Japanese consul was very averse to seeing them come here. I think the first ship was the Monteagle, and from the time of the first arrival in April the Japanese consul was anxious, and came to see me about it, and asked me if there was no way of preventing these people coming from Hawaii, and he came to my office on a number of occasions and asked me to exercise my powers to prevent these people coming." * * *

It remains to be said that with this immigration from Hawaii it is unreasonable to believe that the Japanese Government could have been in any way concerned.

The following statement made by Mr. Morikawa, in an interview reported in the Vancouver Province of July 25, 1907, appears to be a true account of the situation in so far as Mr. Morikawa's own endeavors and the attitude of the Japanese Government are concerned:

"When an intimation was first received that there was to be an exodus of Japanese from Hawaii to British Columbia, strong representations were made to the Japanese Imperial Government. The home authorities were agreed with me that the movement was unwise, and instructed me to cooperate with the Japanese consul-general at Honolulu in adopting every measure possible to prevent any of the Japanese laborers from removing to British Columbia. Many cablegrams have been exchanged during the past month in regard to the subject between here, Honolulu, and Tokyo. In endeavoring to stem the movement, we had the active cooperation of the Sugar Planters' Association of Hawaii. In a cable I sent to Honolulu just before the Kumeric sailed, I intimated the unlikelihood of the newcomers securing employment here. My advice was transmitted to the intended immigrants, but seems to have been completely disregarded."

It is true that of the immigrants from Hawaii all were provided with passports, many of them passports issued by the Foreign Office of Japan during the present year, but they were passports marked for Hawaii or Hawaii only. In going to Hawaii their holders were voluntarily allowed to pass beyond the jurisdiction of Japan; in coming to Canada it seems reasonable to assume they went beyond the wishes of the authorities by whose permission they had been allowed to emigrate at all. This seems the proper view to take, but it makes plain this fact, which is of the utmost significance, so far as Japanese immigration to Canada is concerned, that whatever may be the power of Japan to control the emigration from her own shores, that power may end when the territorial limit is crossed.

The great decrease in Japanese immigration to Canada during the year 1908 indicates that the movement from Hawaii was short lived, and also the effectiveness of an informal agreement between Canada and Japan, whereby the issue of passports for Japanese coming to Canada is limited to 400 annually.

HINDU IMMIGRATION.

Hindu, or East Indian, immigrants were the latest to become a factor in Canada's oriental immigration problem, but owing to quick and vigorous action on the part of the Dominion the movement was of brief duration. The following statement of arrivals during the past five fiscal years illustrates the rise and fall, as well as the extent, of Hindu immigration to Canada:

1905.....	48
1906.....	387
1907 (9 months).....	2, 124
1908.....	2, 623
1909.....	6
1910 (5 months).....	1

Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, in his report on oriental laborers in Canada, previously referred to, says:^a

Mr. David E. Brown, general superintendent of the trans-Pacific service of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who lived for fourteen years in Hongkong, and had charge of the company's business in the Orient, when asked before the Commission if he could suggest what had brought the Hindus to Canada in such numbers within the past year, stated in reply that he would say that the movement had had its origin in the visit of the soldiers of the different colonies of the Empire to London, at the time of the Queen's jubilee; that the Indian troops who had returned home via Canada had been made much of, and were impressed by the country and its opportunities; that Indians were employed very largely as police in Hongkong, and that it was from among their number that the movement had started in the first instance. Asked what year that would be, Mr. Brown replied "five or six years ago; possibly three or four; it was about a year after, or two years after the Queen's jubilee." When it was pointed out that the Queen's jubilee was in 1897, Mr. Brown said: "Well, say five or six years after they would get back home. As satisfactory reports were sent back by these men on this side others would be induced to come."

There are some, doubtless, who share Mr. Brown's view, which at least is an agreeable one, creating, as it does, the impression that immigration from India had its beginnings from a cause essentially imperial and patriotic. On the other hand, the evidence of the Indians who testified before the commission indicates pretty clearly that the immigration from India which has been a matter of concern to the people of ^a Report of the Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the methods by which oriental laborers have been induced to come to Canada. W. L. Mackenzie King, C. M. G., Commissioner, Ottawa, 1908, pp. 75, 76.

British Columbia owes its origin to aims and methods which were anything but imperial or patriotic; that in fact the influx of recent years has not been spontaneous, but owes its existence in the main to (1) the activity of certain steamship companies and agents desirous of selling transportation and profiting by the commissions; (2) the distribution throughout some of the rural districts of India of literature concerning Canada and the opportunities of fortune-making in the province of British Columbia; and (3) the representations of a few individuals in the province of British Columbia, among the number a Brahmin named Davichand, and certain of his relatives, who induced a number of the natives of India to come to Canada under actual or verbal agreements to work for hire, the purpose being that of assisting one or two industrial concerns to obtain a class of unskilled labor at a price below the current rate, and at the same time of exploiting their fellow-subjects to their own advantage. Some of the natives may have emigrated to Canada of their own accord or because of the advice or desire of relatives who had come to this country, but had the influences here mentioned not been exerted, it is certain that their numbers would not have been appreciable.

Whatever may have caused the beginning and rapid growth of Hindu immigration to Canada, the reason for its decline is clear. Canada, and particularly British Columbia, did not want the Hindus as immigrants, but the fact that citizens of Canada and India were alike British subjects made the problem a delicate one. Consequently Mr. King was, in 1908, sent on a mission to England "to confer with the British authorities on the subject of immigration to Canada from the Orient, and immigration from India in particular."

That the desired end was attained is indicated by the fact that in the fiscal year 1909 following Mr. King's conference with the British authorities only 6 Hindu immigrants were admitted to Canada, whereas the number for the previous year was 2,623. How this was accomplished is stated in Mr. King's report upon his mission to England, from which is quoted the following statement:^a

The question of the migration of peoples of the Orient, and the problems to which it gives rise, whether it be in connection with immigration or emigration as between different parts of the British Empire, or between portions of the British Empire and foreign countries, is by no means a new one to the British authorities. Australasia, South Africa, and India have each forced a consideration of the subject upon the attention of British statesmen for years past. Of the outlying dominions, Canada's experience has been the most recent, though in kind the issues and possibilities involved are much the same. As between Great Britain and Canada the effect of this is not without its advantage to the Dominion. It has afforded in England a ready appreciation of Canada's position, and an understanding of the sort of considerations of which it is necessary to take account. That Canada should desire to restrict immigration from the Orient is regarded as natural; that Canada should remain a white man's country is believed to be not only desirable for economic and social reasons, but highly necessary on political and national grounds. * * *

It was clearly recognized in regard to emigration from India to Canada that the native of India is not a person suited to this country; that, accustomed as many of them are to the conditions of a tropical climate, and possessing manners and customs so unlike those of our own people, their inability to readily adapt themselves to surroundings entirely different could not do other than entail an amount of privation and suffering which render a discontinuance of such immigration most desirable in the interest of the Indians themselves. It was recognized, too, that the competition of this class of labor, though not likely to prove effective, if left to itself, might none the less, were the numbers to become considerable (as conceivably could happen were self-interest on the part of individuals to be allowed to override considerations of humanity and national well-being and the importation of this class of labor under contract permitted), occasion considerable unrest among workingmen whose standard of comfort is of a higher order, and who, as citizens with family and civic obligations, have expenditures to meet and a status to maintain which the coolie immigrant is in a position wholly to ignore.

My inquiry under Royal Commission into the methods by which oriental laborers have been induced to come to Canada, which was conducted in the city of Vancouver during the months of November and December of last year, though not extensively pursued so far as the immigration from India is concerned, was quite sufficient to show that this immigration was not spontaneous, but owed its existence, among other influences, to—

(1) The distribution throughout certain of the rural districts of India of glowing accounts of the opportunities of fortune-making in the province of British Columbia, visions of fields of fortune so brightly hued that many an India peasant farmer, to raise the money for the journey, had mortgaged to the lender of the village his homestead and all that it contained at a rate of interest varying from 15 to 20 per cent.

(2) The activity of certain steamship agents who were desirous of selling transportation in the interest of the companies with which they were connected and of themselves profiting by the commissions reaped.

(3) The activity of certain individuals in the province of British Columbia, among the number one or two Brahmins, who were desirous of exploiting their fellow-subjects, and certain industrial concerns which, with the object of obtaining a class of unskilled labor at a price below the current rate, assisted in inducing a number of the natives to leave under actual or virtual agreements to work for hire.

A few of the natives may have emigrated to Canada of their own accord, or because of the desire of relatives, but had the aforementioned influences not been exerted it is doubtful if their numbers would have been appreciable.

How these several influences have been counteracted and an effective restriction obtained by administrative measures in such a manner as to render legislative action unnecessary will be apparent from an account of what has been accomplished, as the result, in part, of the present negotiations and, in part, of legislative enactments and regulations already in force, the application of which to this class of immigration has not been hitherto wholly apparent.

(1) The misleading effects of the distribution by interested parties of literature of the class above described has been offset by warnings which the government of India has issued, whereby the natives have become informed of the risks involved in emigration to Canada, and of the actual conditions in so far as it is desirable that such should be known to persons about to sever their connection with one country for the purpose of taking up residence in another.

(2) The steamship companies which have been in any way responsible for the recruiting of emigrants have been given to understand that the governments of Great Britain and Canada and the authorities in India do not view with favor any action on their part calculated to foster further emigration from India to Canada.

(3) The power of the steamship companies to ignore the wishes of the governments has been rendered largely inoperative by the application to emigration from India of the regulation of the Dominion government prohibiting the landing in Canada of immigrants who come to this country otherwise than by a continuous journey from the country of which they are natives or citizens, and upon through tickets purchased in that country.

(4) The Indian emigration act (XXI, of 1883) was framed with the view of affording protection to the natives of India who, at the instance of private individuals or corporations, might be induced to leave India to work under indenture or agreements for hire in other parts of the Empire, or in foreign lands. It was found that once away from India advantage was not infrequently taken of the necessities of this class of labor, and that individuals were subjected to great hardships and privation. To remedy this the act provides that emigration in the sense of the departure by sea out of British India of a native of India, under an agreement to labor for hire in some country beyond the limits of India, other than the island of Ceylon or the Straits Settlements, is not lawful except to countries specified in the schedule of the act, "and to such other countries as the governor in council from time to time by notification declares to be countries to which emigration is lawful." Every such notification "must contain a declaration that the governor-general in council has been duly certified that the government of the country to which the notification refers has made such laws and other provisions as the governor-general in council thinks sufficient for the protection of emigrants to that country during their residence therein."

It is therefore to be said that emigration (in the sense defined) to Canada from India is not lawful under the Indian emigration act, and can not be made lawful except through the action of the Canadian government in making the necessary laws, to the satisfaction of the government of India, for the protection of Indian emigrants.

It will therefore be seen that of itself the Indian emigration act solves the problem, so far as it relates to the importation of contract labor from India to Canada, and this is the one class to be feared, since without some agreement to labor it is hardly to be expected that the number of immigrants will be large. To render this law wholly effective so far as Canada is concerned, it would be sufficient to prohibit the landing in Canada of immigrants who come in violation of the laws of their own country.

(5) With the danger of the importation of native labor under contract or agreement removed, there remains for consideration only such classes as might desire to emigrate from India of their own initiative, or as having left India and gone elsewhere—to China, for example—might be induced by agreement or otherwise, to emigrate to this country. To the immigration of the latter class the regulation of the Canadian government requiring a continuous passage from the country of which they are natives or citizens and upon through tickets, should prove an effective bar, whilst as to the former the same regulation, the warnings issued by the government of India, and the greater care which it may reasonably be expected the steamship companies will exercise in the future, should prove a real deterrent. It will be apparent, moreover, that having regard for the policy of the India government in the protection of the natives as set forth in the Indian emigration act, the government of Canada is fully justified in requiring, as has been its policy, of persons coming to Canada without a knowledge of conditions and with manners and customs wholly different from our own, especially where such persons are ignorant of our language and are without any agreement guaranteeing work, that they should, for their own protection, be in possession of a sum of money sufficient to insure their not being reduced to a condition of mendicancy or becoming a public charge. The regulation at present in force, requiring all immigrants to have in their possession a sum of at least $25, constitutes a requirement which for the protection of the Indians themselves, is an obvious necessity. Should this amount prove inadequate it could be increased.^a

There is thus in the last analysis a dovetailing, so to speak, of Great Britain's well-known policy in the protection of the native races of India, and Canada's policy in the matter of immigration.

Whilst effective as a means of restricting a class of immigration unsuited to Canada, it will be apparent that the arrangement as herein set forth is one which finds its justification on grounds of humanity as strong as are the economic reasons by which it is also supported. The liberty of British subjects in India is safeguarded rather than curtailed, the traditional policy of Britain in respect to the native races of India has been kept in mind, and the necessity of enacting legislation either in India or in Canada which might appear to reflect on fellow British subjects in another part of the Empire has been wholly avoided. Nothing could be more unfortunate or misleading than that the impression should go forth that Canada, in seeking to regulate a matter of domestic concern, is not deeply sensible of the obligations which citizenship within the Empire entails. It is a recognition of this obligation which has caused her to adopt a course which, by removing the possibilities of injustice and friction, is best calculated to strengthen the bonds of association with the several parts and to promote the greater harmony of the whole. In this, as was to be expected, Canada has had not only the sympathy and understanding, but the hearty cooperation, of the authorities in Great Britain and India as well.

It will be noted that while Hindus are not specifically excluded, or, in fact, even mentioned in the Canadian immigration act, or orders of the governor in council relative thereto, practically insurmountable barriers have been erected against them. The most formidable of these is the application to Hindu immigrants of section 38 of the immigration act, which provides that any immigrants who have come to Canada otherwise than by continuous journey from the country of which they are natives or citizens, and upon through tickets purchased in that country, may be excluded. The peculiar efficiency of this provision is due to the fact that there is no means by which a continuous journey from India to Canada can be accomplished.

^a The amount of money required in the case of Hindus was increased from $25 to $200 by an order in council dated June 3, 1908. Appendix G, No. V.

FOREIGN ELEMENTS IN THE POPULATION OF CANADA.

The native and foreign born population of Canada in census years since 1871 is shown in the following table:

The table indicates that immigration, or at least permanent immigration, to Canada in the thirty years preceding 1901 was relatively small compared with more recent years, for in 1901 the total foreign-born population present was only 93,501 more than in 1871. There was an increase of 54.1 per cent in the total population during the period mentioned, but to this increase the foreign-born element contributed only 4.9 per cent. In the absence of data regarding children born in Canada to foreign-born parents during the time under consideration it is impossible to determine just what effect immigration has had on the total increase.

The total population of Canada by country of birth in the census years 1871, 1881, 1891, and 1901, and also the per cent that the persons of each nativity formed of the total population in those years, is shown in the following table:

It will be noted that there was a considerable falling off in the foreign-born British element in Canada's population between 1871 and 1901, this movement being particularly pronounced in the case of natives of Ireland. The total number of persons from northern and western European continental countries more than doubled during the period, but the per cent of such persons to the total population was not greatly increased. There was a striking increase, however, in the number of persons from southern and eastern European countries during the thirty years under consideration. In 1871 the number of such persons was insignificant, but the increase, particularly between 1891 and 1901, was large, and in the latter year they formed a greater per cent of the total population than did natives of northern and western continental Europe. It should be noted also that in 1901 natives of the United States were second only to persons born in England in the number from any single country resident in Canada, while in the previous census years of 1871, 1881, and 1891 they were fourth among all nationalities present. The decrease in 1901 in the number and per cent of persons born in Ireland and Scotland, however, contributed materially to this result.

In the Canadian census enumerations of 1871, 1881, and 1901 the race or descent, as well as the country of birth of individuals was secured, and because of the presence of large English and French speaking elements and the introduction and growth of other racial elements in recent years, the data are particularly valuable in a consideration of the Dominion population. The following table shows the composition of Canada's population in this regard in the census years mentioned:

It may be noted that the increase in the English element exceeded that of the French during the thirty years from 1871 to 1901. The English population during that period increased from 706,369 to 1,260,899, a gain of 78.5 per cent, while the French population increased from 1,082,940 to 1,649,371, or a gain of only 52.3 per cent. The increase in the British element as a whole, however, was only 45.1 per cent, which result is mainly due to the fact that the Irish element increased but little during the period.

- "Act." (u) "Immigration Act" or "Act" shall be held to include all orders in council, proclamations, and regulations made hereunder.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—This interpretation section is more comprehensive than that in the present Act, the object being to define every term frequently occurring in this bill which might otherwise be given various meanings by immigration officers or by Boards of Inquiry or by the courts, e. g., "family," "head of family," "immigrant," etc., have no strict legal meaning, but for immigration purposes it is expedient that their meaning should be defined and fixed.

Paragraph (d).—This is based upon the dictum of Vice-Chancellor Kindersley in the case of Lord v. Colvin (4 Drew, 376; 28 L. J. Ch., 366) as follows: "I would venture to suggest that the definition of an acquired domicile might stand thus: 'That place is properly the domicile of a person in which he has voluntarily fixed the habitation of himself and his family, not for a mere special and temporary purpose, but with a present intention of making it his permanent home, unless and until something which is unexpected, or the happening of which is uncertain, shall occur to induce him to adopt some other permanent home.'"

As to the proviso.—The two-year period of domicile required under the present Act has been changed in this bill to a three-year period. This will be in accord with the United States Immigration Act, and will also correspond with the three-year period of domicile required under our Naturalization Act; but without the present proviso an undesirable immigrant might receive a sentence of three or more years imprisonment shortly after landing in Canada and upon his release it would not be possible to deport him.

Paragraph (g).—The fact of a person belonging to any of the nonimmigrant classes does not mean that he is necessarily free to enter Canada or that he is exempt from all restrictions under this bill, but that he is exempt from sections and regulations applying to immigrants, such as possession of a required amount of cash (sec. 37), certain physical disabilities (sec. 3, par. c), payment of passage out of public moneys (sec. 3, par. h), prohibition from landing (secs. 37, 38, and 39). On the other hand, a nonimmigrant is not entitled to certain privileges and protection given to immigrants by sections 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, and 72. Nonimmigrants and immigrants are equally prohibited from landing in Canada under paragraphs (a), (b), (d), (e), and (f) of section 3.

Subparagraph ii.—This is subsection (b) of rule 2 of the United States Regulations promulgated by the United States Bureau of Immigration on July 1, 1907, specifying those exempt from payment of head tax, and reading: "Diplomatic and consular officers, and other accredited officials of foreign governments, their suites, families, and guests coming to the United States to reside or to pass through in transit."

Subparagraph iii.—This is in effect paragraph (i) of section 3 of the Australian "Immigration Restriction Act, 1901," giving a list of those exempt from the Act, and reading: "Members of the King's regular land and sea forces."

Subparagraph v.—This is to provide that students from other countries shall not be debarred from the privilege of a Canadian education on account merely of not complying with the physical, mental, or financial standard required of immigrants. There is a special Act governing the entrance of Chinese students into Canada.

Subparagraph vii.—This feature is borrowed from the Australian Act above referred to, paragraph (h) of section 3, dealing with prohibited classes, reading, "But the following are excepted: (h) Any person possessed of a certificate of exemption in force for the time being in the form in the schedule, signed by the Minister or by any officer appointed under this Act, whether within or without the Commonwealth." (See explanatory note to section 4.)

Paragraph (k).—To the definition of "stowaway" under the present Act has been added a clause which will include tramps who pass from the United States into Canada concealed on freight-cars.

PROHIBITED CLASSES.

3. No immigrant, passenger, or other person, unless he is a Canadian citizen, shall be permitted to land in Canada, or in case of having landed in or entered Canada shall be permitted to remain therein, who belongs to any of the following classes, hereinafter called "prohibited classes:"—

(a) Idiots, imbeciles, feeble-minded persons, epileptics, insane persons, and persons who have been insane within five years previous.

(b) Persons afflicted with any loathsome disease, or with a disease which is contagious or infectious, or which may become dangerous to the public health, whether such persons intend to settle in Canada or only to pass through Canada in transit to some other country: Provided, That if such disease is one which is curable within a reasonably short time, such persons may, subject to the regulations in that behalf, if any, be permitted to remain on board ship if hospital facilities do not exist on shore, or to leave ship for medical treatment.

(c) Immigrants who are dumb, blind, or otherwise physically defective, unless in the opinion of a Board of Inquiry or officer acting as such they have sufficient money, or have such profession, occupation, trade, employment, or classes of immigrants.

Persons mentally defective.

sons.

Persons physically defective.

other legitimate mode of earning a living that they are not liable to become a public charge or unless they belong to a family accompanying them or already in Canada and which gives security satisfactory to the Minister against such immigrants becoming a public charge.

Criminals. (d) Persons who have been convicted of any crime involving moral turpitude.

Prostitutes and pimps. (e) Prostitutes and women and girls coming to Canada for any immoral purpose, and pimps or persons living on the avails of prostitution.

Procurers. (f) Persons who procure or attempt to bring into Canada prostitutes or women or girls for the purpose of prostitution or other immoral purpose.

Beggars and vagrants. (g) Professional beggars or vagrants, or persons likely to become a public charge.

Charity immigrants. (h) Immigrants to whom money has been given or loaned for the purpose of enabling them to qualify for landing in Canada under this Act, or whose passage to Canada has been paid wholly or in part by any charitable organization, or out of public moneys, unless it is shown that the authority in writing of the Superintendent of Immigration, or in case of persons coming from Europe, the authority in writing of the assistant Superintendent of Immigration for Canada, in London, has been obtained for the landing in Canada of such persons, and that such authority has been acted upon within a period of sixty days thereafter.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—The classes mentioned in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) are among the prohibited classes under the present Act, and paragraph (g) includes the classes mentioned in the order in council of February 25, 1908, passed on a memorandum dated February 20, 1908, from the Minister of the Interior.

Permit to enter Canada. 4. The Minister may issue a written permit authorizing any person to enter Canada without being subject to the provisions of this Act. Such permit shall be in the form A of the schedule to this Act, and shall be expressed to be in force for a specified period only, but it may at any time be extended or cancelled by the Minister in writing. Such extension or cancellation shall be in the form AA of the schedule to this Act.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—As already stated, this idea is taken from the Australian "Immigration Restriction Act, 1901." It is considered expedient that there should be an ultimate power to permit any person to enter Canada, such power to be exercised through the Minister of the Interior, in order to overcome the rigidity of the Act in certain cases.

APPOINTMENT, POWERS, AND DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

Officers appointed by Governor in Council. 5. The Governor in Council may appoint a superintendent of immigration, commissioners of immigration, and such other officers as are deemed necessary for carrying out the provisions of this Act.

Immigration offices. (2) The Governor in Council may establish and maintain immigration offices at such places within and outside of Canada as from time to time seems proper.

6. Subject to any regulations in that behalf, the Minister may appoint or employ, either permanently or temporarily, any subordinate officers, not otherwise provided for, required in furtherance of the provisions and objects of this Act, including medical officers, inspectors, guards, matrons, and nurses at immigrant stations, and may confer upon them, and charge them with, such power and duties as he considers necessary or expedient.

Officers appointed by Minister.

7. Subject to any regulation in that behalf, all officers appointed or having authority under this Act may, in emergency, employ such temporary assistance as is required for carrying out any duty devolving upon them under this Act, but no such employment shall continue for a period of more than forty-eight hours without the sanction of the Minister.

Assistance in cases of emergency.

8. When at a port of entry there is no immigration officer available for duty under this Act, the chief customs officer at that port or any subordinate customs officer designated by him shall be, ex officio, an immigration officer.

Immigration agent ex officio.

9. Every officer appointed under this Act shall perform all duties prescribed for him by this Act, or by any order in council, proclamation or regulation made thereunder, and shall also perform such duties as are required of him by the Minister, either directly or through any other officer; and no action taken by any such officer under or for any purpose of this Act shall be deemed to be invalid or unauthorized merely because it was not taken by the officer specially appointed or detailed for the purpose.

Duties of officers.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—The preceding five sections are slightly remodelled from the present Act.

10. Every officer appointed under this Act shall have the authority and power of a special constable to enforce any of the provisions of this Act relating to the arrest, detention, or deportation of immigrants, aliens, or other persons.

Authority as special constable.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—It is desirable that there should be no question as to the authority of immigration officers to perform the duties of special constables in regard to arrest, detention, or deportation of persons under this Bill.

11. All constables and other peace officers in Canada, whether appointed under Dominion, provincial, or municipal authority, shall, when so directed by the Minister or by any officer under this Act, receive and execute, according to the tenor thereof, any written order of the Minister, or of the Minister of Justice, or of a Board of Inquiry, or officer acting as such, and any warrant of the Superintendent of Immigration, for the arrest, detention, or deportation of any immigrant, alien, or other person in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Duties of police to execute orders of Minister.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—It is desirable that all police throughout Canada should, without question, receive and execute any order relating to the arrest, detention, or deportation of any person under this Bill.

Right of local police to enter immigrant stations.

12. For the preservation of the peace, and in order that arrests may be made for offences against the laws of Canada, or of any province or municipality thereof, wherein the various immigrant stations are located, the officers in charge of such immigrant stations, as occasion may require, shall admit therein any constables or other peace officers charged with the enforcement of such laws; and for the purposes of this section the authority of such officers and the jurisdiction of the local courts shall extend over such immigrant stations.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—This section is borrowed from the United States Act, and is for the purpose of preventing any clash of authority between officers in charge of immigrant stations and the local police.

APPOINTMENT, POWERS AND PROCEDURE OF BOARDS OF INQUIRY.

Appointment of boards of inquiry.

13. The Minister may appoint three or more officers, of whom the immigration officer in charge shall be one, at any port of entry, to act as a permanent Board of Inquiry for the summary determination of all cases of immigrants or passengers seeking to enter Canada or detained for any cause under this Act.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—Boards of Inquiry are provided for in the present Act, but none have ever been appointed, nor have regulations been made to govern their procedure. Under the United States Act Boards of Inquiry are established at all important ports of entry, and in some cases they are established at some interior place to act for subordinate ports of entry along the Canadian and Mexican border. They are found most useful both in securing fair treatment and hearing to immigrants and in expediting the work of the immigration officers who inspect immigrants and passengers. Under this Bill the procedure of such Boards in deciding cases, and when appeal is made from their decisions, is provided for in the nine sections following. Practically the only differences from the United States procedure will be, first, A summary record instead of a complete record will be kept of the Board's proceedings (the United States boards are provided with clerks and stenographers paid for out of their "immigrant fund" secured from the head tax on aliens); second, In cases where an appeal may be taken the appellant must put up a sum of money on certain conditions, and pending the result of the appeal is detained and kept at an immigrant station or is released under bond instead of being returned to the place whence he came.

boards.

14. Such Boards of Inquiry shall have authority to determine whether an immigrant, passenger, or other person seeking to land in Canada or detained for any cause under this Act, shall be allowed to enter or remain in Canada, or shall be rejected and deported.

Hearing of cases
by board.

15. The hearing of all cases brought before such Board of Inquiry shall be separate and apart from the public, but in the presence of the immigrant, passenger, or other person concerned whenever practicable, and such immigrant, passenger, or other person shall have the right to be represented by counsel whenever any evidence or testimony touching the case is received by the Board, and a summary record of proceedings and of evidence and testimony taken shall be kept by the Board.

(2) The Board, and any member thereof, may, at discretion, administer oaths and take evidence under oath or by affirmation in any form which they deem binding upon the person being examined. ^{Taking of evidence.}

16. In all such cases such Board of Inquiry may hear, receive, and base its decision upon any evidence, considered credible or trustworthy by such Board in the circumstances of each case; and in all cases where the question of the right to enter Canada under this Act is raised the burden of proof shall rest upon the immigrant, passenger, or other person claiming such right. ^{All evidence to be received.}

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—It is considered desirable that, although counsel should be allowed to appear on behalf of any person whose case is before a Board of Inquiry, no legal question as to the nature or quality of evidence should be permitted to hamper or confuse members of the Board in arriving at a decision, they being supposed to base their decision on any evidence which by them in the circumstances of each case shall be considered credible or trustworthy.

17. The Board of Inquiry shall appoint its own chairman and secretary to keep the record of its proceedings, and in all cases and questions before it the decision of a majority of the Board shall prevail. ^{Decision of majority to prevail.}

18. There shall be no appeal from the decision of such Board of Inquiry as to the rejection and deportation of immigrants, passengers, or other persons seeking to land in Canada, when such decision is based upon a certificate of the examining medical officer to the effect that such immigrants, passengers, or other persons are afflicted with any loathsome disease, or with a disease which may become dangerous to the public health, or that they come within any of the following prohibited classes, namely, idiots, imbeciles, feeble-minded persons, epileptics, and insane persons: Provided always, That Canadian citizens shall be permitted to land in Canada as a matter of right. ^{Cases where no appeal allowed from board.}

19. In all cases other than provided for in the next preceding section an appeal may be taken to the Minister against the decision of any such Board of Inquiry or officer in charge by the immigrant, passenger, or other person concerned in the case, if the appellant forthwith serves written notice of such appeal (which notice may be in form C in the schedule to this Act), upon the officer in charge, or the officer in whose custody the appellant may be, and shall at the same time deposit with such officer the sum of twenty dollars for himself and ten dollars for each child or other person dependent upon such appellant and detained with him, such sum to be used for the purpose of defraying the cost of maintaining the appellant and those dependent upon him pending the decision of the Minister on such appeal. In case of the appeal being allowed by the Minister or by the Board of Inquiry on a rehearing, then the said sum shall be returned to the appellant; and in case of the appeal being disallowed by the Minister or by the Board of Inquiry on a rehearing, then the balance of such sum, ^{Proviso as to Canadian citizens.} ^{Cases where appeal allowed from board.} ^{Security for cost of maintenance pending appeal.}

if any, after deduction of regular detention charges for board, shall be returned to the appellant; and the appellant shall forthwith be deported.

Notice of appeal.
Stay of proceedings.

20. Notice of appeal and deposit of the said sum shall act as a stay of all proceedings until a final decision is rendered by the Minister, and within forty-eight hours after the filing of the said notice and deposit of the said sum a summary record of the case shall be forwarded by the immigration officer in charge to the Superintendent of Immigration, accompanied by his views thereon in writing.

Appellant in custody pending decision of Minister.

21. Pending the decision of the Minister, the appellant and those dependent upon him shall be kept in custody at an immigrant station, unless ordered to be released by the Minister under bond as provided for in section 33 of this Act.

When powers of board to be exercised by officer in charge.

22. When there is no Board of Inquiry at a port of entry, or at a neighbouring port to which a person detained under this Act could conveniently be conveyed, or to which a case for decision could conveniently be referred, then the officer in charge shall exercise the powers and discharge the duties of a Board of Inquiry and shall follow as nearly as may be the procedure of such Board as regards hearing and appeal and all other matters over which it has jurisdiction.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—Boards of Inquiry will probably only be established at the most important ports, but the officers in charge at other ports are to follow the procedure and exercise the powers of a Board of Inquiry as nearly as may be.

Jurisdiction of courts in cases of rejection and deportation restricted.

23. No court, and no judge or officer thereof, shall have jurisdiction to review, quash, reverse, restrain, or otherwise interfere with any proceeding, decision, or order of the Minister or of any Board of Inquiry, or officer in charge, had, made, or given under the authority and in accordance with the provisions of this Act relating to the detention or deportation of any rejected immigrant, passenger, or other person, upon any ground whatsoever, unless such person is a Canadian citizen or has Canadian domicile.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—The basic idea of this section is that no person who has been rejected by the immigration officers is to be considered in Canada at all for the purpose of appealing to Canadian courts against any action of the immigration officers authorized under this Bill. They are to be considered as if met by immigration officers and rejected by them at a foreign port. The right to land enjoyed by Canadian citizens and persons who have Canadian domicile is, however, preserved; these have recourse to the courts if their rights are interfered with by immigration officers. As to all others the immigration officers are the best judges of those who are and of those who are not qualified to land in Canada, and they should be trusted to discharge their duties justly. Moreover, there always remains the right of appeal to the Minister.

Further regulations governing boards.

24. The Governor in Council may make such further regulations governing the procedure of Boards of Inquiry and appeal therefrom as are deemed necessary.

SPECIAL PROVISION AS TO PASSENGERS BY VESSEL.

25. It shall be the duty of every transportation company bringing passengers or other persons to Canada by vessel to prevent such passengers or other persons leaving such vessel in Canada at any time or place other than as designated by the immigration officer in charge, and the failure of any such company to comply with such duty shall be an offence against this Act and shall be punished by a fine in each case of not more than one thousand dollars and not less than twenty dollars, and every passenger or other person so landed may be arrested and detained for examination as contemplated under section 33 of this Act.

Passengers to be landed only at places designated by officer in charge.

Penalty.

26. The master shall furnish to the immigration officer in charge at the port of entry a bill of health, certified by the medical officer of the vessel, such bill of health being in the form and containing such information as is required from time to time under this Act.

Bill of health.

27. Before any passengers are permitted to leave a vessel in Canada the immigration officer in charge, or any officer directed by him, may go on board and inspect such vessel and examine and take extracts from the manifest of passengers and from the bill of health.

Officer may go on board ship.

(2) The master shall permit any examination of passengers required under this Act to be made on board his vessel whenever so directed by the immigration officer in charge.

Master to permit examination of passengers on board ship.

28. Medical officers appointed under this Act shall make a physical and mental examination of all immigrants and passengers seeking to land in Canada from any ship or vessel, except in the case of Canadian citizens. Such examination shall be made in accordance with and subject to regulations prescribed by the Superintendent of Immigration under the direction or with the approval of the Minister.

Medical examination of passengers.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—It is considered advisable that the examination to be made by medical officers under this Bill shall not be rigidly prescribed in the Bill itself, but shall be made in accordance with rules and regulations to be prescribed, and which may be altered or suspended as deemed advisable on account of the class of immigrants, the time of the year, the prevalence of epidemics, the health conditions in the port of embarkation, etc.

29. The immigration officer in charge, after satisfying himself that the requirements of this Act, and of any order in council, proclamation, or regulation made thereunder, have been carried out, shall grant written permission to the master of the vessel to allow the passengers to leave the vessel.

When permission to land passengers to be granted.

SPECIAL PROVISION AS TO PASSENGERS BY LAND.

Liability of companies cooperating.

30. Every transportation company carrying passengers in Canada by land shall, for the purposes of this Act, be considered as one with any transportation company with which it cooperates or makes or affords connection, whether in Canada or not and whether under the same management or not, and shall be liable for any offence against this Act by any company with which it so cooperates or makes or affords connection.

Obligations of transportation companies bringing passengers by land.

31. Regulations made by the Governor in Council under this Act may provide that the obligations of transportation companies bringing immigrants and passengers into Canada by land shall be similar to those imposed by this Act on masters and owners of vessels bringing immigrants and passengers to Canada, including the furnishing of names and descriptions of such immigrants and passengers.

Detention of trains.

(2) Such regulations may also provide that officers under this Act shall have the power to hold and detain railway trains, cars, and other vehicles entering Canada until examination of immigrants and passengers has been made as required by this Act; and may provide penalties for noncompliance with such regulations by transportation companies, or any official or employee thereof.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—Customs officers already have this power.

Obligations of transportation companies to provide detention buildings.

(3) Such regulations may also impose a duty upon transportation companies to provide, equip, and maintain suitable buildings for the examination and detention of passengers for any purpose under this Act at such ports of entry or border stations as may be designated by the Minister; and may provide penalties for noncompliance by transportation companies with such regulations: Provided, That no transportation company shall be made liable for the safe-keeping of any person who is in custody of an officer for any cause under this Act, unless such person is on a vessel, railway train, or other vehicle belonging to or operated or controlled by such company.

Proviso.

Regulations for examination of passengers from
United States.

32. Subject to any regulations made under the preceding section, the Superintendent of Immigration, under the direction or with the approval of the Minister, shall prescribe regulations for the entry, inspection, and medical examination of immigrants and passengers along the border of Canada so as not to unnecessarily delay, impede, or annoy passengers in ordinary travel.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—Section 32 of the United States Act is to the like effect, and almost similarly worded.

LANDING OF PASSENGERS.

Landing of passengers.

33. Every passenger or other person seeking to land in Canada shall first appear before an immigration officer, and shall be forthwith examined as required under this Act, either on shipboard or on train or at some other place designated for that purpose.

(2) Every passenger or other person seeking to land in Canada shall answer truly all questions put to him by any officer when examined under the authority of this Act.

Answers to questions.

(3) Every passenger or other person so examined shall be immediately landed unless the examining officer has reason to believe that the landing of such passenger or other person would be contrary to any provision of this Act.

Doubtful cases.

(4) Every passenger or other person, as to whose right to land the examining officer has any doubt, shall be detained for further examination by the officer in charge, or by the Board of Inquiry, and such examination shall be forthwith conducted separate and apart from the public, and upon the conclusion thereof such passenger or other person shall be either immediately landed or shall be rejected and kept in custody pending his deportation.

Examination in doubtful cases.

(5) An order for deportation by a Board of Inquiry or officer in charge may be made in the form B in the schedule to this Act, and a copy of the said order shall forthwith be delivered to such passenger or other person, and a copy of the said order shall at the same time be served upon the master or owner of the ship or upon the local agent or other official of the transportation company by which such person was brought to Canada; and such person shall thereupon be deported by such company subject to any appeal which may have been entered on his behalf under section 19 of this Act.

Deportation.

(6) Every person who enters Canada except at a port of entry shall forthwith report such entry to the nearest immigration officer and present himself for examination as provided by this section.

Duty to report entry.

(7) Any person who enters Canada except at a port of entry may be arrested and detained by any officer for examination as provided under this section; and if found not to be a Canadian citizen, such entry shall in itself be sufficient cause for deportation whenever so ordered by a Board of Inquiry or officer in charge subject to any appeal which may have been entered under section 19 of this Act.

Avoiding port of entry.

(8) Any transportation company or person knowingly and wilfully landing, or assisting to land or attempting to land in Canada, any prohibited immigrant or person whose entry into Canada has been forbidden under this Act, shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on conviction, to a fine of not more than five hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars for each prohibited immigrant or other person so landed in Canada, or whose landing in Canada was so attempted.

Penalty for landing prohibited immigrant.

(9) Any transportation company or person interfering with an immigration officer in the performance of his duty under this Act, or knowingly and wilfully assisting in the escape of any person detained by an officer, or at an immigrant station, for any purpose under this Act, or Interference with officer in performance of duty.

Penalty.

giving false information to an officer, whereby such officer is induced to land or permit the landing of any person in Canada who otherwise would be refused landing for any cause under this Act or would be detained for examination, shall be guilty of an offence, and shall be liable to a fine of not more than five hundred dollars and not less than twenty dollars for each such offence.

Penalty for tourist who ceases to be such failing to report.

(10) Every person who enters Canada as a tourist or traveller or other nonimmigrant, but who ceases to be such and remains in Canada, shall forthwith report such facts to the nearest immigration officer and shall present himself before an officer for examination under this Act, and in default of so doing he shall be liable to a fine of not more than one hundred dollars and shall also be liable to deportation by order of a Board of Inquiry or officer acting as such.

Release under bond or approved deposit.

(11) Pending the final disposition of the case of any person detained or taken into custody for any cause under this Act he may be released under a bond, which bond may be in the form F in the schedule to this Act, with security approved by the officer in charge, or may be released upon deposit of money with the officer in charge in lieu of a bond, and to an amount approved by such officer; upon condition that such person shall appear before a Board of Inquiry or officer acting as such at any port of entry named by the officer in charge, and at such time as shall be named, for examination in regard to the cause or complaint on account of which he has been detained or taken into custody.

Failure to appear for examination.

(12) If such person fail to appear for examination at such time and place named, or shall fail to keep and observe every other condition under which he is so released, then such bond shall be enforced and collected, and the proceeds thereof, or the money deposited in lieu of a bond, as the case may have been, shall be paid into the hands of the Minister of Finance, and shall form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada; and such person may be taken into custody forthwith and deported by order of a Board of Inquiry or officer acting as such.

MEDICAL TREATMENT OF SICK AND DISABLED PASSENGERS.

Medical treatment.

34. A passenger or other person seeking to enter Canada or who has been rejected or is detained for any purpose under this Act, who is suffering from sickness or physical or mental disability, may whenever it is so directed by the Superintendent of Immigration or officer in charge be afforded medical treatment on board ship or in an immigrant station, or may be removed to a suitable hospital for treatment, according as the officer in charge decides is required by existing circumstances and the condition of the person's health as reported upon by the examining medical officer.

(2) If, in the opinion of the Superintendent of Immigration, or of the officer in charge, the transportation company which brought such person to Canada failed to exercise proper vigilance or care in so doing, then the cost of his hospital treatment and medical attention and maintenance shall be paid by such transportation company, and otherwise the cost thereof shall be collected from such person, and if that be not possible then the cost thereof shall be paid by the Department of the Interior.

When transportation companies liable for cost of medical treatment.

(3) The Superintendent of Immigration, or officer in charge, may, whenever it is considered necessary or advisable for the proper care of such persons, direct that a suitable attendant, or someone upon whom such person is dependent, or someone who is dependent upon such person, as the case may be, shall be kept with such person during his medical treatment on board ship or at an immigrant station or hospital, or in case of deportation from any place within Canada shall accompany such person to his port of embarkation from Canada; and the cost thereof shall be paid by the said transportation company whenever in the opinion of the Superintendent of Immigration it has failed to exercise proper vigilance or care as aforesaid, and otherwise the cost thereof shall be collected from such person, and if that be not possible then the cost thereof shall be paid by the Department of the Interior.

Cost of attendant or dependent.

35. A passenger or other person permitted to enter Canada for medical treatment under this Act shall not be regarded as landed within the meaning of this Act.

Hospital treatment not to constitute landing.

36. The Superintendent of Immigration, under the direction or with the approval of the Minister, shall prescribe regulations whereby sick and diseased persons may enter Canada for treatment and care at any health resort, hospital, sanitarium, asylum or other place or institution for the cure or care of such persons.

Regulations for entry of diseased persons for treatment at Canadian sanitariums.

REGULATIONS AS TO MONETARY AND OTHER REQUIREMENTS FROM SPECIFIED CLASSES OF IMMIGRANTS.

37. Regulations made by the Governor in Council under this Act may provide as a condition to permission to land in Canada that immigrants shall possess in their own right money to a prescribed minimum amount, which amount may vary according to the race, occupation, or destination of such immigrant, and otherwise according to the circumstances; and may also provide that all persons coming to Canada directly or indirectly from countries which issue passports to persons leaving such countries shall produce such passports on demand of the immigration officer in charge before being allowed to land in Canada.

Immigrants may be required to possess prescribed amount of money.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—This is section 20 of the present Act, amended by inserting the words "race" and "occupation" instead of "class." There is at present a regulation requiring Asiatics to possess the minimum amount of two hundred dollars before entering Canada, and this regulation is not easily justified by the word "class" in section 20 of the present Act. A similar cash guarantee against becoming public charges might also be required of other races deemed unsuitable to the climate or needs of Canada, and in order to make such regulation valid beyond question the word "race" must be used. Such regulations apply only to immigrants, they would not apply to nonimmigrant classes of the race named.

Prohibition of immigrants not coming to Canada by continuous journey.

Prohibition of landing of passengers brought by companies neglecting to comply with provisions of this Act.

38. The Governor in Council may, by proclamation or order whenever he deems it necessary or expedient—

(a) Prohibit the landing in Canada or at any specified port of entry in Canada of any immigrant who has come to Canada otherwise than by continuous journey from the country of which he is a native or naturalized citizen, and upon a through ticket purchased in that country.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—This is the order in council of May 27, 1908, amended so as to limit the restriction therein, whenever considered expedient, to any specified port of entry instead of to the whole of Canada.

(b) Prohibit the landing in Canada of passengers brought to Canada by any transportation company which refuses or neglects to comply with the provisions of this Act.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—It has more than once happened that foreign transportation companies, with no connecting links or property in Canada, have refused to convey back rejected passengers. The way to control such companies is to refuse their passengers permission to land in Canada at the ports to which such companies bring them.

Prohibition of specified classes of immigrants and closing of specified ports.

(c) Prohibit for a stated period, or permanently, the landing in Canada, or the landing at any specified port of entry in Canada, of immigrants belonging to any race deemed unsuited to the climate or requirements of Canada, or of immigrants of any specified class, occupation, or character.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—There should be power given the Government to check, in extreme cases, any sudden influx of immigrants whose habits of life or physical or moral characteristics, are repugnant to Canadian ideals, or whose entry in unexpected large numbers would tend to lower the Canadian standards of living, or would have an unsettling effect upon local labour markets. Such contingency has already occurred at ports upon the Pacific coast, and might at any time occur at the Atlantic ports. Orders in Council under authority of the present Act were passed adopting the expedient set forth in paragraph (a) of this section, and these to a large extent met the necessities of the case on the Pacific coast two years ago, but it is thought desirable that more complete and effective powers should be given the Government to meet similar situations in future.

Duty of companies to reconvey rejected immigrants to country of birth or citizenship.

39. When any immigrant or other person is rejected or ordered to be deported from Canada, and such person has not come to Canada by continuous journey from the country of which he is a native or naturalized citizen, but has come indirectly through another country, which refuses to allow such person to return or be returned to it, then the transportation company bringing such person to such other country shall deport such person from Canada to the country of which he is a native or naturalized citizen whenever so directed by the Minister or Superintendent of Immigration and at the cost of such transportation company, and in case of neglect or refusal so to do, such transportation company shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be liable to a fine of not more than five hundred dollars and not less than twenty dollars for each such offence.

Penalty.

DEPORTATION OF PROHIBITED AND UNDESIRABLE CLASSES.

40. Whenever any person, other than a Canadian citizen, within three years after landing in Canada has been convicted of a criminal offence in Canada, or has become a prostitute or an inmate of a house of ill-fame, or by common repute has become a procurer or pimp or person living on the avails of prostitution, or has become a professional beggar or a public charge, or an inmate of a penitentiary, gaol, reformatory, prison, hospital, insane asylum or public charitable institution, or enters or remains in Canada contrary to any provision of this Act, it shall be the duty of any officer cognizant thereof, and the duty of the clerk, secretary or other official of any municipality in Canada wherein such person may be, to forthwith send a written complaint thereof to the Minister or Superintendent of Immigration, giving full particulars.

Duty of officer to send complaint to Minister regarding undesirable classes.

41. Whenever any person other than a Canadian citizen advocates in Canada the overthrow by force or violence of the government of Great Britain or Canada, or other British dominion, colony, possession, or dependency, or the overthrow by force or violence of constituted law and authority, or the assassination of any official of the Government of Great Britain or Canada or other British dominion, colony, possession, or dependency, or of any foreign government, or shall by word or act create or attempt to create riot or public disorder in Canada, or shall by common repute belong to or be suspected of belonging to any secret society or organization which extorts money from, or in any way attempts to control, any resident of Canada by force or threat of bodily harm, or by blackmail; such person for the purposes of this Act shall be considered and classed as an undesirable immigrant, and it shall be the duty of any officer becoming cognizant thereof, and the duty of the clerk, secretary, or other official of any municipality in Canada wherein such person may be, to forthwith send a written complaint thereof to the Minister or Superintendent of Immigration, giving full particulars.

Duty of officers to send complaint to Minister concerning certain acts of undesirable classes.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—Section 2 of the United States Act reads in part as follows: "That the following classes of aliens shall be excluded from admission into the United States: * * * persons who believe in or advocate the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of the United States, or of all government, or of all forms of law, or the assassination of public officials." This part of the United States section is aimed at anarchists. A special bureau has been created at Washington to deal with anarchists. But the secret criminal black-mailing organizations introduced by foreigners from southern Europe now constitute a greater menace in the United States than do the anarchists. Of these the Black Hand and Mafia organizations are the chief. The Che Kung Tong, or Order of Chinese Highbinders, is a somewhat similar organization, but its objects are partly political. They limit their criminal practices, however, to blackmailing and killing other Chinese. In dealing with these organizations, our police system, and the assumption in criminal trials of the innocence of the accused, makes it difficult to secure convictions. Their leaders, both European and Chinese, are often well known to the police, but they work through subordinate accomplices who stand in fear of them, and are very clever in avoiding any direct incriminating evidence against themselves. With the exception of the Che Kung Tong these organizations have not yet been very active in Canada, but with the increase of immigration from southern Europe it is inevitable that they will become as great an evil in Canada as in the United States unless the necessary power is given to root them out whenever they appear, as provided for in the next section.

Investigation of complaints concerning undesirable classes.

42. Upon receiving a complaint from any officer, or from any clerk or secretary or other official of a municipality, whether directly or through the Superintendent of Immigration, against any person alleged to belong to any prohibited or undesirable class, the Minister may order such person to be taken into custody and detained at an immigrant station for examination and an investigation of the facts alleged in the said complaint to be made by a Board of Inquiry or by an officer acting as such. Such Board of Inquiry or officer shall have the same powers and privileges, and shall follow the same procedure, as if the person against whom complaint is made were being examined before landing as provided in section 33 of this Act; and similarly the person against whom complaint is made shall have the same rights and privileges as he would have if seeking to land in Canada.

such cases.

(2) If upon investigation of the facts such Board of Inquiry or examining officer is satisfied that such person belongs to any of the undesirable classes mentioned in section 41 of this Act, such person shall be deported forthwith, as provided for in section 33 of this Act, subject, however, to such right of appeal as he may have to the Minister.

Order to leave Canada.

(3) The Governor in Council may, at any time, order any such person found by a Board of Inquiry or examining officer to belong to any of the undesirable or prohibited classes referred to in sections 40, 41, and 42 of this Act to leave Canada within a specified period. Such order may be in the form D in the schedule to this Act, and shall be in force as soon as it is served upon such person, or is left for him by any officer at the last known place of abode or address of such person.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—Just as under section 3 of this Bill power is given the Government to permit any person to enter Canada, so, on the other hand, it is thought that there should be an ultimate power given the Government to order undesirable immigrants, such as are contemplated in section 41, to leave Canada and not return without permission. At the same time it would relieve the immigration officers from the difficulty of returning such persons to the country from which they came, and which might refuse to take them back. The burden of deportation would be shifted upon the offenders themselves.

(4) Any person rejected or deported under this Act who enters or remains in or returns to Canada after such rejection or deportation without a permit under this Act or other lawful excuse, or who refuses or neglects to leave Canada when ordered so to do by the Governor in Council as provided for in this section, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and may forthwith be arrested by any officer and be deported on an order from the Minister or the Superintendent of Immigration, or may be prosecuted for such offence, and shall be liable, on conviction, to two years imprisonment, and immediately after expiry of any sentence imposed for such offence, may be again deported or ordered to leave Canada under this section.

Penalty for rejected or deported person remaining in or reentering Canada.

(5) In any case where deportation of the head of a family is ordered, all dependent members of the family may be deported at the same time. And in any case where deportation of a dependent member of a family is ordered on account of having become a public charge, and in the opinion of the Minister such circumstance is due to wilful neglect or nonsupport by the head or other members of the family morally bound to support such dependent members, then all members of the family may be deported at the same time. Such deportation shall be at the cost of the persons so deported; and if that be not possible then the cost of such deportation shall be paid by the Department of the Interior.

Deportation of head of family.

Deportation of dependent member of family.

43. When any person has, within three years of landing in Canada, become an inmate of a penitentiary, gaol, reformatory, or prison, the Minister of Justice may, upon the request of the Minister of the Interior, issue an order to the warden or governor of such penitentiary, gaol, reformatory, or prison, which order may be in the form E in the schedule to this Act, commanding him after the sentence or term of imprisonment of such person has expired to detain such person for, and deliver him to, the officer named in the warrant issued by the Superintendent of Immigration, which warrant may be in the form EE in the schedule to this Act, with a view to the deportation of such person.

Detention of certain prisoners for deportation.

(2) Such order of the Minister of Justice shall be sufficient authority to the warden or governor of the penitentiary, gaol, reformatory, or prison, as the case may be, to detain and deliver such person to the officer named in the warrant of the Superintendent of Immigration as aforesaid, and such warden or governor shall obey such order, and such warrant of the Superintendent of Immigration shall be sufficient authority to the officer named therein to detain such person in his custody, or in custody at any immigrant station, until such person is delivered to the authorized agent of the transportation company which brought such person into Canada, with a view to deportation as herein provided.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—The preceding section is remodelled from section 33 of the present Act, the two main differences being that a prisoner may not be taken from prison for deportation before expiry of his sentence; and after expiry of his sentence he may be detained by the gaoler to be delivered to an immigration officer for deportation, when such has been ordered.

OBLIGATIONS OF TRANSPORTATION COMPANIES IN CASES OF REJECTION AND DEPORTATION.

Return of rejected immigrants.

44. Every immigrant, passenger, stowaway, or other person brought to Canada by a transportation company and rejected by the Board of Inquiry or officer in charge shall, if practicable, be sent back to the place whence he came on the vessel, railway train, or other vehicle by which he was brought to Canada. The cost of his maintenance, while being detained at any immigrant station after having been rejected, as well as the cost of his return, shall be paid by such transportation company.

Refusal to receive on board.

(2) If any such transportation company—
(a) Refuses to receive any such person back on board of such vessel, railway train, or other vehicle, or on board of any other vessel, railway train, or other vehicle owned or operated by the same transportation company, when so directed by the officer in charge; or,

Failure to detain.

(b) Fails to detain any such person thereon; or,

Failure to return.

(c) Refuses or fails to return him to the place whence he came to Canada; or,

Failure to pay cost of maintenance.

(d) Refuses or fails to pay the cost of his maintenance while on land awaiting deportation; or,

ported person for maintenance.

(e) Makes any charge against any such person for his maintenance while on land, or for his return to the port of embarkation, or takes any security from any such person for the payment of such charge—

Penalty.

Such master, agent, owner, or transportation company concerned shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be liable to a fine of not more than five hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars for each offence; and no such vessel shall have clearance from any port of Canada until such fine is paid.

Deportation by vessel of persons who have been landed in Canada.

45. Every person ordered to be deported under this Act who has been brought to Canada by ship, shall be reconveyed free of charge by the same transportation company which brought him to Canada, from the place in Canada where he is being detained or held for deportation to the port of embarkation whence he came to Canada, and in the same manner as to passage accommodation by which he was brought to Canada; and similarly every such person brought to Canada by a railway train or other vehicle shall, subject to the regulations under sections 31 and 32 of this Act, be reconveyed free of charge by the transportation company which carried him to the place in Canada where he is rejected or where he is being detained for deportation to the place in the country whence he was brought or to the country of his birth or citizenship.

46. Every transportation company which refuses or neglects to comply with the order of the Minister or Superintendent of Immigration or Board of Inquiry or officer acting as such to take on board, guard safely, and return to the country whence he came, or to the country of his birth or citizenship, any passenger or other person brought to Canada by such transportation company and ordered to be deported under the provisions of this Act shall be liable to a fine of not more than five hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars in each case.

Penalty on transportation company refusing to return person ordered to be deported.

47. The Superintendent of Immigration, under the direction or with the consent of the Minister, shall prescribe regulations for the proper detention and treatment on board ship or railway train or other vehicle, of all persons who have been ordered to be deported under this Act, both while awaiting and during deportation.

Regulations for proper treatment of persons deported.

48. Every transportation company which, through the connivance or negligence of any of its officials or employees, permits the escape of any person delivered into the custody of such transportation company by any officer for deportation under this Act shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars for each offence.

Penalty on transportation company permitting escape of person ordered to be deported.

(2) In the event of such person escaping from the custody of a transportation company, it shall be the duty of the master of the vessel, conductor of the train, dockmaster, special constable or other official or employee of the transportation company in whose custody such person then was, to immediately report such escape to the nearest available immigration officer; and it shall also be the duty of the said company forthwith to report such escape to the Superintendent of Immigration, and such report shall state when and from whom such person was received, and the time and mode of escape. Failure on the part of such master, conductor, or other official to so report to the nearest available immigration officer shall render him liable to a penalty of not more than twenty dollars and not less than ten dollars for each offence, and failure on the part of the transportation company to so report to the Superintendent of Immigration shall render such company liable to a fine of not more than one hundred dollars and not less than twenty dollars for each offence.

Duty to notify immigration officer when such person escapes.

OBLIGATIONS OF MASTERS OF VESSELS AND PILOTS.

49. The master of every vessel arriving at any port of entry in Canada shall forthwith after such arrival, and before any entry of such vessel is allowed, deliver to the immigration officer in charge a manifest in the form prescribed by the Superintendent of Immigration, of all the passengers and stowaways on board such vessel at the time of her departure from the port or place whence she last cleared or sailed for Canada, or who were on board such vessel at the time of her arrival in Canada, or at any time during her voyage; and such manifest shall also state the name and apparent age of all passengers on board of such vessel on such voyage who are insane, idiotic, epileptic, dumb, blind, or infirm, or suffering from any disease or injury or physical defect which may be cause for rejection under this Act, and whether or not they are accompanied by relatives able to support them.

Manifest to be delivered by master to immigration officer.

Entry as to passengers who have been born or have died during voyage.

(2) Such manifest shall further state if any birth has taken place during the voyage, and shall state the name, age and last place of residence of any person who has died during the voyage, and shall specify the cause of death and whether such person was accompanied by relatives or other persons who are entitled to take charge of the moneys and effects left by such person and the disposition made thereof.

Disposal of property of deceased passengers.

(3) If there were no such relatives or other persons so entitled the manifest shall fully designate the quantity and description of the property, whether money or otherwise, left by such person; and the master of the vessel shall pay over to the immigration officer in charge at the port at which the vessel is entered, and fully account for, all moneys and effects belonging to any person who has died on the voyage. The officer in charge shall thereupon give to the master a receipt for all moneys or effects so placed in his hands by the master, which receipt shall contain a full description of the nature or amount thereof.

(a) To deliver such manifest required by this section;

(c) Wilfully or negligently makes any false statement in such manifest—

Penalty.

He shall be guilty of an offence against this Act and shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than twenty dollars for every person with regard to whom any such omission occurs or any such false statement is made.

Entry in manifest of additional passengers.

Proviso.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—This is to enable the immigration officers to keep a check upon emigration from, as well as immigration into, Canada, and is desirable for many reasons. Money is being spent, for instance, to induce desirable immigration from Great Britain, both directly by the Immigration Department and indirectly by the Salvation Army and similar agencies. At present there is no way of accurately determining how many immigrants thus brought to Canada subsequently return to Great Britain. This provision will also be useful in noting the coming and going of Asiatic immigrants. The information required under this section can easily be given by every passenger on purchasing his ticket, being limited to questions of nationality, sex, and port of destination.

52. If the master of any vessel arriving at any port of entry in Canada permits any passenger to leave the vessel before he has delivered to the immigration officer in charge a correct manifest in the form prescribed by the regulations in that behalf, and received permission from the officer in charge to allow the passengers to land, he shall be liable to a fine of not more than one hundred dollars and not less than twenty dollars for every passenger so leaving the vessel.

Passenger may leave vessel before arrival at port of destination.

53. Nothing in this Act shall prevent the master of any vessel from permitting any passenger to leave the vessel outside of Canada at the request of such passenger before the arrival of the vessel at her final port of destination; but in every such case the name of the passenger so leaving shall be entered in the manifest of passengers made out at the time of the clearing of the vessel from the port of departure or at the port at which such passenger was embarked.

Penalty.

PROTECTION OF IMMIGRANTS.

55. Every person who causes or procures the publication or circulation, by advertisement or otherwise, in a country outside of Canada, of false representations as to the opportunities for employment in Canada, or as to the state of the labour market in Canada, intended or adapted to encourage or induce, or to deter or prevent, the immigration into Canada of persons resident in such outside country, or who does anything in Canada for the purpose of causing or procuring the communication to any resident of such country of any such representations which are thereafter so published, circulated or communicated, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and liable on summary conviction before two justices of the peace, to a fine of not more than five hundred dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to both fine and imprisonment.

57. No officer, seaman or other person on board of a vessel bringing immigrants to Canada shall, while such vessel is in Canadian waters, entice or admit any female immigrant into his apartment, or, except by the direction or permission of the master of such vessel, first given for such purpose, visit or frequent any part of such vessel assigned to female passengers.

Intercourse between crew and female immigrants.

(2) Every officer, seaman or other man employed on board of a vessel bringing immigrants to Canada, who, while such vessel is in Canadian waters, entices or admits any female immigrant into his apartment or, except by the direction or permission of the master of such vessel first given, visits or frequents any part of such vessel assigned to female passengers, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act and shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every such offence.

59. If any vessel from any port or place outside of Canada comes within the limits of Canada having on board, or having had on board, at any time during her voyage—

(a) Any greater number of passengers than one adult passenger for every fifteen clear superficial feet on each deck of such vessel appropriated to the use of such passengers, and unoccupied by stores or other goods not being the personal luggage of such passengers; or,

(b) A greater number of persons, including the master and crew and the cabin passengers, if any, than one for every two tons of the tonnage of such vessel, calculated in the manner used for ascertaining the tonnage of British ships—

Passengers to be landed free of expense.

62. The Minister or the Superintendent of Immigration may, from time to time, by instructions to the immigration officer in charge, appoint the places at which passengers arriving at such port shall be landed.

(2) If upon such inquiry it appears to the satisfaction of the Minister that such company or person has been guilty of such violation, the Minister may require such company or person to make such compensation to the person aggrieved, or to do such other thing, as is just and reasonable; or may adopt measures for causing such proceeding to be instituted against such company or person as the case requires.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—The preceding seven sections are from the present Act, slightly remodelled to meet the terms of this Bill.

Regulations respecting employment agencies.

66. The Governor in Council may make such regulations and impose such penalties as are deemed expedient to safeguard the interests of immigrants seeking employment from any companies, firms, or persons carrying on the business of intelligence offices or employment or labour agencies at any place in Canada.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.—There have been many complaints from various parts of Canada during the past year against the operations of persons who secure employment for immigrants on terms that are subsequently discovered to be oppressive and sometimes fraudulent, and who take exorbitant fees for securing or even promising to secure employment. In many cases these persons are beyond reach of the Criminal Code. It is desirable in the interests of newly arrived immigrants that the business of labour and employment agencies should be subject to such regulation as may from time to time be considered advisable by the Governor in Council.

IMMIGRANT RUNNERS.

Licenses for immigrant runners.

67. The Superintendent of Immigration may issue to agents of transportation companies, forwarding and transfer companies, hotels, and boarding houses, a license authorizing such persons to exercise the vocation of immigrant runners, or of soliciting the patronage of immigrants for their respective companies, hotels, or boarding houses, or of booking passengers. Such license shall be in the form prescribed by the Superintendent of Immigration, and may at any time be cancelled by him under the direction or with the consent of the Minister.

70. No licensed immigrant runner, or agent or person acting on behalf of any transportation company, or other person, shall go on board any vessel after such vessel has arrived in Canadian waters until all passengers thereon have been landed, or shall go into any immigrant station, unless he is authorized so to do by the Superintendent of Immigration or officer in charge.

That immigrant inspectors and other immigration officers, clerks, and employees, shall hereafter be appointed and their compensation fixed and raised or decreased from time to time by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, upon the recommendation of the Commissioner-General of Immigration and in accordance with the provisions of the civil-service Act of January sixteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty-three: Provided, That said Secretary, in the enforcement of that portion of this Act which excludes contract laborers, may employ, without reference to the provisions of the said civil service Act, or to the various Acts relative to the compilation of the official register, such persons as he may deem advisable and from time to time fix, raise, or decrease their compensation. He may draw from the "immigrant fund" annually fifty thousand dollars or as much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended for the salaries and expenses of persons so employed and for expenses incident to such employment; and the accounting officers of the Treasury shall pass to the credit of the proper disbursing officer expenditures from said sum without itemized account whenever the Secretary of Commerce and Labor certifies that an itemized account would not be for the best interests of the Government: Provided further, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to alter the mode of appointing commissioners of immigration at the several ports of the United States as provided by the sundry civil appropriation Act approved August eighteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, or the official status of such commissioners heretofore appointed. Immigration officers shall have power to administer oaths and to take and consider evidence touching the right of any alien to enter the United States, and, where such action may be necessary, to make a written record of such evidence; and any person to whom such an oath has been administered under the provisions of this Act who shall knowingly or wilfully give false evidence or

OFFICIAL CIRCULAR OF CANADIAN SUPERINTENDENT OF IMMIGRATION.

IN RE

EXCLUSION OF OVER-SEAS IMMIGRANTS.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, CANADA,
Ottawa, June 4, 1909.

In view of the fact that the Immigration Act at present in force has been amended several times, and that in accordance with its provisions its express terms have been supplemented by several Orders in Council, there is a possibility of misunderstanding arising between the several steamship and railway companies and the Immigration Department in the application of its exclusion provisions.

As a help towards avoiding such misunderstanding it seems advisable that the immigration policy of the Canadian Government and the understanding of the Interior Department of the exclusion provisions of the Immigration Act should be stated as shortly and plainly although informally as possible:

(1) Money is expended and administration is exercised with the object of securing immigrants whose purpose in life is to occupy farm lands, either as owners, tenants, or laborers.

(2) Money is voted and administration is exercised with the object of excluding those whose presence in Canada would tend to add to the congestion of our towns and cities.

Immigration effort is made in those countries which are considered most likely to furnish the people coming within the first of the two classes above specified.

No immigration effort is made in those countries which are considered likely to furnish the people coming within the second class.

The Act is interpreted and its administration conducted throughout, to give effect to the above two distinct lines of policy.

Certain of the exclusion provisions of the Immigration Act are mandatory and apply equally to the people of every class and of every country. These are the provisions which exclude the physically, mentally, or morally unfit.

Other provisions exclude for financial or other reasons not physical, mental, or moral.

These provisions exclude:

(1) Charity aided immigrants.

(2) Europeans who have in possession less than $25 in cash besides ticket to destination, and Asiatics who have less than $200 besides ticket to destination; excepting citizens of China or Japan, in regard to whom there are special arrangements. (Chinese must pay $500 head tax; Japanese must have in possession $25 cash and a passport.)

(3) Immigrants who do not come by continuous passage from, and on ticket purchased in, the country of their birth or citizenship.

Provision is made for relaxing the first of these causes of exclusion in the case of persons who have been inspected and approved before sailing by the Assistant Superintendent of Emigration for Canada in England. No other relaxation will be made.

In regard to the second, provision is made for relaxation (a) in the case of persons going to friends permanently resident in Canada, who are capable of supporting them, and (b) in the case of those going to assured employment.

The relaxation in the case of persons going to friends only applies to persons ordinarily dependent on such friends; that is, wife or children going to husband or father; brother or sister going to brother, minors going to married or independent sisters, or parents going to children capable of supporting them.

The provision as to relaxation of the money qualification, because going to assured employment, is dealt with as follows:

(a) Immigrants from countries, other than those in which immigration effort is being made by Canada, can not be assumed by the Immigration Officials to be going to assured employment, and therefore each individual will be required to produce the amount of money the regulations call for.

(b) In view of the difficulties encountered by non-English speaking immigrants in securing employment, even though coming from the countries in which immigration effort is being made (in case of their not having the money required and ticket to destination), the agent must be satisfied by evidence which he must record that such immigrant is going to assured employment at farm work. (The over-sea countries in which immigration effort is made are: Great Britain and Ireland, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Denmark, Iceland, Norway, Sweden, and Switzerland.)

(c) In case of English-speaking immigrants, while the steamship companies must be prepared at all times for a strict enforcement of the money requirement, the agent may, in case the immigrant is otherwise desirable, accept a reasonable assurance that he will find employment, provided such employment is at farm work.

Regarding the third cause for exclusion: All immigrants who are unable to satisfy the agent either that they have independent means of support or that they are suited to farm work and intend to engage in it, are liable to be excluded under the indirect passage provision.

The officials of the Immigration Department at ocean ports are being instructed that they will be held strictly to account for the enforcement of the Act in accordance with the foregoing statement of its terms.

APPENDIX E.

OFFICIAL CIRCULAR TO BOOKING AGENTS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.

SUPPLEMENTARY CIRCULAR.

IMMIGRATION BRANCH,
DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Ottawa, November 15, 1906.

To Booking Agents in the United Kingdom:

It is the desire of the Immigration Department of Canada to have the most friendly relations with the Booking Agents of the United Kingdom. With a view to preventing misunderstanding it is deemed desirable to set forth in plain terms the purpose of the Government of Canada in pursuing an active immigration policy and the reasons governing it in the conduct of that policy.

The bonus to Booking Agents of £1 on adults and 10 shillings on children between one and eighteen is given to make it worth while for the Booking Agent to use his best exertions in securing for Canada the particular classes of people upon whom the bonus is paid.

In a country with a population of nearly fifty millions, such as the United Kingdom, which has no new territory for occupation, there must necessarily be a large yearly increase of population, which must either find an outlet or add to the congestion of the great cities. Every year there is a very large movement of people from the United Kingdom to North America. For a long time the larger part of this yearly movement went to the United States and a very small part to Canada. That which went to the United States was lost to the Empire; the part which went to Canada aided in building up the Empire.

It is not the expectation of the Government of Canada to increase unduly the outflow of people from the United Kingdom, but it is its desire to turn to the benefit of the Empire in Canada a greater proportion of the natural and necessary annual outflow from the mother country.

The Canadian Government in confining the bonus to emigrants of certain callings has selected those callings which may fairly be expected to fit people for the opportunities existing in Canada. By making special exertions to secure these classes for Canada, the Booking Agents will be doing their best for the emigrants themselves, for Canada, and for the Empire.

It is believed that, although the classes particularly desired by Canada might find a field for employment at home, the removal each year of some part of the natural increase there will leave room and opportunity for others who would, under other circumstances, be crowded out of these advantages.

The classes of people on whom bonus is paid by the Canadian Government are expected, by reason of their experience at home, to find scope for their abilities in the occupation of the vacant lands of Canada, in employment upon the lands now occupied and cultivated, or in the railway development now in progress. And while it is not asserted that people of other callings or conditions of life should not come to Canada, or may not find a career open to them in this country, it is desired to have it well understood that the Government of Canada assumes no responsibility with respect to any other immigration than that of the classes mentioned as eligible for bonus payment. It is not asserted that the farmer or farm labourer is necessarily a more desirable citizen than any other, but it is a simple fact that the demand in Canada is for people to occupy the as yet vacant lands of the country, to aid in the cultivation of those already occupied, and also to assist in providing additional transportation facilities. This it is which justifies the Government in assuming the expense of immigration effort. To go beyond the attempt to meet these requirements would be to use the money of certain classes of Canadian taxpayers for the purpose of securing competitors against them in their several callings, for which they would naturally hold the Government to account.

For these reasons Booking Agents will be good enough to understand that the present large bonus is only offered to secure the fullest compliance with its conditions, and they must expect the officials of the Immigration Branch to look strictly into every bonus claim made, not as showing any lack of faith in the Booking Agents or as discriminating against any class of people, but simply as a matter of business to make sure that money is not being paid except on the due fulfilment of conditions that have the sanction of all classes of the Canadian people, who, in fact, are paying the money.

In the circular of March 20th last, announcing the payment of £1 bonus, it was required that the person eligible by reason of his calling should be then employed in that calling and had been so employed for at least one year. This condition is altered in the new circular forwarded herewith so that the requirement is now that the person shall have been in such employment for at least one year, without special regard as to when that was, and the list of questions to be answered by the emigrant when applying for ticket has been altered accordingly.

In the circular of March 20th bonus was restricted to persons of certain classes therein mentioned, who signified their intention of following farming in Canada. This provision has been amended by adding "or railway construction work," so that whether the immediate intention is that of following farming or securing employment in railway construction work the person is eligible for bonus.

These changes enlarge the number of people upon whom bonus may properly be paid, but as they enlarge the number and to that degree are to the advantage of the Booking Agent, so the officials of the Department may be expected to hold more closely to the express terms of the circular issued and to the intent which its terms express.

It is important that the provisions of the Canadian immigration Act of last Session, prohibiting the landing in Canada of certain classes of people, should be carefully studied, (copy herewith), so that the Booking Agent will understand thoroughly that for his own credit and the advantage of his business he will not book people of these classes. They are liable to be returned to the place from whence they came at the expense of the steamship company. This liability exists for two years after their landing in Canada. It will be noticed that the following classes of people are prohibited from landing and are subject to deportation within two years:—Feeble-minded, idiotic, insane, or who have been insane within five years, afflicted with any loathsome, contagious, or infectious disease; anyone who is a pauper, who is destitute, who is a professional beggar or vagrant, or who is likely to become a public charge; any prostitute or person who lives by the proceeds of prostitution; or any convicted criminal. Persons who are deaf and dumb, blind, or infirm may be admitted if accompanied by members of the family who will be responsible for their support and safekeeping. Unless so accompanied they are subject to deportation.

Bonuses are only payable on passengers travelling by lines which land at Canadian ports or at Portland, Me., during winter, and only on persons who are British subjects.

In the past it has been found necessary on occasion to discontinue business relations with booking agencies for various reasons, such as presentation of improper claims, booking of undesirables, the special booking of artisans under contract, and improper advertising. It is hoped that no difficulties of this kind will arise in future; but as the Immigration Department is a part of the public business of Canada, it is necessary that its work and connections should be kept clear of misunderstandings of every kind. The Department would prefer not to have relations with any agency with which it might find itself at cross-purposes, and whose actions might subject its work to misrepresentation.

In the past it has not been the practice of the Department to pay bonus on first-class passengers. This has not been because such payment was contrary to the intent of the bonus system, if such passengers were of the classes listed for bonus, but because first-class passengers are not subject to inspection on arrival in Canada, and therefore the Department had no means of checking the propriety of the payments. If, however, Booking Agents will avail themselves of the provision contained in the circular herewith, which is the same as was contained in the circular of March 20, 1906, by securing a certificate from one of the accredited Agents of the Department in the United Kingdom, as therein provided, the bonus will be paid, but not otherwise.

The provision for granting certificates in the United Kingdom by emigration agents to insure payment of bonus is permissive and not compulsory. If such a certificate is granted in proper form the Immigration Department will not question the payment of the bonus. If such a certificate is not secured, then the payment of the bonus must depend upon the examination by the immigration officer at the port of landing. It is because of the necessity of inspection at port of landing that it has been found necessary to restrict payment of bonuses on emigrant passengers to those landing at Canadian ports, with the exception of those landing at Portland, Me., during winter.

Previous to issue of circular of March 20, 1906, there was some discrimination in bonuses paid under certain circumstances, but with the coming into effect of that circular, the terms of which are repeated in the accompanying circular, all booking agencies were placed on an equal footing, the same bonus being paid under the same conditions in all cases. It is the desire of the Immigration Department to deal quite fairly with all booking agencies, the result aimed at being to secure desirable emigrants for Canada up to the yearly requirements of the country.

It is not in the interest of the individual emigrant that he should remove to Canada unless there is reasonable prospect of his success here. The arrival of any large number of immigrants in this country who are unfitted for the conditions here must necessarily react against the continuance of the emigration movement. In spite of the fact that his failure to succeed is due to personal causes, the unsuccessful man will blame the country, and complain to his friends at home, thereby deterring them from coming out, and the efforts of the Immigration Department will be discredited with the people of Canada, who will therefore withdraw their support from those efforts. The men wanted in Canada are those who will do well here, who are recognized in the United Kingdom as being fit, but who are looking for the wider opportunities of the new country, not to be found at home. The efforts of the Canadian Immigration Department are not directed towards those who are merely looking for a place where they may live, but towards those who, while they are able to live under present conditions in the United Kingdom, are on the lookout for an opportunity to better their position in life.

It is suggested that Booking Agents take for future reference the home address of the emigrant upon whom bonus is to be claimed and also that of some of his relatives remaining at home.

It is the desire of the Immigration Department that its work in the United Kingdom shall be carried on in cooperation with the licensed booking agencies. So far as possible, literature and samples of products will be supplied to booking agents on application, and our salaried Agents are instructed to reply promptly to all communications received from Booking Agents, and to give all proper information, and all the assistance in their power to the legitimate booking of passengers of the classes upon which bonuses may be paid.

In the past, some booking agents have been in the habit of sending in bonus claims on persons who intended to follow mechanical pursuits in Canada, and on others who had never engaged in any of the specified occupations or who had less than one year's experience in such occupations. Kindly see that in future you make claims only upon British subjects, who have had at least one year's experience in one of the specified occupations, and who come to Canada to engage either in agricultural pursuits or railway construction, and on female domestic servants. By pursuing such a course the work of this office will be materially lessened and the just claims consequently more promptly attended to. You are also requested to see that every blank space in emigrant's application for ticket is properly filled.

The Department should be notified at once in all cases where an emigrant transfers his passage from the boat on which he originally books. The name and date of sailing of the vessel upon which he first booked should be given, as well as that of the ship to which he has been transferred.

All communications with regard to the nonpayment of any claims made should be sent direct to me. In every case the name, age, and contract ticket number of the emigrant, with the name of the vessel, and date of its sailing should be carefully given. In any case where the Canadian Government finds it necessary to deport any immigrant within twelve months of his arrival in Canada because of criminal tendency, disease, or other cause, or where the immigrant has left Canada for the United States within that period, the bonus paid upon him will be deducted from the account of the agent to whom it was paid.

W. D. SCOTT,
Superintendent of Immigration.

APPENDIX F.

AIMS AND METHODS OF CHARITABLE ORGANIZATIONS PROMOTING EMIGRATION TO CANADA FROM THE BRITISH ISLES.

[Report by J. Bruce Walker.^a]

INTERIOR DEPARTMENT OF THE GOVERNMENT OF CANADA,
EMIGRATION BRANCH,
London, S. W., January 10, 1908.

SIR: For some time I have been devoting attention to the operations of certain philanthropic and charitable societies in this country, particularly in London, as far as their connection with emigration to Canada is concerned. The work of these societies has always given me the gravest anxiety, and from the information I have been able to obtain, after a close study of their methods during the past few weeks, I desire to say to you frankly that in my judgment the classes which these organizations send to Canada are for the most part not desirable citizens. There is no doubt that all the philanthropic and charitable societies engaged in the work of emigration to Canada are able to point with satisfaction to a certain proportion of their emigrants who have been successful in the Dominion. I am very far from seeking to convey the impression that all the material sent to Canada by these organizations is either unsuitable or undesirable; I readily recognize that many gratifying instances can be shown in which the emigrants, availing themselves of the new conditions have been able to start life afresh, and are able to look forward to a life of comparative comfort and competence as compared with the conditions in their former home.

I do not think, however, that emigration to Canada is a solution of the London unemployed problem, and I do not think, speaking generally, that the class of persons coming within the scope of the associations to which I am referring in this report are suited to the requirements of Canada and are likely to succeed in any great numbers in this country, even under the most favorable conditions.

While it may be conceded that these so-called charitable and philanthropic institutions are animated by good intentions, their interests are more concerned in the benefits that will accrue to England than to the advantages gained by Canada through the medium of the emigration of their proteges.

The work of these societies may be divided into two principal parts: First, the purely philanthropic or charitable, and secondly, the state or rate-aided emigration. With regard to the first the funds are procured by insistent and widespread appeals to the benevolent, and the operations of the organizations are confined to the destitute, the unfortunate, and, to a large extent, the incompetent. No pretence is made of assisting the emigration of a man, however competent, however industrious, however ambitious, so long as he is in employment. In other words, the best class of labor in this country is discouraged, and that labor which finds itself most frequently in the market, either from incompetence, intemperance, or indifference, is the peculiar care of such organizations. When an employer of labor in London, for business reasons, is compelled to reduce his staff of employees, he does not suspend the competent and reliable workman; he weeds out for the purpose of dismissal all those who have made themselves known either by their incompetence, their intemperance, or their carelessness, and these latter become the mass of people from whom and among whom the philanthropic and charitable societies to which I allude, obtain their recruits for emigration to Canada.

At the present time and under the present condition of the emigration law there is practically no supervision exercised on this side over the work of these societies. It is claimed, of course, by the officers of these organizations that every care is taken and every anxiety shown to obtain only the most suitable for emigration to Canada. The results are shown by the material which they send to Canada, and do not warrant the belief that their efforts in these directions have been very successful. In any case, I am convinced that the societies operate amongst a very undesirable class for the purpose of emigration to Canada, and that the supervision, however well intentioned, is invariably defective and superficial. Whereas Canada is calling constantly for men accustomed to agricultural pursuits to emigrate to the Dominion, these so-called philanthropic bodies are engaged almost exclusively in operating amongst the dense masses of the congested parts of the City of London and other big cities, and are therefore seeking to meet our needs from a source that in all reason is very unlikely to supply such needs.

With regard to the State Aided and Rate Aided, these are the products of the distress committees and of the workhouses. The distress committees are bodies in large centres of population, permitted, under the terms of the Unemployed Workmen's Act, to levy a small rate as a tax upon the public for the emigration, and for provision by employment or otherwise of the unemployed in such communities. This tax is imposed up to a certain amount per pound, is used partly to provide food and shelter, partly to provide temporary employment, and partly to provide emigration. The distress committees usually operate through some recognized booking agency, providing the fares for the transportation and leaving such booking agency to provide the employment on the Canadian side. There is no supervision of an official character exercised over these emigrants. The Emigration Branch of the Department of the Interior is neither advised of their numbers, their character, nor the date of their sailing. In the present condition of the law, if a distress committee is satisfied that a booking agency organization can satisfactorily dispose of the men, the bargain is completed between that organization and the distress committee, and that is the end of it.

With reference to the Rate-Aided emigration, that is, the emigration provided by the Poor-Law Guardians, there is a certain measure of control. When, for any reason, the guardians of the district are satisfied that the inmate of a workhouse is capable of working his way in Canada or elsewhere under new conditions and with a fair start, they apply to the president of the Local Government Board for permission to appropriate from the public rates under the Poor Law a sum necessary for the emigration to Canada, say, of such person or persons. The Local Government Board has laid it down as an imperative instruction that the consent of the Assistant Superintendent of Emigration for Canada, must, in every case, be obtained before the emigration is permitted of such pauper person or persons. Here the Department is able to exercise some control, and does so, I venture to say, with good effect.

In the first place, rigorous independent enquiry is made by ourselves, in which the previous character of the family, a medical examination on a prescribed form (after the manner of a life insurance medical application form) is filled up by a properly qualified medical man, and where it can be shown that the answers are correct, the health of the persons unquestioned, and that arrangements have been made for the proper reception and employment of the individuals, the Departmental consent is given, and the consequent consent of the Local Government Board to such emigration. Emigration of this class is less in quantity than that of any other to which I have referred, and I think enquiry will bear me out in saying that notwithstanding its source it is perhaps a little more satisfactory than either that emigrated by the Unemployed Workmen's Act or the operations of charitable organizations.

The trouble, however, of a State-Aided emigration is that it is dealing with a class of persons whose position is either due to their own intemperance or incompetence, and who, for the most part, lack that self-confidence and self-reliance that is necessary for success in a new country and under new conditions.

I am satisfied that an extremely large proportion of the non-successes in English emigration is due to the unreasonable proportion of that class of emigration sent to Canada. In Scotland, where the proportion of emigrants to the population is more than double what it is in England, there are no such philanthropic societies and no such charitable organizations engaged in emigration work, and you can not but have observed how few cases of non-success there are amongst the Scottish emigrants.

In my humble judgment, the time has now come when the Department should devise rigorous and effective measures, to first discourage, and, secondly, to supervise such charitably aided emigration.

The total number of persons sent to Canada during the year 1907 by London charitable societies alone reaches the important figure of 12,336. These figures do not include all who have been sent to Canada financially assisted out of the Rates. Another 500, perhaps, might be added as covering the operations of the various distress committees throughout England, who have booked emigrants in numbers of from 10 to 50 by private booking agencies.

placed for observation and training in actual farming operations, but as these men were originally anything but farmers or rural citizens the probation can hardly be called satisfactory; the training is not very practical, and the person still retains his aversion to the country and his love of populous places.

The Church Army also interests itself in the emigration of persons who can pay their fare; young men who are sowing their wild oats; young men who are beyond parental control; young men whose relatives believe that removal from old haunts and old associations to a new country would afford a renewed opportunity for starting life afresh, and rehabilitating themselves in the good opinion of their friends, and I am afraid that not a few of the latter are selected, not from any examination, but from the personal influence of those who are desirous of obtaining the emigration of such persons.

THE CHURCH EMIGRATION SOCIETY.

This Society was not formed with the definite object of advancing the passage money of the emigrants, but a certain number of those sent out by the Society have been assisted in this way. Their method of operation is to assist those who assist themselves; in other words, to pay a portion of their transportation, but to encourage only husbands and wives with small families. I am free to confess that this organization exercises a good deal of care in the selection of their emigrants, and insists upon the guarantee of the respectability of the family in the form of a good contribution to the cost of the transportation, and also insists upon an agreement for the repayment of the proportion advanced. Last year they sent altogether 663 persons to Canada. This society is first and foremost a religious society, and exists mainly for the purpose of binding together members of the Church of England in all parts of the world.

THE CENTRAL UNEMPLOYED BODY.

This is a purely London organization, operating under the Workmen's Unemployed Act, confining its operations to the unemployed of the city of London, without regard to any particular locality in the Metropolis. I am not prepared to deny but what they take a great deal of care, and go to a great deal of trouble in sifting, selecting, and finally approving of the emigrants. The objection to their organization, however, is that they work exclusively amongst a class of people for whom there is no demand in Canada, i. e., unemployed tradesmen, artisans, mechanics, and other skilled persons, as well as general laborers. The proportion of persons with farm training coming under their care is infinitesimal, and, as I have said, it is difficult to draw the line between the unemployed and the unemployable; and yet it is amongst just such classes that the Central Unemployed Body conducts its work. During the year the Central Unemployed Body emigrated to Canada 2,842 persons, booking them directly from its own offices, sharing the preferential rate, the bonus claims, and other such considerations as could be obtained. They have, as you know, no regularly constituted organization on the Canadian side, either for the reception, distribution, or absorption of such emigrants as they send. One or two agents throughout Canada can neither take care of nor place such numbers of persons, and consequently in the total credited in this report to the East End Emigration Fund, it should be stated that 2,573 persons were handed to the East End Emigration Fund by the Central Unemployed Body, because the former society was supposed to have a better organization for the employment of the emigrants on arrival in Canada. Apart from this, however, the Central Unemployed Body sent 2,842 persons to Canada, the great majority of whom I am afraid are not at all likely to readily assimilate and adapt themselves to Canadian conditions.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

During the year 1907 the Salvation Army emigrated 406 persons whose fares were either wholly or partially advanced. These form a proportion of the 15,000, which is about the aggregate of the Salvation Army's emigration during that year. Of these 406 persons, the majority of the wholly advanced fares came from emigrants provided by local distress committees in provincial towns. These local distress committees, being assured by the Salvation Army of their power to receive and provide employment for the emigrants of these distress committees, have placed them in the hands of the Army and provided the funds. The remaining portion represents those families of wives and children of specially deserving cases where the Army itself advanced the transportation with the hope of subsequent repayment.

With reference to the emigrants of distress committees handed to the care of the army, they are open to the same objection as such emigrants when in the care of any other society. They are, for the most part, tradesmen, townsmen, and generally very incompetent and inferior ones at that. It is worth noticing, however, that out of the total of 15,000 persons claimed by the Salvation Army as having been sent to Canada in 1907, only 406 had their fares wholly or partially advanced.

THE CENTRAL EMIGRATION BOARD.

The Central Emigration Board, an executive body not at all of a philanthropic or charitable character, was brought into existence for the purpose of providing a machine for booking and emigrating the products of the provincial distress committees. The latter have not taken kindly to the organization, inasmuch as provincial distress committees object to overlooking the claims of local booking agents, probably rate payers in their community, in order to deal with the Central Emigration Board in London, from whom they receive no return and no special consideration. Consequently, therefore, notwithstanding the inauguration of this body, with considerable press display and not a little prestige from important and influential persons on the directorate, it has not done a great deal of business. During the year it sent to Canada 228 persons, the unemployed products either of certain charitable societies or distress committees. I do not know what special provision it has for obtaining work on the other side, but I am afraid the organization, if any, must be of a very restricted character.

In inclosing you, in tabulated form,^a the totals of persons emigrated by such philanthropic societies as I have dealt with in this report, I beg to offer, in the most respectful way, the suggestion for submission to the Minister, that if this emigration is not to be discouraged in toto, some means must be devised at once for its proper supervision and control.

In my opinion, it will be an unfortunate condition of affairs if such organizations are permitted, unrestricted and unrestrained, to pour upon the shores of Canada large numbers of persons, few of whom are at all fitted for our conditions and most of whom are morally and physically quite unfitted. It might be well to institute a regulation that the same permission should be obtained for the emigration of such persons as is obtained for the emigration of persons from workhouses, and it might also be permissible to insist that such organizations in England must have a complement organization in Canada and be able to show to the satisfaction of the Department their ability to absorb and employ such emigrants as they send.

As most of these organizations carry on their operations in large centres of population, they seldom reach persons of agricultural experience and, consequently, have in proportion to their numbers sent to Canada very few claims for the bonus given by the Department to persons bent upon agricultural pursuits in Canada, and I think, therefore, it would be judicious to withhold the bonus in the case of any person obtaining either a free or an assisted passage, ability to pay the necessary transportation charge being one of the most satisfactory proofs of thrift and industry.

I have discussed with the leading officers of the Local Government Board the question of the supervision of the efforts of charitable and philanthropic associations, and have been given to understand by these officials that the Local Government Board would look with great favor upon any regulations formulated by the Department tending to ensure that all charitable and philanthropic societies, either using public money or working from funds provided by public generosity, shall provide the same strict investigation into the antecedents, both moral and physical, of the persons proposed to be emigrated in like manner with the regulations adopted with reference to persons emigrated from the workhouses of England.

Your obedient servant,

J. BRUCE WALKER,

Assistant Superintendent of Emigration.

W. D. SCOTT, Esq.,

APPENDIX G.

ORDERS IN COUNCIL AND IMMIGRATION REGULATIONS.

ORDERS IN COUNCIL.

I.

CERTIFIED COPY OF A REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL, APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL ON THE 25TH FEBRUARY, 1908.

On a memorandum dated 20th February, 1908, from the Minister of the Interior, stating that a very considerable number of emigrants arriving in Canada from the British Isles have either been rejected at Canadian ports or afterwards deported from Canada as undesirables, for causes named in the Immigration Act;

That during the year 1907 there were some 141 rejections and 441 deportations of British emigrants;

That among the many charitable and philanthropic associations actively engaged in the British Isles in sending and financially assisting immigrants to Canada are some whose work is chiefly among the unemployed, destitute, and incompetent classes in the congested centres of population.

While the Minister does not contend that some of these immigrants may not make successful citizens of Canada, nevertheless it is true that it is not the object of these associations to encourage the emigration of the really competent, industrious, and ambitious man so long as he succeeds in supporting himself, and that their operations are confined almost exclusively to the class from which it is very unlikely that the needs of Canada can be properly supplied.

The class referred to includes not only the unemployed, but a large proportion of those who are a drag in the labour market from misfortune, incompetence, or indifference. In the case of these it is no alleviation of their condition to transfer them here, because our experience is that they simply continue in the same condition, and are a detriment to Canada.

While the associations engaged in this work often claim, and perhaps endeavour to use, discrimination in the matter of selection, in effect it is found that emigrants are sent here who are entirely unsuited to the conditions prevailing in this country, and who are unlikely to succeed even under the most favourable circumstances.

The work of these associations does not come under the supervision of the Canadian Immigration Department in the British Isles, and it is very advisable that more effective measures should be adopted, supervisory and restrictive, in regard to the undesirable classes.

It might be mentioned that the Department of the Interior exercises a degree of supervision over a certain very limited class of immigrants who are sent out by the Poor Law Guardians. If the guardians of a district are satisfied that a person who has been a charge on them is really capable of working his way in Canada, or elsewhere, under new conditions and with a fair start, they secure an appropriation from public moneys for the purpose of the emigration of such person. When an emigrant is sent out in this way, it is imperative that the consent of the Assistant Superintendent of Emigration for Canada be obtained. In this way the Department exercises some control. Independent inquiry is made, a medical certificate is obtained, and other precautions are taken to make sure of the suitability of the emigrant.

The Minister is of the opinion that a similar system of inspection should be extended to all charitable and philanthropic societies or organizations operating in England, whether using public money or funds provided by public generosity, so that persons whom they propose sending to Canada may be subject to inspection by the officer representing the Canadian Government Emigration Department in London as to their antecedents, both morally and physically, and as to their general suitability for settlement in Canada; such persons to be allowed entry into Canada only upon presentation of a proper certificate from the Assistant Superintendent of Emigration; and to be subject to exclusion and deportation in the usual way should they succeed in gaining admittance to Canada in contravention of the regulations.

The Immigration Act (sec. 10) provides that:

The Governor in Council may, on the recommendation of the Minister, make such orders and regulations, not inconsistent with this Act, as are considered necessary or expedient for the carrying out of this Act according to its true intent and meaning and for the better attainment of its objects.

The Minister therefore recommends that an Order in Council be passed prohibiting, from and after the 15th day of April, 1908, the landing in Canada of any person whose passage has been paid wholly or in part by any charitable organization or out of public moneys, unless it is shown that the authority in writing of the Assistant Superintendent of Emigration for Canada in London has been obtained for the emigration of such person, and that such authority has been acted upon within a period of sixty days.

The Committee submit the same for approval.

RODOLPHE BOUDREAU,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

II.

PRIVY COUNCIL, CANADA,
AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA,
Friday, 27th day of March, 1908.

Present: His Excellency the Administrator in Council.

The Administrator in Council is pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the Order in Council of the 8th of January, 1908, which provides that in accordance with section 20 of the Immigration Act, Chapter 93, Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, the immigration agent at any port shall require every immigrant, male or female, 18 years of age or over, arriving before February 15, 1908, to have in his or her possession money to the minimum amount of $50, or if arriving after February 15 and before April 1, a minimum amount of $25, in addition to a ticket to his or her destination in Canada, unless satisfactory evidence is furnished that the immigrant is going to some definite employment or to relatives or friends already settled in Canada who will take care of such immigrant, do continue in force until the 31st day of December, 1908, in so far as the provision for a minimum amount of $25 is concerned.

RODOLPHE BOUDREAU,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

III.

PRIVY COUNCIL, CANADA,
AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA,
Wednesday, the 27th day of May, 1908.

Present: His Excellency in Council.

Whereas during the present session of Parliament an Act has been passed repealing subsection 1 of section 30 of the Immigration Act, Chapter 93 of the Revised Statutes, 1906, and substituting the following provision therefor:

30. The Governor in Council may, by proclamation or order, whenever he considers it necessary or expedient, prohibit the landing in Canada of any specified class of immigrants or of any immigrants who have come to Canada otherwise than by continuous journey from the country of which they are natives or citizens and upon through tickets purchased in that country.

And whereas it is considered expedient forthwith to prohibit the landing in Canada of immigrants who have come to Canada otherwise than as set forth in the said provision,

Therefore, His Excellency in Council is pleased to order that from and after the date hereof the landing in Canada shall be, and the same is hereby, prohibited of any immigrants who have come to Canada otherwise than by continuous journey from the country of which they are natives or citizens, and upon through tickets purchased in that country.

RODOLPHE BOUDREAU,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

IV.

PRIVY COUNCIL, CANADA,
AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA,
Wednesday, the 27th day of May, 1908.

Present: His Excellency the Governor-General in Council.

Whereas a considerable number of European immigrants arrive in Canada by way of United States Atlantic and Pacific seaports, coming in by rail from port of landing in the United States, many of whom are of the classes prohibited by the Immigration Act from landing in Canada, and are for this reason or for causes arising within a period of two years of their arrival in Canada deportable under the Act;

And whereas upon the Superintendent of Immigration seeking to deport such persons, the railroad companies responsible for carrying them across the border have pleaded inability to take them back on the Superintendent's order, for the reason that the persons sought to be deported were not legally admissible into the United States, and would not be admitted into that country, except for transit to port of landing and immediate delivery into the custody of the steamship company responsible for taking them back to the port or place from which they were brought;

And whereas the steamship companies have been communicated with in this matter and each company has been asked to enter into an agreement according to the draft attached hereto;

And whereas the steamship companies have had this agreement and the request of the Department of the Interior with respect thereto before them since about the 23d of February, 1908, but the only company that has thus far executed the agreement is the Allan Line Steamship Company (Limited) of Glasgow, running ships to Boston, Mass., and Portland, Me.;

And whereas on account of the neglect of the other companies to attend to this matter the Department of the Interior is, at the present time, in the position of having some fifty-five deportable immigrants on its hands and being unable to deport them;

Therefore His Excellency the Governor-General in Council in these circumstances, and seeing that undesirable immigrants are constantly coming into Canada, as above described, and that the Superintendent of Immigration is unable to put the law in force with respect to such immigrants, is pleased to order, as a necessary measure of protection for Canada, under the authority of section 10 of the Immigration Act, Chapter 93, Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, that all such immigrants as seek to come into Canada by rail, who have come from any country on any ship landing at a United States port belonging to any steamship company or owner who has not entered into the agreement hereto annexed, shall be and they are hereby prohibited from landing in or coming into Canada.

RODOLPHE BOUDREAU,
Clerk of Privy Council.

V.

PRIVY COUNCIL, CANADA,
AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA,
Wednesday, the 3d day of June, 1908.

Present: His Excellency the Governor-General in Council.

Whereas by the Order in Council of the 18th January, 1908, it is provided that in accordance with section 20 of the Immigration Act, the Immigration Agent at any port shall require every immigrant, male or female, 18 years of age or over, to have in his or her possession money to a minimum amount of $25, in addition to a ticket to his or her destination in Canada, unless satisfactory evidence is furnished that the immigrant is going to some definite employment or to relatives or friends already settled in Canada, who will take care of such immigrant, and by a further Order in Council of the 27th March, 1908, this arrangement is continued in force;

And whereas Canada is looking primarily for immigrants of an agricultural class to occupy vacant lands, and as immigrants from Asia belong as a rule to labouring classes, and their language and mode of life render them unsuited for settlement in Canada where there are no colonies of their own people to ensure their maintenance in case of their inability to secure employment, it is necessary that provision be made so that such immigrants may be possessed of sufficient money to make them temporarily independent of unfavourable industrial conditions when coming into Canada;

Therefore His Excellency the Governor-General in Council is pleased to order that the amount of money required to be in possession of each immigrant as a condition to his being permitted to enter Canada shall be and the same is hereby increased to $200 in the case of all Asiatic immigrants other than those with whose countries the Government of Canada has special arrangements or those concerning whose countries special statutory regulations exist on the part of Canada; the conditions as to tickets to destination to remain as at present.

RODOLPHE BOUDREAU,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

VI.

PRIVY COUNCIL, CANADA,
AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA,
Tuesday, the 23d day of June, 1908.

Present: His Excellency the Governor-General in Council.

Whereas by sections 40 and 58 of the Immigration Act, Chapter 93 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, it is provided as follows:

40. Every keeper of a tavern, hotel, or boarding house in any city, town, village, or place in Canada, designated by any Order in Council, who receives into his house as a boarder or lodger any immigrant within three months from his arrival in Canada, shall cause to be kept conspicuously posted in the public rooms and passages of his house and printed upon his business cards, a list of the prices which will be charged to immigrants per day and week for board or lodging, or both, and also the prices for separate meals, which cards shall also contain the name of the keeper of such house, together with the name of the street in which it is situate, and its number in such street.

2. No such boarding-house keeper, hotel keeper, or tavern keeper shall have any lien on the effects of such immigrant for any amount claimed for such board or lodging for any sum exceeding $5.

58. Every keeper of a tavern, hotel, or boarding house in any city, town, village, or other place in Canada, designated by Order in Council, who—

(a) Neglects or refuses to post a list of prices and to keep business cards on which is printed a list of the prices which will be charged to immigrants per day or week for board or lodging, or both, and the prices for separate meals, and also the name of the keeper of such house, together with the name of the street in which the house is situated and its number in such street, or—

(b) Charges or receives, or permits or suffers to be charged or received, for boarding or lodging or for meals in his house, any sum in excess of the prices so posted and printed on such business cards, or—

(c) Omits immediately on any immigrant entering such house as a boarder or lodger, or for the purpose of taking any meal therein, to deliver to such immigrant one of such printed business cards, shall incur a penalty not exceeding $20 and not less than $5.

And whereas it is considered expedient to bring these sections into force in certain places;

Therefore His Excellency the Governor-General in Council is pleased to designate, and doth hereby designate, for the purpose of sections 40 and 58 of the Immigration Act, the cities of Ottawa and Toronto, in the Province of Ontario; the cities of Quebec and Montreal, in the Province of Quebec; the city of Halifax, in the Province of Nova Scotia; the city of St. John, in the Province of New Brunswick; the city of Winnipeg, in the Province of Manitoba; and the cities of Vancouver and Victoria, in the Province of British Columbia, as cities within which every keeper of a tavern, hotel, or boarding house therein who receives into his house as a boarder or lodger any immigrant within three months of his arrival in Canada shall be subject to the requirements and the provisions of the said section 40 and to the penalties provided by the said section 58 in case of contravention thereof.

RODOLPHE BOUDREAU,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

VII.

PRIVY COUNCIL, CANADA,
AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA
Friday, the 11th day of September, 1908.

Present: His Excellency the Governor-General in Council.

His Excellency the Governor-General in Council, in virtue of the provisions of Section 20 of the Immigration Act, Chapter 93, Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, is pleased, in view of the labour conditions and of the probable supply and demand for labourers in Canada during the coming winter to order and it is hereby ordered that in the case of immigrants arriving at Canadian Ports between the 1st day of January and 15th day of February, 1909, the Immigration Agent at any port shall require every immigrant, male or female, 18 years of age or over, to have in his or her possession money to the minimum amount of $50 in addition to a ticket to his or her destination in Canada unless satisfactory evidence is furnished that the immigrant is going to some definite employment, or to relatives, or friends already settled in Canada who would take care of such immigrant and that on the last mentioned date the money qualification above prescribed be reduced to the minimum amount of $25 for each immigrant, and so remain until further ordered.

RODOLPHE BOUDREAU,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

IMMIGRATION REGULATIONS AND FORMS.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE GUIDANCE OF IMMIGRATION INSPECTORS.

Inspectors appointed to enforce the provisions of the Immigration Act and the regulations made thereunder in respect to immigrants arriving in Canada by railway, or other means, are expected to use fair discretion in carrying out their duties, bearing in mind that the policy of the Department is not one of exclusion of immigrants, excepting in cases where their admission is directly provided against in the Act, or regulations, or is likely to be an injury to the community.

The term "immigrant" means and includes any person arriving in Canada by railway train or other mode of travel, provided such person has not previously been domiciled in Canada. In any doubtful case where previous domicile in Canada is alleged as a reason for coming in the Inspector is required to closely question the party as to such domicile, ascertaining the address, length of residence, and how employed, as well as name and age of passenger, and these particulars are immediately to be reported to the Superintendent of Immigration, with date of arrival and particulars as to train, and form and number of ticket, together with Inspector's remarks as to reasons for objecting to passenger.

Special attention is to be given to the classes designated as "undesirable" and the Inspector must see that none such are admitted.

(1) Feeble minded, idiots, epileptics, insane, or those who have had an attack of insanity within five years.

(2) The immigrant who may be afflicted with a loathsome disease, or with a disease that may become dangerous to the public health or widely disseminated, whether the immigrant intends to settle in Canada or only to pass through Canada to settle in some other country.

(3) One who is a pauper, a destitute, a professional beggar, or vagrant, or who is likely to become a public charge, or one who has been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude. A prostitute, or one who procures, or brings, or attempts to bring into Canada, prostitutes or women for purposes of prostitution.

The above are absolutely prohibited from admission into Canada, and if any such are found on the train which the Inspector is examining, he will notify the official or officials in charge of the train that such person or persons can not be admitted into Canada but must be returned immediately. The Inspector will require no other warrant or authority for this than that reposed in him by virtue of his appointment, and having taken the action thus indicated his responsibility in the matter will cease until such time as he may find that his instructions are not being carried out. Then he will immediately advise the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, by wire, following the telegram by a letter giving a complete history of the action, with particulars as to train, date, name of debarred immigrant, etc.

(4) The law requires that an immigrant who is deaf and dumb, or dumb, blind, or infirm, must not be permitted to come into Canada unless he belongs to a family accompanying him, or already in Canada, and which family gives security satisfactory to the Minister for his permanent support if admitted into Canada.

In this relation if the Inspector is satisfied that there are no other reasons to refuse admission, he will allow party to go forward with family, if they are on train, or to family, if they do not accompany, taking careful note of name, destination, permanent address, and form and number of ticket, so that the case may be followed up subsequently, if necessary.

(5) It is provided by the regulations issued under the Act that immigrants may be prohibited from coming into Canada, unless they come from the country of their birth, or citizenship, by a continuous journey, and on through tickets purchased before leaving the country of their birth, or citizenship.

With respect to the above it may be remarked that authority is thereby given to exclude certain classes of persons, when the labour conditions prevailing in Canada render such action desirable. When the labour conditions are not such as to render necessary the general application of this regulation, Inspectors are enabled, by it, to exclude individuals whom they may have reason to suspect are undesirable, for any of the reasons for exclusion set forth in the Immigration Act. Particular discretion will have to be exercised in cases coming under this clause.

(6) Immigrants arriving between the 1st of December and 15th of February may be required to have in their possession $50 per adult passenger besides a ticket to destination, and at other times $25 per adult passenger and ticket to destination.

While the Inspector will be very careful in his examination to see that this clause is complied with, he will not enforce it in cases where satisfactory evidence is furnished that the immigrant is going to some definite employment, or to relatives or friends already settled in Canada who will take care of such immigrant.

For the complete checking up of trains, it may be necessary for the Inspector to meet the Canada-bound trains at a station on the American side of the boundary line, and accompany train to the first point at, or within, the Canadian boundary.

Inspectors are required to familiarize themselves thoroughly with the Immigration Act and Amendments, and with any Orders in Council, proclamations or regulations, made thereunder, and they are further required at the end of each month, and from time to time as they may be instructed, to report in writing to the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, upon blanks to be prescribed by him, the number of immigrants passing through their respective ports of entry and such other particulars as may be ordered.

Cases of doubt may, to save time, be referred to the Superintendent of Immigration at Ottawa, by telegraph.

APPENDIX H.

IMMIGRATION TO CANADA FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDING MARCH 31, 1910.

The Commission's report upon the Immigration Situation in Canada is based on data covering a period ending with March 31, 1909. After the main part of the report had been prepared certain data became available relative to immigration to the Dominion during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1910. These data consist merely of figures showing the number and race or nationality of immigrants to Canada during that year, which were made available for the use of the Commission through the kindness of Mr. W. D. Scott, Canadian Superintendent of Immigration.

The following table shows the character of immigration to Canada for the year mentioned so far as race or nationality of the immigrants is concerned:

^a Not elsewhere specified.

^b Including 186 United States citizens coming to Canada via ocean ports.

By comparison with the statistical table on page 16 of this report it will be noted that 61,886 more immigrants were admitted to Canada during the last fiscal year than during the preceding fiscal year ending March 31, 1909. The number admitted during the fiscal year 1910, however, is 53,675 less than during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1908, which was the year of highest immigration to the Dominion.

Immigration to Canada from the United States is chiefly responsible for the increase in the total numbers between the fiscal years ending March 31, 1909, and March 31, 1910, the figures for these years being, respectively, 59,926 and 103,984, or an increase of 44,058 in the latter year.

The movement to Canada during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1910, by geographical divisions, in comparison with immigration from the same countries in 1908 and 1909, is shown by the following table:

TABLE 46.—Total immigration to Canada, by specified countries or groups of countries, fiscal years 1908 to 1910.

[Compiled from statistical tables furnished by Canadian Immigration department.]

Race, people, or country.	Number.			Per cent of total.

Grand total.....	262,469	146,908	208,794	100.0	100.0	100.0

The most significant fact shown by the above table is the relative decrease of the European elements and the increase of the United States element in the immigration movement to Canada since 1908.

It will be noted that in 1908 northern and western European countries furnished 50.7 per cent of the total immigration, while the United States furnished 22.3 per cent. In 1910, however, 49.8 per cent of the total number of immigrants admitted to Canada came from the United States and 33.6 per cent from northern and western Europe. Immigration from southern and eastern Europe to Canada was relatively much less in 1910 than in 1908, the decrease being from 20.8 per cent of the total immigration in 1908 to 13.5 per cent of the total in 1910.

A comparison between British and United States immigration to Canada during the years under discussion is shown by the following table:

TABLE 47.—British and United States immigration to Canada, fiscal years 1908 to 1910.

Country.	1908.	1909.	1910.
United Kingdom.....	120,182	52,901	59,790
United States.....	58,445	59,926	103,984

As previously stated, 1908 was the year of greatest immigration to Canada. In 1909 there was a sharp decline in the total number admitted, immigration from the United Kingdom being particularly affected. There was, however, a slight increase in the immigration from the United States in the latter year. The decline in immigration to Canada between 1908 and 1909 was due to unfavorable conditions in the Dominion; but it is worthy of note that while immigration from Great Britain in the latter year fell off, considerably more than one-half the movement from the United States was not checked. Improved conditions in the Dominion in 1910 resulted in an increase in the immigration movement from practically all sources; but it is a striking fact that immigration from the United States increased 73.5 per cent, while the increase from the United Kingdom was only 13 per cent.

Data are not available to show what each State and Territory contributed to the immigration movement to Canada from the United States in 1910. Neither is information relative to the occupation of these immigrants available. The statistics furnished to the Commission by the Canadian immigration department, however, show that included in the 103,984 persons admitted to Canada were 63,539 males, 20,725 females, and 19,720 children whose sex is not given. These last figures indicate that a large proportion of the movement from the United States to Canada was composed of families, which substantiates similar statements in this report relative to the immigration to Canada in other years.

APPENDIX I.

THE CANADIAN IMMIGRATION LAW OF MAY 4, 1910.

After the presentation to Congress of the Commission's report on the Immigration Situation in Canada and while it was still in the hands of the printer, the Government immigration bill presented as Appendix B of this report was, with some amendments of minor importance, enacted into law. The new law became effective on May 4, 1910, and, with the various orders-in-council promulgated under it, was published on May 16.^a While the new law makes no very radical changes in the Canadian system of promoting and controlling immigration, such changes as have been made are, as elsewhere stated, the result of long experience on the part of expert officials, and as such are entitled to consideration not only by students of the Canadian system, but by everyone interested in immigration and immigration law. Because of this the law is published in full as a part of this report.
